THIRD RUSSELL TALK WITH NEW CLAIMANT IS BEING HELD TODAY

Melrose Man Meets the Californian at Lawyer's Office for Further Conference on Matter of Identity.

COUNSEL IS SILENT

Utmost Secrecy Is Being Maintained by All Concerned in the Investigation Now Going On.

The Fresno (Cal.) claimant to the title of "Daniel Blake Russell" was again in conference with counsel for the Russell estate at the office of Nason & Proctor, 15 Beacon street today. Besides the claimant there were also present Thomas W. Proctor, John K. Berry and Eugene Up-ton, counsel for the Russell estate.

Strict silence was maintained by counsel for both William C. Russell and the California claimant relative to what happened at the first session of today's examination of the claimant, which closed at 1:15 p. m. At the close of the meeting Senator George W. Cartwright, Californian counsel for the claimant, refused to divulge what took place during the secret meeting, merely saying that it would be resumed late this afternoon.

Asked if the examination of the Fresno claimant would be concluded today, Senator Cartwright said: "I couldn't tell you, I am sure."

William Odlin, the Boston counsel for the Fresno claimant, also refused to talk about today's examination of his client or of Mr. Russell's attitude toward the claimant.

Ferdinand D. Almy, coexecutor of the Russell estate, when asked this morning as to the truth of the report that William C. Russell denies that the Fresno claimant is his brother, said: "I do not know of Mr. Russell making any such statement."

All the persons at the conference today are non-committal as to the attitude shown by Mr. Russell toward the claimant at the conference Friday.

The Fresno claimant underwent a close examination by the counsel for William C. Russell during Thursday's conference relative to his knowledge of family life in the Russell home when Daniel Blake Russell was a small boy. Mr. Russell at the close of the meeting was noncommittal as to his attitude toward the new claimant.

The conference began at 10:30 a. m. (Continued on Page Eight, Column Six.)

MARSHAL GIVES LAND TESTIMONY

Federal Official in Alaska, Who Made a Favorable Report, Tells of Alleged Offer.

WASHINGTON—The largest Ballinger-Pinchot hearing crowd since the days of the Glavis, Pinchot and Garfield testimony was on hand today when the doors were opened.

H. K. Love, former special agent of the land office, declared on the stand that John W. Dudley, formerly registrar of the Juneau land office, Alaska, had told him in February that Collier Weekly had told him (Dudley) that "it would be worth from $5000 to $10,000 to him to come to Washington and testify before the committee." It was decided to subpoena Dudley.

Mr. Love is an ex-rough rider and when asked to what he owed his appointment as marshal, he mentioned the fact that he "happened" to be a trooper in Colonel Roosevelt's regiment.

He denied that his investigation of the Cunningham claims had been "warped" by the fact that he was a candidate for the marshalship. It was he who made the favorable reports on the claims upon which Mr. Ballinger based his clear-listing order.

CAMBRIDGE TUNNEL STRIKERS CONSIDER RETURNING MONDAY

Some excitement was caused when Patrolmen Aberle and Gavin of the Cambridge police this morning arrested Angelo Rogers, who is said to be one of the leaders of the strike among the excavators in the Cambridge subway.

Angelo was sentenced to two months in the house of correction by Judge Walcott in the Cambridge court on a charge of disturbing the peace.

The Cambridge police at 2:30 p. m. reported everything quiet along the subway. The men had received their pay and gone home.

The police say that about 1000 men are out. Many of these, however, have expressed their intention of accepting the offer of the contracting company to return to work on Monday. Beyond the arrest of Rogers the situation has been quiet. About 150 patrolmen, however, are guarding the entire length of the subway, from Brattle square to the Cambridge bridge.

The work on the subway is tied up, excepting at the section between Putnam square and Bay street, which is being made by tunnel construction. Here a full force of men is at work as usual.

It is reported on good authority that a majority of the men would have gone to work this morning, but the contractors considered it advisable to pay the men off and suspend operations. This is now being done at the headquarters on Main street.

All those who signify their intention of coming to work on Monday will be paid, as is the custom, up to the preceding Tuesday night. Others will be required to pass in their checks and will be paid off in full up to Friday noon. They will not be given work again nor will they be allowed to molest the other workmen. There has been no disturbance so far.

The contracting company is already more than six months ahead of its schedule in the construction of the subway in Cambridge, and expects to have the subway covered over from Lafayette square to West Boston bridge by next July, and surface cars running over routes that have had to be abandoned on account of the digging.

COMMISSION ON LIVING COST TO MAKE INQUIRIES IN CANADA

Chairman Robert Luce of the Massachusetts commission to investigate the high cost of living and Edward F. McSweeney, also of the commission, together with President Arthur Cummings of the Boston Fruit and Produce Exchange and Robert F. Wason, representing the New England and Boston Wholesale Grocers Association and the Boston Retail Grocers Association are to go to Canada Monday to make a study of the prices and qualities of food in the dominion.

Messrs. Luce and McSweeney will stop off at Springfield to take part in the public hearing to be held there on Monday on the food question, and will proceed to Canada in the afternoon.

The commission has found it difficult, it is said, to get trustworthy data for accurate comparison of retail prices here and in Canada. The trouble comes, it is claimed, in the variation in quality. For example it was disclosed by the study of a large number of food advertisements in Massachusetts newspapers outside of Boston that there was a range in price of what purported to be the same article, as offered by retail grocers and

INDIANA CONVENTION OF REPUBLICANS IS INTERESTING NATION

First Since Passage of Tariff Bill and Results Are Expected to Be an Index to the Feeling of the People.

SET FOR TUESDAY

WASHINGTON—Political gossip by statesmen and other folks who make a living in Washington is centering today about the Indiana Republican state convention to be held next Tuesday in Indianapolis.

This event will have an important influence on the politics of the year because it will be the first Republican state convention since the passage of the tariff bill.

Those interested know it will be affected to some extent by the Indianapolis platform and the reports from there will be eagerly awaited.

President Taft whose record for a year will for the first time be characterized in an important party platform, has an interest keen as that of any one, unless Senator Beveridge be excepted. Mr. Taft's position in the contest has been the subject of much speculation, but it is believed here that he has kept hands off. His action is credited to a natural desire to avoid taking part in a state fight and to the prospect seemingly assured, that the platform will contain an endorsement of his administration.

Mr. Beveridge is the Republican leader in the state and he will control the convention. He has said that he will leave the making of the platform to the delegates, but there is no doubt that it will accurately reflect his sentiments. An address to the convention will be his bid for reelection to the United States Senate, where he has served for 12 years.

As the serious deliberance, at a state convention, of a leader among the progressives his speech is being awaited with, at least, as much interest as manifested in the platform.

In senatorial circles the report is current that Mr. Beveridge will denounce Messrs. Aldrich and Cannon, but will endorse the Taft administration. It is expected that he will advocate the creation of a tariff board to assist in the revision of the tariff on a just and systematic principle.

With this understanding of his views, both the progressives and conservatives in political Washington profess to find satisfaction, but for widely different reasons. Mr. Beveridge's opponents claim that failure on his part to endorse the tariff law would alienate from the senator the support of the Hemenway-Watson stand-patters and the powerful protected interests in Indiana and would not win the support of a counter number of Democrats.

Mr. Beveridge's friends, on the other hand, feel that nothing short of a repudiation of "Aldrichism," "Cannonism" and the tariff will insure his election. He voted for downward revision and on the final roll call against the adoption of the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill. Three Republican congressional conventions held recently in Indiana have refused to endorse the tariff.

The state convention, Tuesday, will nominate its candidate for state officers, except for governor. In addition to handling national issues in the platform the delegates will have a hard problem in the temperance question.

VOTERS' FESTIVAL TOMORROW.

Arrangements for the "new voters' festival," to be held in Faneuil hall at 3:30 p. m. tomorrow under the auspices of several Boston organizations, including "Boston 1915," have been completed. This is the eighth annual festival to be held, and among the prominent men to address the assembly will be Mayor Brand Whitlock of Toledo and Judge Michael J. Murray of the municipal court. President Emeritus Charles W. Eliot of Harvard will preside.

Salem's Annual Garden Contest Begins

Civic league interests residents in clean city by prize competition.

SALEM, Mass.—The garden contest for 1910 is on. The civic league offers 55 prizes for wellkept gardens and 90 gratuities. Prizes and gratuities are to be given for the gardens and yards showing the most improvement among people of moderate circumstances.

The total of prizes and gratuities will amount to $163. The first-class prizes will consist of one cash prize of $7 for the best kept back yard in the entire city and then there will also be prizes of $3, $2 and $1. Besides these rewards offered by the league several citizens have offered additional prizes. The competition is open to all persons residing in Salem and prizes are awarded especially on "improvement" shown in premises.

All yards and gardens are inspected at the beginning of the season before anything is done, and again at the close of the season. Cleaning up refuse, old cans, ash heaps, barrels, paper and other waste and keeping yards and gardens neat and tidy will count for more than a great show of flowers or vegetables. The league supplies garden seeds at cost to all who apply for them.

Some idea of the interest taken is shown by the record of seeds furnished. In 1906 it was 14,500 packages to 1500 persons; in 1907, it was 16,500 packages to 1600 persons; in 1908 the number was 17,254 packages; in 1909 the number reached 17,328, furnished to 1986 persons.

The committee having the work in charge reports that the effect upon the children of the community has been most marked and is of increasing benefit each year. It is said that children are much less destructive of other people's flowers; than before they participated in these garden contests and that their premises show good effects from the one or two seasons' participation in the competitions.

JURY IN WASHINGTON ISSUES INDICTMENTS IN BUCKETSHOP CASE

WASHINGTON—Three indictments in connection with the operation of bucketshops in the District of Columbia were today returned by the grand jury here.

In each case the parties indicted claimed to do business through the Consolidated Stock Exchange of Philadelphia. The total number of offices maintained by the three concerns whose principal members are indicted amounts to more than 250 and the territory covered by them ranges from New England to Oklahoma.

Raids are being made simultaneously today in New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, St. Louis, Cincinnati, Jersey City and Washington. Twenty-nine brokers are named in the indictments.

These men are members of the three firms of Price & Co. of Baltimore, Boggs & Co. of Philadelphia and New York, and the Standard Stock Company of St. Louis.

Attorney-General Wickersham issues a statement regarding the indictments, containing the following information: "In the first indictment Richard E. Preusser, Leo Mayer, George Turner, William H. Lillis, Oliver J. Robinson, Edward S. Boggs, Harry Owens, Robert A. Guy, Al Ford, Marshall F. Parrish, Edward E. Taylor and Harry Johnson are charged with conspiracy to commit an offense against the United States in violation of the law which makes unlawful the keeping of bucketshops in the District of Columbia.

"Taylor maintained two offices in Washington and was the correspondent here for Edward S. Boggs & Co. of 47 Broadway, New York. Harry Johnson was a telegrapher in the employ of Taylor. Preusser, Lillis, Owens, Mayer and Guy are associated with the firm of Edward S. Boggs & Co. at New York.

Winthrop Womens Club to Provide Scholarships for Deserving Graduates

MRS. WILMA DEARBORN CARTER.
Winthrop resident who is assisting the Womens Club to provide scholarships for high school girls.

THE MOVEMENT providing scholarships for girl graduates of the Winthrop high school has progressed successfully under the auspices of the philanthropic committee of the Winthrop Woman's Club.

A scholarship for one is now assured by the proceeds of a lecture course given by the committee and the sale of tickets for an entertainment to be given by Mrs. Wilma Dearborn Carter of Winthrop in the Winthrop high school on April 4.

Mrs. Carter's program will include readings and song stories and she will be assisted by Miss Rosa Weidhorn, violinist, and Mrs. Isadora S. Busby, pianist.

The scholarship money is loaned to the girl student with the stipulation that it shall be repaid when she has completed her education and has earned the amount from her own efforts. The money refunded is to be added to the permanent fund.

Girls only are to benefit from this fund, because it is thought that boys have more opportunities open to them to earn money while studying. The club has already supported two southern girls in Maryville College, Tenn., but decided two years ago that only Winthrop pupils should be included.

OPPOSE THE LOAN EVIL IN NEW YORK

Mrs. Russell Sage and State Banking Department cooperate to Abolish Extortionate Interest.

ALBANY, N. Y.—The end of the usurious "loan trust," which has made millions by forcing poor people to pay extortionate interest on money their necessities compelled them to borrow, is in sight. The state banking department and the Sage foundation, the latter the organization which is dispensing the millions amassed by Russell Sage, have joined hands to stamp out the loan evil. Mrs. Sage and State Bank Superintendent Cheney have arrived at an understanding as to how this is to be done, and just so soon as the necessary legislation can be secured the plan will be put into effect in this state, and if it proves successful it will be extended throughout the United States.

The state banking department has asked the Legislature to pass bills now before it. They give the banking department power, in issuing licenses, to investigate the character of proposed beneficiary organizations and to license loan associations. These latter are to be permitted to do a "pawn brokerage" business, the rate of interest being limited to 3 per cent a month, and limits the loan business in this state entirely to loans on chattels or other property. Loans on salaries are absolutely prohibited in any form.

The Sage foundation will, it is stated, so soon as the law goes into effect, apply for licenses for model "pawn shops" which will be established in every section of the state.

ROOSEVELTS LAND, AMID GREETINGS OF BIG NAPLES CROWD

INTERVIEW DENIED

Party Passes Through a Line of Cameras and Goes Quickly to Hotel—Stay Will Be About a Day.

(By the United Press.)

NAPLES, Italy—Former President Roosevelt arrived here today at 8 a. m. The welcome from the quay when the Prinz Heinrich docked and Mr. Roosevelt and his party came down the gangplank was one of the most enthusiastic ever accorded the ex-President.

Ambassador Leishman had come on from Rome to assist in the welcome and was at the pier. Consul Crowninshield, the mayor of Naples, the prefect of police, other municipal officials and dignitaries and a crowd of several thousand, half of whom seemed to be Americans, gave the colonel a great cheer as he made his appearance.

Special preparations were made to guard Mr. Roosevelt and a cordon of police was drawn up at the quay that furnished a complete guard while the party was making its way to the carriages that whirled the members away to the Excelsior hotel.

Their trip to the carriages was not made before a battery of cameras had got in its work.

One of the first things the colonel did

This, according to Mayor Fitzgerald, is a most opportune time to celebrate and make more evident the very friendly trade relations which are about to be established between Canada and this country.

The mayor also made a proposition to the Legislature today to the effect that the new charter should be so amended as to provide for the annual election of councilmen on the same day as the state election.

DEPLORES INSULT TO MAYOR MAGEE

Mr. Carnegie Today Deprecates Hooting of City's Executive at Pittsburg Meeting Friday Night.

PITTSBURG, Pa.—"The action of the audience which Friday night hooted and jeered Mayor Magee when he attempted to defend his administration, is a disgrace to the people of Pittsburg," declared Andrew Carnegie today.

"It is a shame, a crying shame. That is no way to go about the thing. Even a criminal is allowed the privilege of debate and this was uncalled for and a gross violation of all laws of debate. Mayor Magee showed great courage in attending the meeting. Many good causes are spoiled by over zeal and I think this sort of action will do more to retard the progress of reform than anything else. The people of Pittsburg should at least respect their mayor. I regret very much that I was not present."

REPORTS READY FOR NEXT MONDAY

These committee reports have been filed with Clerk Kimball of the House for presentation to the Legislature on Monday.

DARTMOUTH TRACK ATHLETES MAKING GREAT PROGRESS

Coach H. L. Hillman Has Had Many Men Out and Will Start Strict Training Wednesday.

HANOVER, N. H.—The Dartmouth squad will begin training for the outdoor meets next week. The men were allowed to go home when college closed Thursday, but they are to return on Wednesday, and from then on they will be under the watchful eyes of Coach Hillman, as he is anxious to make the outdoor season as much of a success as was the indoor.

With the advent of Mr. Hillman as the coach this season, track interests at Dartmouth took a big jump and never in the history of college has so much interest been shown in these sports. More men reported for the team and more meets were entered. The indoor season was a great success, and the victories have added a number of trophies to the collection for the new gym. Chief among these is the big shield won at the Olympic games of the Twenty-second regiment held in New York and awarded to Dartmouth for scoring the largest number of points.

Coach Hillman has had the men out on the campus for over a week. This is many weeks earlier than a team has ever been able to get out in Hanover before. This early start should prove a powerful help to the men. A new feature introduced for creating interest in the sport is in the holding of meets every Saturday afternoon, in which every one is urged to enter. In this way many good men have been brought out, and the men have secured much experience in racing. Hillman is a firm believer in this mode of training, and thinks that the only way to get speed in a man is by making him run about the track every day as hard as he can go.

The weight men are to be given especial attention in the next few weeks, and Coach Hillman hopes to develop a few men, who will prove point gainers. In the shotput, the football captain, is showing good form. He is a big fellow and can put the shot for long distances. Lovejoy is being given a good deal of attention, but he is a little small, although he has a good swing. Farnum, the big guard of last year, is a new man at the shot, but he is a powerful lad, and has two more years of college, so the chances for making a good man of him are bright. The two Marden brothers are again on the field and they are picking up their form of last season. Their strong event is the discus and with E. R. Palmer this should be well covered.

In the sprints Sherman is still the leader, and he is in his regular condition. Marks is traveling fast this year, both in the sprints and the hurdles. Other prominent sprinters are Miller, Hall, Steiwer and Russell. The quarter and the half are especially strong in candidates. Baxter, Francis, Jones, E. Palmer and Holmes are among the strongest. The mile and two mile are well taken care of by the men who constituted the cross-country team last fall. Noyes, the cross-country captain for next year, Bull, Spokesfield and Scott are daily covering these distances. In the field events Dartmouth should be well represented by Captain Palmer, who is one of the best intercollegiate high jumpers, and by Holdman, the wonderful pole vaulter. Sherman, Marks and Smith are figuring in the broad jump.

The net important games for the team are the relay races at Pennsylvania, to be held the third week in April. On May 7 Dartmouth meets Harvard in a dual meet at the Stadium and to this Dartmouth will send three men for each event.

BOSTON AMERICAN TEAM PLAYS AGAIN

HOT SPRINGS, Ark.—The Boston American squad participated in hard drilling this morning and were scheduled to hold the last work of the season on these grounds this afternoon, when a game will be called between the regulars and the ynnigans. Frank Arellanes spent the morning coaching the ynnigans in preparation for this event and they will try hard to capture a victory from the regulars.

The usual hard practice of the squad was eliminated from the schedule Friday morning, but the players got in two hours of hard practice in the afternoon. During the recent game with Cincinnati Manager Donovan discovered several of the players' faults, and spent much time in explaining them to the men. The worst fault seemed to be the desire of some of the new players to give the bat a long swing before the ball is pitched. This is bound to get the batter's eye off the ball and it is therefore very pleasing to the pitcher to see that type of man at the bat.

The Cincinnati players left here at noon, and among them was seen John McLean, who says that the Cincinnati club must allow him to finish his contract when the time comes or give him an unconditional release.

The entire squad of Boston players have improved greatly in form and now feel confident of having a successful tour.

CAMP ADVISES YALE ELEVEN

Tells Candidates Light Men Will Have Better Show Under New Rules Than Ever Before.

NEW HAVEN, Conn.—About 60 men responded to the call of Captain Daley for the football squad, which will begin spring practice next Monday for the purpose of trying out the new rules. The meeting was addressed by Walter Camp, head coach E. H. Coy and Captain Daley. The necessity of a preliminary study of the new rules was especially emphasized by all the speakers. At least four teams are expected to engage in the spring practice this year, which will consist largely of scrimmages.

In his address, Mr. Camp said in part, "No matter what the final arrangement decided upon by the rule committee will be, it is obvious that the game will be one in which the lighter players will have a greater advantage than ever before in the history of the game. The more open play will have a tendency to make the work of the backs and ends much more strenuous, consequently the use of many more substitutes, at the same time lessening that of the linemen. Nevertheless, there is very little chance that there will be such radical changes from the old game as will lessen the interest or enjoyment of either the spectator or the player."

ATLANTA NINE DEFEATS BOSTON

ATLANTA, Ga.—The Atlanta team of the Southern league defeated the Boston Nationals here Friday by the score of 7 to 6, in a fast, played game. This is the second defeat recorded to the credit of the Boston team in the tour of exhibition games. Even the inability of the Boston pitchers to locate the plate might not have lost the game had it not been for the two bad errors made in the ninth when Atlanta had a man on second base.

The Boston men played fast ball, varied by a little loose fielding when Atlanta had men on the bases. The Atlanta team played steady baseball and was ever ready to take advantage of Boston's mistakes. Boston made eight hits to seven for the local team, but the latter's came after a pass or error had put men on the bases.

The Boston pitchers were Wolfgang, Brown and Tuckey and they were not in good form. They did not appear steady, and their frequent desire to throw the ball any place but over the plate put Atlanta in a position to score. The score:

Innings..... 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 R.H.E.

TECH HOLDS ANNUAL RUN. Technology's annual cross country race between picked teams representing the different courses of the institute, starts this afternoon at 3:15 from the Highland station, West Roxbury, ending at the Tech field, Brookline. The race is the first of the spring series and Coach Kanaly hopes to get a good line on the abilities of the members of the squad which will aid him in placing them for the intercollegiate distance runs.

W. J. TRAVIS WILL MEET TUCKERMAN

Easily Win Their Places in the Final Round and Play Today for the Title and Prize.

PINEHURST, N. C.—Walter J. Travis, ex-United States and British amateur golf champion, meets W. R. Tuckerman of the Chevy Chase Club today in the final round of the first division of the United North and South golf tournament for the chief prize and title of 1910. These two players easily won their places in the final round by defeating Allan Lard and J. P. Gardner in the semi-finals. Travis is a decided favorite for the title although his opponent is playing a strong game and will force the ex-champion to show his best form in order to capture the title.

The semi-final rounds in all the divisions were played Friday and some interesting matches resulted. Travis and Tuckerman had easy victories, but some of the winners in the other divisions were hard pushed. W. T. West forced W. Tuckerman to play 19 holes in the consolation and it took G. A. Brinkerhoff 20 holes to win his place in the fifth division from W. S. Morse of Rochester. The summary:

HARVARD TRIES SIGNAL PRACTISE

Candidates for Varsity Football Eleven Will Try Out New Plays During Next Week.

The opening week of spring football at Harvard ended Friday with the first regular signal practise of the year. The backs and centers were divided into three squads which ran through simple formations, no innovations under the new rules being attempted. The ends, who worked out under F. de H. Honston '10, last fall's varsity end, were later added to the signal squad and received a number of old style short forward passes. C. Hann '11, the former Brookline high player, is displaying excellent form at end, and should prove a strong candidate next fall. Various combinations were constantly being tried out and shifted.

The linemen, under the direction of Captain Withington, spent a long session practising charging and breaking through. H. B. Sprague '11 coached the punters. Regular scrimmages will be held next week, and new plays will be introduced. Several graduate coaches will probably be out to assist in the work.

MARSHALL WINS TWENTY. NEW YORK.—Playing simultaneous chess against 25 opponents, P. J. Marshall, the United States chess champion, made a score of 20 victories, 4 drawn games and 1 lost. J. Pollak was the opponent who won his game. The drawn games were scored by Mrs. C. E. Nixdorf and the Rev. A. Nelson, in consultation; G. E. Northrop, J. Edwards and W. Blansford.

BROOKLYN PROVES SUPERIOR.

NASHVILLE.—Brooklyn defeated the Nashville team, 2 to 0, here Friday. Scanlon and Wilhelm pitched in good form, each allowing only one safe hit. Case lost his own game with a poor pitch in the third. The score:

PRINCETON CREW CANDIDATES WILL REPORT ON MONDAY

Faculty Refuses to Sanction Any Intercollegiate Contest This Spring—Class Races Will Be Held.

SPAETH TO COACH

PRINCETON, N. J.—Princeton University students have now given up all hope of seeing any intercollegiate boat races on Lake Carnegie this year, as the administrative officers of the university have finally announced that they will not sanction any such events. The undergraduates are now turning their attention to interclass races and hope to make such a good showing in them that the faculty will permit the maintaining of a varsity eight next year.

Candidates will be called out on Monday and put to work on the machines and in the shells. Dr. J. Duncan Spaeth of the university faculty, who served so efficiently as coach last fall, will again be in charge of the work at the lake, but unfortunately Mr. Robert E. Coulson has left the graduate school, and consequently will be unable to assist Dr. Spaeth this spring. The loss of Mr. Coulson will be greatly felt by the association, as his services last fall were invaluable.

Nothing definite has been decided upon as yet, regarding the nature of the work this spring, but there are now three plans under consideration, one of which will be selected by the management in the near future. The first plan provides for four class crews and an interclass regatta in June; the second for three or four picked crews, which will participate in an exhibition race during commencement week; while the third provides for four class crews, which will have an interclass race early in the season, and which will be broken up into three or four picked crews, for the purpose of giving an exhibition race during commencement week.

The rowing authorities took full advantage of the recent recess to put the launch into condition and set out the float. The various shells have all been gone over and everything is ready for the coming of the various candidates next Monday afternoon.

YALE OPENS BALL SEASON.

NEW HAVEN, Conn.—The local Yale baseball season will be opened this afternoon, when the blue team plays the South Orange Field Club. Encouraged by the good showing of the Yale team during its Easter trip, the coaches expect to see the university win, but it is admitted that the victory will not be easy since several members of the varsity team are former college players of the first place. Captain Coy of last season's football team is expected to start the pitching for Yale.

MARATHON DERBY TODAY.

NEW YORK.—The second annual Marathon Derby will be run this afternoon at the Polo grounds, starting at 3 o'clock. Twelve of the best distance runners, gathered from all quarters of the globe, will run. The contestants and the countries which they represent are as follows: Hayes, Holmer and Crook, America; Crowley and Maloney, Ireland; Sellen, England; Ljungstrum and Johanson, Sweden; Acosoe, Indian; Meadows, Canada, and Nanti and Blasi, Italy.

THREE PLAYERS ARE DROPPED.

The number of candidates trying for the Harvard varsity baseball team was reduced unexpectedly Friday afternoon by the dropping of Frye, Conant and O'Flaherty. It is expected that another reduction will be made before the southern trip is taken. President Lowell and Dean Briggs watched the practise and saw the second team win from the varsity 6 to 1.

THREE PLAYERS RELEASED.

CHICAGO.—Three men on the reserve list of the Chicago Americans have been released to the Des Moines club. They are outfielders Walter Matticks and Percy Dalton and pitcher Andy Owen. The two outfielders played with Des Moines last season, while Owen was a member of the Worcester (Mass.) club.

HARVARD MEETS YALE TODAY.

Harvard and Yale meet today on Soldiers field in their annual soccer football contest. Yale has a strong team and is a favorite for the game.

RATIONAL GOLF

By Jason Rogers.

We live in an iconoclastic age, when the nostrums evolved from their wisdom and experience by the sages of antiquity, and reverently handed down to us by our golfing fathers, for our guidance and instruction, are no longer received with unquestioning faith and obeyed with blind obedience. Nowadays we want to know the "why" and the "wherefore" of everything, and the "wherefore" of the "why," and so far as golfing instruction is concerned, it must be confessed that the maxims of tradition have come out of the process of modern analytical examination very much down at heel, writes G. G. Smith in Golf Illustrated. "Slow back," "Don't press," "Let the club follow through," "Tight left, slack right," are precepts that have been violated, and are being violated by leading exponents of modern golf, without any of the disastrous consequences which our fathers believed must follow their neglect, and the whole theory of golf instruction has been reduced to a chaos of conflicting conclusions and doctrines from which it is only slowly beginning to emerge.

One would not like to affirm that the old tutors were wholly wrong in their teaching. It must not be forgotten that the old conception of a golf stroke was a purely swinging blow has been largely abandoned, and that teaching, however sound it may have been for the swing, cannot be applied with successful results to the more modern style, in which the blow is delivered by something very much more nearly approaching a hit. That has certainly to be remembered in estimating the value of these old maxims, but still, the doubt remains whether they ever contained any appreciable amount of virtue, and whether they were really put in practise by the best of the old-time players. The inventors of these ancient saws were the old-fashioned caddies, who, as a general rule, were not themselves expert players, and their pupils were the middle-aged and elderly gentlemen who for the most part made up the membership of the leading clubs. Their ideals of golfing excellence were therefore strictly limited by the capabilities of their pupils, and it seems probable that such maxims as "slow back" and "dina press" owe their origin to the caddies' well-meant endeavors merely to prevent their aged masters overtaxing their strength, and so missing the globe. Other maxims which are not now accepted may be partially explained by the indolence of the untutored cadettes or professional mind to analyze its own experiences and beliefs, or impart them to others, and among these we venture to class the admonition to keep the eye on the ball.

We are, of course, far from saying that "to keep your eye on the ball" is wholly unnecessary, or that a man could play just as well with his eyes shut, or fixed upon something else; but we do think that the maxim is even now used in a sense and insisted on by teachers, in a way that is quite erroneous. In the first place it is surely a work of supererogation to tell any beginner to keep his eye on the ball. The ball is what he is there to hit, and, as a beginner, he is much more likely to be interested in it than in an adjacent daisy or wormcast, or in the surrounding landscape. By directing his attention in this marked way to the perfectly obvious, the natural effect on an intelligent mind is a sense of irritation, and on a dull mind of confusion. In the second place, supposing the pupil accepts the direction as an essential part of the instruction, he is almost certain to glare at the ball in a wholly unnecessary manner, to the neglect of much more essential matters.

But there is a great deal more in it than that. The advanced instructors are now careful, in inculcating this maxim, to impress on the learner that he should not look at the top of the ball, because the result of that would be to hit it on the top—this, by the way, is by no means inevitable—but that he must look at the part of the ball he desires to hit. Now, as the player desires to hit the ball a little below the center, this spot, owing to the roundness of the ball, is invisible, and so, as a sort of compromise, he makes up his mind to glare at the nearest spot to the invisible location indicated. We suggest that to tell a beginner that he must "keep his eye on the ball" is practically an instruction to him to glue his eye on it, and we submit that this is wholly foreign to the best practice, and is indeed fatal to excellence. Properly regarded, the ball is merely an index point by which, and from which the player takes his stance and makes his swing. His swing thereafter is an almost entirely mechanical operation, and if the stance is correct and the machine is in good working order the club-head will inevitably return on the correct spot on the ball. When a ball is missed or badly hit, it is not because the player has failed to keep his eye on it, but that some part or parts of the mechanism of the swing did not work properly. His stance may have been wrong, or he may have swayed his body, or he may have pulled in his arms or twisted his club in his hands, but it is certain that 99 times out of 100 it was not because he did not "keep his eye on the ball." We repeat that the correct theory of instruction in striking the ball accurately is to teach the player to make his club perform certain evolutions in a perfectly mechanical manner, with invariable accuracy, and that the ball is only one point in the line of these evolutions, no more important, from the point of view of instruction, than any other point in the figure described by his clubhead.

The effect of telling a player to "keep his eye on the ball" is to cause him to think that it is the most important point, and that so long as he gets there, it doesn't matter so very much how he does it. His mind, being obsessed with the idea of keeping his eye on the ball, is not in the condition that will admit of the rest of his body performing the necessary mechanical evolution of hitting it. It cannot be too strongly insisted on that the correct hitting of a golf ball is a purely mechanical and sub-conscious act. The differences between players are almost entirely due to their capacity or incapacity for so regarding and dealing with it. And this attitude of mind and body cannot be attained by the laborious and conscious building up of the details of the operation usually undertaken. To be a first-class player a man must have the natural bias and instinct for hitting the ball in the right way, and if he has the root of the matter in him he will divine the best method for himself from observing and recognizing it in others. If he has not the gift, the finest and wisest player in the world will not be able to teach him.

TARIFF DISCUSSION SWINGS ATTENTION TO CANADA'S RICHES

Americans During the Past Few Months Have Learned Much of Dominion's Wonderful Resources.

EXPERT GIVES VIEW

WASHINGTON—On account of the belief that a tariff war with Canada is inevitable, the attention of the people of the United States has been attracted to that country in an unusual way for the past few months and the country and its wonderful resources have come to be better understood south of the international boundary. Thomas A. James of Ottawa, in this city recently, was interviewed on the question of these resources and said some things that will be of general interest as pointing out something of what Canada possesses in the way of natural resources of all kinds.

Mr. James, while admitting that Canada has wonderful possibilities in an agricultural way, says that these agricultural possibilities are by no means the most important. He thinks that the future of Canada will be found in the development of its geological resources. Speaking of them he says:

"Investigations into the geological conditions of Canada show that it is one of the richest countries of the world in this respect. These investigations have as yet scarcely been started. Only the bare surface of the ground has been scratched here and there, but the results have been sufficient to show that there is not a mile of uninteresting territory in the whole Dominion. There is the highest authority for the statement that the basin of the Hudson and James bays can easily sustain a population of quite 10,000,000, while at Fort George, 200 miles north of the foot of James bay, it is possible to grow any crop that is common in Scotland.

"Some of the greatest forests of Canada are north of the Ogoke river, though there is a continuous zone from east to west across the country of coniferous trees, which form one of our great assets. These trees feed on the primitive crystalline rocks, of which Canada has an area of more than 1,000,000 square miles, the largest of any country in the world.

"But it is not of the trees, nor yet of agriculture that I want to speak, but of the geological deposits. The crystalline rocks just referred to hold gold, silver, nickel, iron, copper, mica and other minerals of great value in paying quantities. In the remainder of the rock formations there are enormous deposits of fossil fuel, in hundreds of basins, containing practically an inexhaustible supply. It has been estimated by authorities that the Crow's Nest basin, on the line of the Canadian railway in western Canada can supply 100,000,000 tons of coal a year for 5000 years and still have coal left in large quantities.

"Out in British Columbia coal, copper and iron are known to exist in paying quantities in many places. The building of new lines of railway will open up these vast mineral deposits, and it is our belief that within the next decade Canada should produce minerals to the value of $100,000,000 a year. And that will be only a beginning, a sort of promise of larger things to follow. Canada has practically a monopoly of the world's supply of nickel and asbestos.

"In addition to the things I have mentioned, we have unmeasured supplies of oil and gas in the rock formations, not only in crude petroleum and tar, but also in oil shales, which, when distilled, will produce millions of tons. These, together with the bituminous sections of Quebec, Ontario and the new western provinces, can supply the railways of Canada and the navy of Great Britain with oil fuel for thousands of years.

"Canadians are only beginning to understand how rich is their heritage and for that reason we do not complain because the rest of the world—even our near neighbor, the United States—does not understand it. For many years we are to be the great wheat field of North America and one of the great wheat supplies of the world. This will stimulate agriculture and bring in a stable population of the better classes of people. But atop of all this agriculture, important as it is, lie our mineral deposits, which form a promise of untold supplies for ages to come."

It is the belief of Mr. James that the population of Canada is to increase more than 40 per cent during the next 10 years.

cover maintained to enable operators of bucket shops to conceal the real nature of their operations.

"Mayer is a well known bookmaker and Turner is said to have been expelled from the New York Stock Exchange and with Lillis has been connected with some of the most notorious bucketshop concerns in the country. A number of men named in this indictment are well known as bucketshop operators.

"In the second indictment Edward Altemas, Lewis Cella, Angelo Cella, Samuel Raymond, Oscar J. Rappel, Robert Hall, Henry C. Stumf, Henry R. Duryee and Charles R. Allen are the defendants. Duryee maintained an office in this city at which place Allen was employed as the guard.

"Altemas, the Cella Brothers, Raymond and Raphael were associated with the corporation known as the Standard Stock and Grain Dealers of Jersey City, which corporation purported to do business through the Consolidated Stock Exchange of Philadelphia.

"Hall is the manager or chief clerk at Jersey City and Stumf is the representative on the Philadelphia Consolidated Stock Exchange. Altemas was recently convicted in Jersey City in connection with the operations there and the two Cella brothers are widely known as bucketshop operators.

"In the third indictment William B. Price, Virgil P. Randolph, Henry M. Randolph, Charles T. Moorehead, Edward Welden, James A. Angerson, Joseph Gaskins, Thomas H. Campbell and Edward Everett Taylor are the defendants. Price, the two Randolphs, Moorehead, Welden, Anderson and Gaskins are connected with the firm of William B. Price & Co. of Baltimore, of which concern Taylor was a correspondent prior to his becoming the representative of Boggs & Co. the first part of September, 1909. Price & Co. also purported to do business through the Consolidated Stock Exchange of Philadelphia, and Campbell is their representative there.

"A representative of Price & Co., has been convicted of running a bucketshop at Norfolk, and one of the indicted men connected with the Price concern is a fugitive from justice in another jurisdiction. It is believed that the return of the indictments and the prosecution of the defendants therein will do a great deal toward destroying the operations of bucketshops throughout the country."

NEW YORK—R. E. Preusser, Leo Mayer and Oliver J. Robinson, connected with the firm of E. S. Boggs & Co., were placed under arrest today and locked up in the Tombs, charged with conspiracy.

BALTIMORE—The local police raided "Little Wall Street" just before the market closed for the day and placed under arrest President William B. Price of the Price Company, James A. Anderson, Edward Welden and Harry M. Randolph, and they were at once hurried before United States Commissioner Burger, who will later admit them to bail. Officers with warrants also sought Virgil P. Randolph, C. H. Moorehead, Joseph Gaskins, Thomas H. Campbell and E. E. Taylor.

APPEAL IS MADE TO FILL MILITIA

Ex-Gov. Curtis Guild's paper, the Commercial Bulletin, publishes today an analysis of the condition of the Massachusetts volunteer militia and an appeal to the chambers of commerce and boards of trade to give the organization better support. The quality of the volunteer military and naval service of Massachusetts is described as the best in the country, but the lack of enlistments, it is claimed, is becoming serious. The various infantry regiments for example show a shortage today, it is said, of from 15 to 20 per cent from a full enlistment. Says the bulletin:

In the first corps of cadets, all from Boston, not one company has full ranks. In the second corps cadets, all from Salem, not one company has full ranks. In the coast artillery corps only the Chelsea company showed a full enlistment.

Every battery of field artillery (Boston, Worcester and Lawrence) has a deficit. In the squadron of cavalry, only the newly organized troop in Cambridge has a full quota. The three Boston troops are badly short of members.

Since Jan. 1 last, the first corps of cadets has lost 22 enlisted men; the second corps, 13; the second infantry, 30; the fifth infantry, 42; the sixth infantry, 72; the eighth infantry, 31; the ninth infantry, 111.

The members of the national guard sacrifice time, money, pleasure to give themselves to hard, monotonous patriotic work that they may be of use to their country.

It is time that the business men of Massachusetts set the example. Their sons should be the first, not the last, to enlist. There should be a waiting list, an honor roll in civic duty to every company, battery troop and corps in the commonwealth.

If the clerk or the workman is ready to give himself to the service of law and order, why should the employer not cooperate at least to the extent of allowing every member of the militia in his employ one week for the summer training school, without loss of pay in addition to the usual vacation?

STRIKERS SHOWER BRICKS ON POLICE

NEW YORK—Because of the forceful repressive measures taken by the 60 policemen who have been guarding the plant of the American Sugar Refining Company in Brooklyn, the striking sugar mixers today posted themselves on the roofs of neighboring houses and showered bricks on the bluecoats. Policeman Stephen Thornton and seven other officers were injured.

The bluecoats, with drawn revolvers, made their way to the roofs. Three men were arrested and held on the charge of felonious assault. There were a number of other riots in the district during the day, the strikers beating a number of strike-breakers.

GOVERNOR MEETS MR. TAFT SUNDAY

Gov. Eben S. Draper, it was announced this noon is to meet President Taft at Millbury, a short distance out of Worcester, about 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon. He will then form one of the presidential party going to Worcester. The Governor will go to his home in Hopdale today and leave there Sunday morning for Millbury.

President W. C. Brown of the New York Central lines is expected to arrive in Boston Sunday morning at 7 o'clock at the South station where he is to be met by a party in a Thomas touring car. It is understood that President Brown will be the guest of Assistant General Manager J. H. Hustis, during his stay here and that the program will include a tour along the route of the Boston & Albany.

Governor Draper and President Brown will speak at the conference of the railroad men at Worcester Sunday afternoon.

President Taft probably will not visit Boston in connection with his Worcester trip. The President was invited through a resolution of the Massachusetts House and Senate to come to Boston Monday and meet the members of the Legislature at Monday's session.

The senators from Massachusetts met the President in Washington on behalf of this resolution. Through Senator Murray Crane the Legislature has been informed that owing to many engagements it will be impossible for the President to come at this time.

REFUSES REBATE ON OLD MUSEUM

Charles H. Folsom, secretary of the Boston board of assessors, today announced the decision of the board refusing to abate taxes on $1,563,200 worth of property of the Copley Square Trust for the year 1909, on which a hearing was held this week. This tax is on the property of the old art museum in Copley square, which was purchased by the Copley Square Trust from the Art Museum Association and on which title was passed some months ago.

According to the contentions of Joseph E. Warner, attorney for the Copley Square Trust, and Moses Williams, the head of the trust, the corporation possessed only $63,200 worth of taxable property on May 1 last year. A statement to this effect was filed with the assessors, but the trust was assessed for the full value of the property.

The situation adjusts itself this year by reason of the absolute passing of the title, and the abatement was asked by the trust company for the year 1909 on $1,500,000 worth of property, the title of which, it was claimed, had not then been conveyed. The abatement would involve taxes to the amount of $25,792.80.

In 1825 the lodge moved to Andover Center, locating in William Town's hall until it moved to the old bank building where it remained until 1889, when for a brief period, and under the sanction of the grand lodge, its meetings were held in the Grand Army hall while the building in which it is at present located was being erected.

The present quarters were dedicated in 1890. The lodge has held 1510 communications since its organization and has a total membership of about 240.

TIMBERMEN SURVEY FOR REGULATION FORESTS IN FLORIDA

TALLAHASSEE, Fla.—This state is about to get its first practical experience of the results of national forest administration. A reconnaissance survey of the Choctawhatchee forest, which was put under control of the department of agriculture in November, 1908, by presidential proclamation, is now being made by a force of forest service experts.

This survey will furnish information in the light of which the use of the forests can be promoted through properly regulated timber cutting, through turpentine under the cup-and-gutter or the cup-and-apron method, and through grazing, without harm to the permanent value of the forests. Florida was the first state west of the Mississippi to have a national forest.

The Choctawhatchee forest, containing approximately 467,000 acres, is located in the western part of the state, along the Gulf, in Walton and Santa Rosa counties. The Ocala forest, embracing some 207,285 acres, lies in the central part, the greater portion of the forest being in Marion county, with a small fraction in Lake county. The two forests were placed under administration Nov. 1, 1909. Twenty-five per cent of the revenue from them goes to the county school and road funds.

As long ago as 1825 Congress appropriated $10,000 to buy live oak land on Santa Rosa sound to make sure of a supply of ship timber for our war vessels. This reservation, together with other tracts subsequently set aside, made a total of 208,224 acres in Florida timberlands which the government purposed to hold as a source of supply for its ships.

Large quantities of acorns were planted and many young oaks were set out. But the plantation was not a great success, and the main effort was ultimately restricted to thinning out, pruning and other silvicultural care of the trees of the natural forest. Today the new attempt at forestry in the peninsular state promises much more encouraging results.

Eight forest service cruisers, headed by A. B. Recknagel, assistant chief of silviculture at Albuquerque, N. M., have commenced operations near the head of Little Alaquia, on the Choctawhatchee tract. A similar inspection of the Ocala forest will be made.

MONITORIALS

By Nixon Waterman

THE COMING ARBITRATOR.
(With some of the speculations concerning him, in which perturbed editors are just now indulging.)

When T. R. comes back home in June, To put his party all in tune, And make it good as new? Should he the hold insurgents praise Their hopes it would begem, But if their course he can't endorse It's 'way, 'way back for them. When he has landed on the pier He'll take a hasty view Of all the country far and near And tell us what to do. Some policies he must espouse, While some he must condemn; And those that he rejects 'twill be Away, 'way back for them.

AN ERUDITE.
Humpty—Is Professor Lingo a fine scholar?
Humpty—I should say so. He can talk to people from any country on the map. "You don't tell me?"
"Yes I do, but only those who speak English can understand him."

SOWING AND REAPING.
He who his present conduct seeds Needs have no future sorrows, His glad to-day will be the seeds From which spring his tomorrows.

Although Colonel Roosevelt has had to lay aside the guns which were his constant companions while hunting in Africa, the peoples of Europe will still find him armed to the teeth and loaded.

A SUBTERFUGE.
Dealer—Yes, I will be glad to sell you a half-dozen of these trout but why do you insist that I throw them at you instead of wrapping them up and handing them to you?
Customer—Well, you see I am just returning from a fishing trip and I must be able to say that I caught them.

In recounting his experiences in the Antarctic regions Lieutenant Shackleton, in his New York lecture said: "Finally we reached a point where I knew we could make the pole, but could never have got back. With 50 more pounds of food we could have reached there and returned."

The moral of the story is, for those who are going to make a dash for the south pole—take 50 more pounds of food with you.

FEATHER-WEIGHTS.
"Would seem that of all light-weight men The true blue-ribbon pair Would be an Irishman of Cork And a canny Scot of Ayr."

The report that expert breeders have produced wool-bearing poultry promises a happy solution to the high cost of living problem. The owner of a fine egg-laying, wool-growing hen will feel assured that his food and clothing are forthcoming.

Hurdy—Rather raw day, isn't it?
Gurdy—Well, you see it is only 12 o'clock and, of course, any day, at the noon hour, cannot be more than half done.

A HARD PULL.
Said the lawyer, "I've been working like a horse!" and you'll agree It was true, for he'd been drawing A "conveyance," don't you see.

Miss Ellen Terry's originality is equaled only by her honesty. In discussing her forthcoming American lecture tour, which is to begin in New York in October, she is reported to have said to the reporter, "Please, will you kindly make it known that the rumor is all wrong in asserting that this is to be my last tour."

HARD FOR ROVER.
Old Rover lived quite well until His family became Strict vegetarians since when His lot is not the same. Without his meat and marrow bones Oh, sorry are his feelings, For now he gets but turnip-tops And the potato peelings.

IRRIGATION SYSTEM IS MADE AVAILABLE NEAR NORTH YAKIMA

SPOKANE, Wash.—John S. Conway, engineer in charge of the Tieton irrigation project, covering 33,000 acres at a cost of $1,500,000, the first system in Washington built in its entirety by the United States reclamation service, announces that the "flood waters" will be turned on to 2000 acres included in unit 1 early in May. Expert horticulturists say the land is the most desirable and valuable of the undeveloped semi-arid districts in the state.

The land is in the district tributary to North Yakima, the nearest point being three miles from the city limits. There is no other shipping point on a railroad line within reach of ranchers, although smaller communities are springing up at the terminus of branch railroad lines.

The construction has only been accomplished by overcoming numerous engineering difficulties, some of which were generally said to be insurmountable at the time the reclamation service started the work. For eight miles the main canal is constructed along the wall of the Tieton canyon at points hundreds of feet above the mountain stream and at other places bored through solid rock as a tunnel, until a sudden turn is taken and the canal diverts through a foothill and emerges from a tunnel into the headwaters of the Cowlitz creek. Thousands of men have had employment in the building of this canal during the last four years and hundreds will be required to complete the lateral systems of units 2 and 3.

It is announced that water will be available for 11,000 acres this year, and applications have been made already for irrigation of about 2000 acres. Next year there will undoubtedly be preparations to utilize the water much more generally.

RICH MAN TRIES AN AEROPLANE.
NEW YORK—Roy Crosby, a wealthy business man of Los Angeles, made his debut as an aviator and acquitted himself like a Blériot or Paulhan. In a small biplane, built by Dr. William C. Green at his aeroplane factory at Middletown, O., Crosby flew around a prescribed course on Hempstead plains, Long Island, for a mile and a half, man-aged his machine perfectly and alighted without mishap.

NORMAL COLLEGE CONSIDERS PLANS

Trustees May Modify the Original Specifications of Proposed Building for New York Institution.

NEW YORK—The executive committee of the trustees of Normal College is considering a modification of the plans for the proposed college building. In these, as originally drawn, there are four contiguous wings of Renaissance design occupying the four outer sides of the block between Park and Lexington avenues, Sixty-eighth and Sixty-ninth streets. These contain two courts separated by the chapel.

Though this design is considered architecturally perfect, President Davis has pointed out that a modification would make it unnecessary to sacrifice all the lawn and trees. The new plan calls for a Gothic structure, which will preserve the beauty of the surroundings and remove the undesirable feature of inner courts. On account of its reproduction of the old structure, the plan is particularly pleasing to the alumnae.

The corner-stone will be laid in the fall, whatever plan is finally adopted.

CHICAGO SCHOOL YARDS IMPROVED

CHICAGO—Chicago's public school yards hereafter are to be made more attractive to the pupils as Friday the board of education ordered that school yards be paved with pulverized cinders instead of brick, so that the boys could play marbles. Mrs. Ella Flagg Young, superintendent, said it was impossible for boys to play marbles properly on brick pavements.

A vegetable garden was ordered planted in the grounds of one school, to teach the children "the difference between a squash and a tomato."

It was ordered that the lockers at the Englewood high school be enlarged because the present ones were not large enough for the girls' hats.

EXTRA LEGISLATIVE SESSION.
NEW YORK—A special dispatch from Albany predicts an extra session of the Legislature this year and one that is likely to be of historic interest. Governor Hughes' action in calling a special election in the thirty-seventh district to elect a successor to J. P. Alda in the Senate is taken as a positive indication of an extraordinary session.

CATANIA—Every house in Catania is practically sealed to prevent the sifting in of ashes from Mt. Etna, the fall of which is daily increasing. The activity of the volcano shows no diminution and it is now in a fair way to break all its former eruptions records. No fatalities occurred in the engulfment of the village of Cavaliero by the lava.

BAR FIREWORKS FROM NEW YORK

NEW YORK—Mayor Gaynor has directed Fire Commissioner Waldo to enforce the order issued by Commissioner Hayes, on the day he went out of office, prohibiting the sale of firecrackers or fireworks of any kind at retail between June 10 and July 10. A similar order was issued by Commissioner Hayes last year, but on account of representations made to him by the wholesale dealers he reconsidered it.

PARK BOARD READY FOR SPRING REPAIR IN BOSTON SYSTEM

The metropolitan park commission expects to begin its annual spring repairing throughout the park system within a week or two. The commission itself has been ready for some time to go ahead with the work, but has had to wait until the Legislature made an appropriation for this purpose. The House has already passed the appropriation and it is awaiting action in the Senate. It is thought that the bill will reach the Governor by Wednesday. Immediately on his signing the bill the work will be started.

The expenditure at Winthrop, Revere and Quincy alone will involve an outlay of about $39,000. This amount was not anticipated and is due to the damages of a few months ago, when the tides were the highest since 1851.

At Winthrop the coping, the iron railing and the granolithic walk along the beach for about a mile are to be restored to the condition they were in last summer.

The two wooden bulkheads at Revere beach, which were carried away, are to be replaced with concrete construction. These bulkheads are used in checking the waves at the ends of the beach, where the action of the water is greater than it is in the central part. The land stand and shelter at this place are also to be put in proper condition.

The beach at Quincy has been so eaten away that it is necessary to build a wall to protect Ruff's hammock and the national sailors' home.

Along the roads there is considerable debris to be removed, so that the commission expects to have many things that will require its attention, when the Legislature provides the means to go ahead.

BEAUTIFYING CITY OF NEW BEDFORD

NEW BEDFORD, Mass.—The residents of this city, particularly the school children, are taking a great interest in gardening this year. There is a concerted attempt to make New Bedford a city beautiful, and a gardening contest has been inaugurated, with more than $100 offered in cash prizes under the auspices of the New Bedford Horticultural Society. All prizes are awarded for the greatest improvement shown, taking into consideration local conditions and surroundings.

In this contest cleaning up refuse, old cans, ash heaps, barrels, paper and other litter, and keeping the gardens and yards clean and neat the whole season counts even more than a great show of flowers and vegetables for a week or two.

The home gardening and yard improvement contest committee is offering penny packets of seeds to the school children, each packet bearing instructions how to plant the seeds enclosed therein.

FAVOR DEMANDS OF GRAND TRUNK

PROVIDENCE—Although the date of the report of the Grand Trunk charter bill from the committee on corporations is still uncertain, it may be authoritatively stated that an agreement has almost been reached, so far as the New Haven and southern New England roads are concerned, for upon only two points out of the original 10 is there now any difference. The two points now at issue, it is stated, are the Grand Trunk's demands to cross the New Haven tracks at a grade and to be allowed to use the New Haven's track in entering the city.

HYDE PARK PRIZE FOR CIVIC ESSAY

HYDE PARK, Mass.—The Hyde Park Women's Current Events Club has voted to give a bronze medal to the member of the high school senior class who writes the best essay on civic service reform this year. This action is a result of the activities of Mrs. Louise M. Wood, chairman of the civil service reform committee of the State Federation of Women's clubs. Mrs. Wood was the first president of the Hyde Park club.

DEBATE IS ASSIGNED ON EIGHT-HOUR BILL TO COMING MONDAY

BEVERLY'S CHARTER

Debate in the Massachusetts House on the eight-hour bill has been assigned for Monday. The bill as it stands at present is in substantially the same form as the one which was vetoed last year by Governor Draper. "The labor interests of the state have been much dissatisfied with his action and hope by means of a few slight changes that have been made in the bill to secure a different result this year."

The House has passed to a third reading the bill framed in the interest of clean streets. This bill provides that anyone who throws rubbish in a street in violation of the ordinances of a city and refuses to give his name may be arrested without a warrant.

The commission which is considering the question of the high cost of living at its session late Friday afternoon heard the meat and milk interests. A. H. van Pelt of Armour & Co. stated that the price of meat today was no higher than it had been in the last 25 or 30 years, the only difference being that the people are living on a higher and better basis than formerly, and have demanded better qualities of meat.

William A. Graustein of the milk interests stated that the high price of milk was due to the agitation for pure milk.

Dwight P. Thomas of the Revere Sugar Refinery stated that he believed that the sugar trust had kept down the price of sugar, rather than otherwise.

The committee on cities has reported favorably on the Beverly city charter, the chief feature of which is the abolition of the common council.

Amendments are being offered to the Walker direct nomination bill striking out the initiative and referendum, and making the bill also apply to counties.

The committee on labor has reported favorably on the bill to provide work on state highways in times of industrial stress.

The Boston & Maine road's terminal division is installing a giant air compressor in the relief power station at Prison point, for use on the interlocking plant.

The Pere Marquette railway private car Detroit, occupied by the G. W. Perkins family, arrived at South station today from Jersey City.

The passenger department of the Boston & Maine road obtained the contract for moving the Metropolitan opera company from Boston to Chicago—special sleeping car train to be ready to leave North station after the performance to night, running via the West Shore, Buffalo and Lake Shore roads.

EASY TO SECURE BIG AUTOGRAPHS

NEW YORK—The autograph industry in the United States Senate is on the slump, writes the Washington correspondent of the Brooklyn Eagle. You can get a complete set of senatorial autographs, 92 in number, for $5. Any of the bright, hustling page boys of the Senate will undertake to fill an autograph, 92 in number, for $5. Any of ten years ago such a collection of names would cost $10. The pages say that the most difficult autographs to obtain are those of Senator Aldrich and Senator Root. The former is usually too busy to be scribbling his name indiscriminately. Senator Root seems to have a prejudice against gratifying the whims of autograph hunters and it is only when he is in rare good humor or absent minded that he will sign.

COTTON SHIPPED BACK TO AMERICA

LIVERPOOL—More than 15,000 bales of cotton recently shipped here by operators in the American May orner was reshipped to New York on the steamer Baltic today.

It is said that a considerable percentage of the purchases by cotton dealers here for weeks past have been for reshipment to the United States. Other consignments will follow those on the Baltic.

MRS. WARREN GRANTED DIVORCE.
A divorce on the ground of cruelty was granted Mrs. Ethelynde M. Warren from her husband, Franklin H. Warren, Friday afternoon. On March 10 the children of the couple, Adrian St. Clair and Phyllis Warren, were kidnapped by the father. He was arrested charged, with polygamy in that he had married Mrs. Warren while he had a wife living.

FINLANDERS BUYING DESERTED FARMS IN NEW ENGLAND AREA

FITCHBURG, Mass.—The Finnish population in this city is large and is growing larger every year. There is already a cooperative general merchandise store, one large prosperous private mercantile establishment, the proprietor of which was a student at Helsingfors College in Finland.

The recent pressure of the Russian colonial policy in Finland has caused a great influx of Finns to this country. Fitchburg seems a halting place for many, except for those who have through tickets to the West. Many are buying up abandoned farms.

It would surprise some to learn that many Finlanders are buying up the abandoned farms in northern Massachusetts from northern Worcester county to the Berkshire hills. As fast as they form a permanent settlement, own their farms, they build a church, put their children under public school instruction, organize a temperance society and a debating club. The Finnish young women make the best of domestic servants and command corresponding wages.

A good colony of Finns have settled in southern New Hampshire and more than 20 of them own their own farms. They have a church building of their own.

In this city there are two prosperous Finnish churches, one active temperance society, a socialist club where debates are often held, to which English speaking men are sometimes invited to be present and take part.

Many prefer the city. Not a mill in town but what has some Finnish weavers. "Novelty" turning shops largely use Finnish help. Finns are getting into stone quarry work. No dry goods store in town can now do without one or more Finnish-speaking salesmen; the same is true of clothing and of boot and shoe stores.

There are many who are in mechanical business for themselves as carpenters, masons, painters and decorators, hiring their own help. There are four grocery stores in the Finnish settlement on High and Mechanic streets. In the north and west parts of Fitchburg these desirable immigrants are buying house lots and building homes. Many are good patrons of the savings banks.

There are two Finnish newspapers issued here—Pohjan Tahti (North Star) and Raivaaja (Pioneer). The first named has a very large circulation, many subscribers being in the home land. A few times the Russian postoffice department has suppressed editions of the Pohjan Tahti, which contained articles offensive to that government. Hundreds of copies are sent to the Finnish miners in Wisconsin and Michigan. This paper has also a book and job department from which are issued many tracts and religious books, catechisms, etc. These find sale wherever there are Finlanders. It is surprising how many college graduates there are among them.

A movement is on foot in West Fitchburg among the Finnish-speaking people resident there to establish a stock company for a grocery store and meat market.

A clerk in one of the largest clothing stores in town said, not long since, "When the Finns first began to settle in Fitchburg they bought only the cheapest clothing. Now they won't look at a suit at less than $20. And they have the money to pay for it, too."

The owner of a certain court in the upper part of the city has many tenants on which he has lost much money by non-payment of rents. One day in disgust with his past experiences, he rented a tenement to a Finn, naming a sum to be paid weekly. As the Finn family moved in other families moved out until all the houses had Finnish tenants. Now the landlord sits and receives money every Monday morning without the trouble of going after it.

Of course, coming from under Russian government, with Russian officers and soldiers nagging them at every step, their land rights taken from them by oppressive taxation, their very postage stamps and coins made illegal because they have not the Russian imprint, many of them feel bitter against all legal restraint. An officer's uniform, to them, is the insignia of tyranny. Yet in spite of all this, these Finlanders are a most desirable class to abide with us. They soon adopt our language and customs. Their children are good pupils. The men understand our republic.

LOWELL FREIGHT FIGHT IS WINNING

LOWELL, Mass.—The movement recently inaugurated by the Lowell Board of Trade to provide better freight facilities for the cities of the Merrimack valley, is already bearing fruit. Following the meeting of protest held recently, word has been received here that President Lucius Tuttle of the Boston & Maine railroad would receive a delegation from this and the other valley cities at 2 o'clock next Thursday afternoon.

The matters at issue include alleged delay in the transportation of freight between the cities of the valley and Boston. The question of rates is not in dispute at this time.

NEWSPAPER CLUB TO CELEBRATE.
The Newspaper Club of Boston decided at its monthly meeting Friday evening, held at Charles Wirth's, to hold its twenty-fifth anniversary dinner on Dec. 2. Managing Editor Sidney W. Dean presided. A committee was appointed to arrange for a midsummer gathering down the harbor.

This Establishment Maintains Closer Relationship with the Markets of the Old World than Any Other House in America

THIS fact means much to the New England buying public. It means the opportunity to select from the newest and choicest productions of foreign design and make practically as soon as they are brought out abroad—and as a rule before they are shown elsewhere in America. It means greater varieties, finer qualities and more exclusive ideas—all our own importations and obtained at first hand—than possible under less favorable conditions. It means that this house is undeniably headquarters for whatever is novel, whatever is desirable, whatever is correct in goods of foreign make—as it is acknowledged to be for those produced in our own country.

Besides having a superior resident buying organization in Paris—permanent representatives in London, Berlin and Vienna—correspondents in Frankfurt, Chemnitz, Zurich and a score of other European cities, Jordan Marsh Company sends thirty buyers abroad each year, and many of them twice a year—a statement no other retail store in this country can truthfully make upon his arrival was to "denounce as a fake" an interview printed in one of the Naples papers, in which the colonel was "quoted" on the American political situation.

The freedom of the city was extended to Colonel Roosevelt by Alderman Deleo, acting on behalf of the mayor, shortly after the party arrived at the hotel. The colonel and his family occupy the most luxurious suite in the hotel.

As soon as possible Mrs. Roosevelt and Miss Ethel entered an automobile and began a shopping tour of the city. Colonel Roosevelt spent the first two hours after his arrival at the hotel in going through a big batch of letters and telegrams.

The Roosevelts will remain here but one day, so it will not be possible for them to engage in much sight-seeing or attend many functions. Kermit is the only one of the party that has his plans arranged. He will leave early tomorrow for Pompeii and will not return until just before the party leaves for Rome.

The trip from Alexandria was uneventful. Beautiful weather marked the entire trip and the party was in high spirits on its arrival here.

Ambassador Leishman told Mr. Roosevelt that arrangements have been completed for his presentation to King Victor Emmanuel Monday morning at 10 o'clock.

Mr. Roosevelt will visit a studio to inspect a bust of the late Marion Crawford, the novelist, which Mrs. Crawford intends to present him here.

Dr. Walker Wever, the German consul.

In Shops of Those Who Advertise With Us

The Houghton & Dutton Company announce a special sale of direct importations of china and glassware, including white crockery, verberna patterns, fern patterns, poppy patterns and miscellaneous china selections, all at prices extremely interesting to the shopper. There are also many kinds of glassware, such as tumblers, water pitchers, imitation cut-glass punchbells and orange bowls.

The Leopold Morse Company at Adams square has a special line of spring suits worth $20 which it is offering for $17.50. This does not mean that a few suits have been marked at that price to attract the shopper, but that there is a complete line in a variety of patterns in every size, regulars, stouts, longs and shorts.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is an old friend of the family because for 43 years it has been shown to be the very essence of cleanliness.

Browning, King & Co., 407 to 411 Washington street, have suits for young men which are smart without being in the least freakish. There is a certain snappy quality in the patterns and they are cut on lines that appeal to the youthful fancy.

The specials for today (Saturday) at both stores of James McCreery & Co., Twenty-third street and Thirty-fourth street, New York city, are in the millinery and misses' suits departments. There is an extensive stock of trimmed and untrimmed millinery, feathers and hair ornaments, also a collection of smart hats for misses and children at moderate prices.

In the misses' suit departments there are blue serge suits, full length serge coats and lingerie dresses, trimmed with lace and embroidery.

If contemplating a tour by either railroad or steamship, it would be well to communicate with the Beekman Tourist Company, 336 Washington street, Boston, who, besides being agents for all American coastwise steamship lines and railroads, have facilities for conducting parties and securing preferred accommodations on foreign steamship lines. A travel magazine, "Big and Little Journeys," will be mailed free upon application at the company's office.

This is the season of the year when fur and fur-lined garments are being put aside and it behooves the prudent housewife to make provision for their preservation and safe keeping. The storage vault at the new Gunther store, New York, considered one of the finest and safest storage vaults in the world, is specially fitted for this purpose, and the charges being moderate, it would be well for those who contemplate moving to summer quarters, or intend making a lengthened tour to consult with C. G. Gunther's Sons, 391 Fifth avenue, New York, as to accommodation and terms.

Monitor readers who are interested in floor coverings should note the advertisement of the Lyon Carpet Company of Lowell, Mass., which is now appearing in this paper. The Lyon rugs have a well established reputation throughout the country, being made from the best and most expensive material. The factory of the Lyon company is at Lowell, Mass., and the Boston headquarters are at 541 Washington street.

A series of attractive tours under personal escort to Europe are announced by the Raymond & Whitcomb Company. These tours, beginning in March and continuing through September, include visits to England, Ireland, Scotland, Italy, Switzerland, Austria, Germany and the Rhine, Holland and Belgium, Norway, Sweden and Russia, with opportunities to witness the Passion Play at Oberammergau. Send to the Raymond & Whitcomb Company, 306 Washington street, Boston, for circular describing their European tours.

Lowmy's, 416 Washington street, have fresh strawberries, freshly crushed for the college boys and ice cream sodas at the onyx soda fountain. Delicious bonbons and chocolates are always on sale at this store.

The manufacturers of the Naïd Dress Shield state that their product has two important features—it does not deteriorate with age and fall to a powder in the dress, and it can be quickly and easily sterilized by immersing for a few moments in boiling water. If Naïd shield cannot be found at the stores a sample pair will be sent by the C. E. Conner Company, 101 Franklin street, New York City, on receipt of 25 cents.

Miss Eloise Hersey, writer and lecturer, gave an interesting talk before the Gamma Delta Society of Boston University Friday afternoon in Jacob Sleeper hall, 688 Boylston street, on "The Educated Woman of Tomorrow." She defined education as "skill in the art of living." She said in part:

"The woman who loses her temper is not educated, no matter how many degrees she may have; and the woman who makes every one happier for her presence, is educated, though she boasts no degree. The educated woman must think, and will act as a machine, quickly, clearly, truly, but she must also know how to pity and love. With efficiency must be linked gracious manners, sincerity and elegance."

Wage-earning shall be considered an evil, but if women must be bread-winners they will accept it with high philosophy. The educated woman of tomorrow will have a high sense of honor.

She will regard the division of labor. Thus they who have been the mothers of the race shall become "the mothers of society."

HOLD UP ACCOUNT SYSTEM AT YARD

The attorney general has handed down an opinion that many of the changes made at the Boston navy yard by the installation of the new cost-accounting system are illegal. Volumes of correspondence have passed from the yard to the secretary of the navy and several trips have been made by the civilian experts to Washington to arrange to bring the system within the law.

The matter of making the changes lies within the province of the bureau of supplies and accounts, for it is under this bureau that the system was installed.

The work of installing it at the New York navy yard and the Philadelphia navy yard has been temporarily held up until the Boston navy yard system is made legal in every respect.

HEARING ON BANK CONTINUED TODAY

Committee of the Legislature Delves Deeply Into the Affairs of the Southbridge Institution.

The committee of the Legislature which is investigating the conditions of the Southbridge Savings Bank continues its hearing today at Southbridge as to the trustees of the bank.

Francis L. Chapin, cashier of the Southbridge National Bank and vice-president of the Southbridge Savings Bank, and John M. Cochran, an attorney and trustee of the savings bank, have been examined.

Mr. Chapin at the session Friday stated that ex-Treas. John A. Hall had carried deposits in the national bank varying from a few hundred dollars to $30,000. He said that this amount never caused him to have any suspicions of Hall, as he did not consider his income from the bank the only source of the deposits.

Mr. Chapin stated that in his opinion a proper audit of the books of the bank had not been made. He always considered Hall honest, as did Mr. Cochran.

TUFTS PRESIDENT FOOLS STUDENTS

President Frederick W. Hamilton of Tufts College won on April Fool's day jokes, in the opinion of the students, when he gravely turned the tables on them at chapel, after selections from a spasmodic alarm clock had interspersed the dignified exercises.

"The young men will please remain seated after the exercises are over," read President Hamilton from a slip of paper at the customary period for announcements. This was the only reference he made to the disturbance. After the service President Hamilton and the faculty filed out of chapel. The young men waited.

About a quarter of an hour somebody reminded his fellow students that it was still April Fool's day, whereupon there was a general scramble for the doors.

WORCESTER MAN AIDS EMPLOYEES

WORCESTER, Mass.—To show his gratitude to his faithful employees, Charles G. Stratton, president and treasurer of the Curtis Manufacturing Company, who is closing his business this week, has divided a fund, estimated at $7,000, among the workmen.

It is understood Mr. Stratton felt that he owed a debt of gratitude to the faithful employees who have helped him to build the thriving business of the Curtis Manufacturing Company, which is closing its doors only because its headquarters at 59 Webster street have been bought by the Worcester Electric Light Company, and he has therefore divided among the workmen a large amount of the profits of the business.

The company has been employing more than 100 men, and the amounts of Mr. Stratton's gifts to them are said to range from $25 to $110, depending upon the years of service with the company.

ATLANTIC FLEET SPLIT TO CRUISE

Reorganization of the Atlantic fleet of the United States navy for independent divisional cruises into foreign waters during seven months in the year and the assigning of Rear Admiral Seaton Schroeder, the commanding officer, to a seventeenth ship, thus making him independent of any division, are the chief features of a plan of the navy department, which is reported today.

At present the fleet consists of four divisions of four ships each, the vessel of the rear admiral commanding being attached to one of the divisions.

During the greater part of the year the divisions would be allowed to cruise and maneuver independently of one another, coming together under the commander-in-chief two months in the summer and three in the winter for combined operations.

MUSIC STUDENTS' PLAY IS MONDAY

Both faculty and students at the New England Conservatory are eagerly looking forward to the event as the music has been written by some of their number and the cast is also composed of them.

A feature of the play will be the scenic effects and the costumes to which special attention has been paid.

A full dress rehearsal will be held tonight in Jordan hall. A long list of New York and Boston patronesses is headed by Mrs. George B. Cortelyou, Mrs. Eben D. Jordan and Mrs. Henry M. Whitney.

NAVAL UNIFORM STYLES WANTED

The bureau of navigation of the navy department is in the market to receive plans for changes in the uniform of the naval enlisted force. Already a number of proposals have been made, but the bureau is desirous of getting more views. One of the topics of much importance to the seamen is what style hat or cap will be adopted.

Manufacturers, an officer at the Boston navy yard says, should take part in the competition, for it might mean a big naval contract if an idea were accepted.

THIRD RUSSELL TALK WITH NEW CLAIMANT

and finished at 12:10. A short conference lasting only a few minutes was held at 3 p. m. There were present besides the claimant and Mr. Russell, Miss Sarah E. Almy, cousin of and housekeeper for William C. Russell; Ferdinand B. Almy, her brother, a co-executor of the Daniel Russell estate; Thomas W. Proctor, John K. Berry and Eugene C. Upton, attorneys for the estate, and Messrs. Odlin and Cartwright, the new claimant's lawyers, and Robert Almy, brother of Sarah and F. B. Almy.

Considerable interest attaches today to the publication of a letter which was received in Boston last evening and which sheds new light on the case.

The letter was contained in an envelope bearing in the upper left-hand corner the business card of Berry & Upton, who are attorneys for the respondents in the now famous case.

It was addressed in typewritten to "Sheriff's Office, Dickinson, N. D." and the postmark shows it was mailed at Boston March 25, the day after the taking of testimony in the Russell case closed.

The letter was evidently a typewritten manifold copy, dated March 24, and was signed with a rubber stamp carrying the ink, "Berry & Upton, 166 Devonshire street, Boston, Mass."

The letter was received at the sheriff's office at Dickinson, N. D., where it was read and turned over to a citizen of that town, who at once placed it in another envelope and mailed envelope and contents to Senator Leslie A. Simpson, counsel for the first claimant.

In the letter as originally written the concluding sentence of the third paragraph was as follows: "We positively expect a finding that the claimant has not made out his case." Before the letter was sent out the word "positively" was obliterated by a blue pencil mark.

The text of the letter follows:

"After 115 days of hearing, the so-called Russell case closed today, except that on April 4 Mr. Nelson is to argue for the respondents, and on April 5 Mr. Simpson for the claimant. We think the claimant has failed to successfully deny that he is James Rusaw and has not shown that he is Daniel Blake Rusaw."

"During the past few weeks his handwriting experts have admitted themselves to be uncertain as to who wrote the letters produced by the Rusaws, accusing different persons of writing them. The few witnesses introduced to deny what New York and North Dakota witnesses have said about the claimant being Jim Rusaw have been weak and of little effect. We expect a finding that the claimant has not made out his case."

"We cannot go into further details at present and are able to write only one or two letters to each locality, hoping that the receivers of them will advise other witnesses or persons interested."

"Today the judge informed counsel for the recent California claimant that he should not consider such a claim until after that of James Rusaw, as we know him, has been disposed of. Yours truly, BERRY & UPTON, 166 Devonshire street, Boston, Mass."

LEGAL PRACTISE RULES DISCUSSED

ALBANY, N. Y.—An amendment to the rules of practice in the courts of this state to provide that the opening of both sides of a case shall be made to a jury before any testimony is taken, was among the proposals considered by 19 justices of the four appellate divisions of the state, who met here with a view to amending some rules believed to be inadequate and eliminating those considered obsolete.

The proposed change would require the defense to open its case immediately following the opening of the prosecution, in several states. The justices discussed better qualifications of attorneys.

ANNAPOLIS IS FIRST CITY IN COUNTRY TO BANISH LOCOMOTIVE

Decadent Capital of Maryland Uses Only Electricity While Horse Cars Still Run in New York.

OLD TOWN AWAKENS

It is somewhat anomalous that Annapolis, the decadent capital of Maryland, should be the first place in the United States of any consequence completely to banish the locomotive. No one can longer approach that city by either of its railroad connections with the world behind a steam locomotive, writes Robert Lincoln O'Brien in the Boston Transcript.

The boy of Annapolis who wants to see this ponderous machine will, in the near future, have to go some miles away from there to do it, perhaps most conveniently to Baltimore, which is 28 miles away. Just as in New York, the most aggressively urban city in the country, horse cars still linger, so in the sleepest of American towns the transition from the steam locomotive to electricity has most completely come; and this anomaly in each case is rather easy of explanation.

In the old days it was a long journey from Washington to Annapolis, and so few people made it.

What is the situation today? A long vestibuled trolley car makes the trip once an hour from early morning until the middle of the evening, in each direction, and it is often necessary to attach a trailer to accommodate the traffic. The cars start from the treasury building, in the heart of Washington, and from there to District Line they follow a regular streetcar course at only the usual speed, just as the Boston & Worcester cars are run to Chestnut Hill. Beyond District Line, on a private right of way, they make rapid time. On reaching Annapolis the journey is no longer ended at the little dingy old brick railroad station; the trolley weaves around the circled streets of the quaint town making an almost house to house delivery of its passengers. The total time consumed, all things considered, is shorter than it ever was before. And this is only one of Annapolis's experiments in electrification.

Some years after this spur line at right angles to the trunk lines was built into Annapolis, the advantage of a short direct route between the capital of the state and its greatest commercial city appealed to investors. Accordingly, the Annapolis Short Line was built, covering the hypothesis of the right angled triangle, of which the earlier roads had been the base and perpendicular. This line has been modernized, too. Electrification promptly reduced the running time on these trains to three quarters of an hour, while making the same number of stops, because of the greater promptness with which they now get under headway. Instead of once in two hours, the trains go every half hour, and each one carries as many cars as the traffic calls for. The conductor of an incoming train notes a good many people at a church convention on the way and tells the station master how many cars to add for the return trip.

They make the electric connections overhead by kite-shaped pantographs, like those used on the New York Central suburban trains. The Short line is still bringing in its freight behind locomotives, but is now perfecting arrangements for the transfer of that traffic to electricity, too, since the smoke and gases pouring out of the locomotives tend to coat the electric wires disconcertingly. Particularly is this the case in terminal and junction yards. The locomotive as thus on its way to become a curiosity in Annapolis.

BUILDER INVENTS ANTI-NOISE WALL

In an attempt to destroy the noise of printing machinery a New York City builder put up a party wall of hollow terra cotta blocks stuffed with mineral wool and found that his anti-noise device was a success, says the Los Angeles Times. The blocks are of the kind used in fireproof floors and partitions which have been known as good absorbers of sound waves, but this is the first test of them purely for that purpose. The mineral wool in the air spaces serves as a muffler.

CHICAGO Y. M. C. A. SEEKS A MILLION

CHICAGO—The Y. M. C. A. of Chicago is in the midst of a campaign to secure at least $350,000 in 12 days. The 500 workers expect that the amount will be surpassed before the time limit expires a week from today.

The funds now sought will more than complete a fund established two years ago by John G. Shedd, president of Marshall Field & Co., who guaranteed $100,000 for Y. M. C. A. purposes, $50,000 to be forthcoming if $600,000 was secured through other subscriptions and the remainder to be paid if the fund reached the $1,000,000 mark. The present campaign is undertaken to round out the $1,000,000.

FEDERAL SURPLUS IN MARCH. WASHINGTON—President Taft and his cabinet are very much pleased over the condition of the government finances. The monthly treasury statements show that the customs receipts for March, $33,722,880, were the largest by about $4,000,000 for any month since the new tariff law went into effect.

INCREASE FOR TEN THOUSAND. BALTIMORE—The Consolidation Coal Company has granted a 5 per cent increase to its miners. Over 10,000 men are affected in the West Virginia, western Maryland and Somerset regions of Pennsylvania.

APPEAL FOR NAPOLEON'S HOUSE. PARIS—Ferdinand Bec, the painter, announces that the house occupied by Napoleon at Elba, together with the furniture, is to be sold, and appeals for a fund to purchase and preserve them.

TICKET AGENTS END SESSION. HAVANA—The American Association of General Passenger and Ticket Agents closed its fifty-fifth annual convention with a ball given by the city council of Havana at the Commercial Club.

EASTERNERS FLOCK WEST. BELLE FOURCHE, S. D.—It is estimated that 35,000 families have come from the East in the past two years to make their homes in western South Dakota. Government estimates place the acreage open to settlement in the Pierre, Rapid City, Belle Fourche, Lemmon and Chamberlain districts at 5,000,000 acres.

EUROPE'S RULERS GET PLATO OLIVES. PARIS—Each of the sovereigns of Europe has just received from Athens several bottles of "Platonic" olives. This rather extraordinary name has been given the fruit because the olives were grown on a tree, in the shade of which, according to the Athenians, Plato, the philosopher, taught and wrote many of his works.

The tree is slightly more than 24 feet in diameter, near the ground. For many years recently it did not bear, but two years ago it furnished an abundant yield. Then its owner, who is very proud of his property and the legend connected with it, hit upon the idea of sending samples of its fruit to the various European rulers.

SOUTH TO BUILD MANY GOOD ROADS. Eight hundred miles of improved roads are to be undertaken by the Southern Appalachian Good Roads Association, reports the Manufacturers Record. Of these, 300 miles are to be in North Carolina. Poor roads are said to cost that state $10,000,000 a year.

An enormous number of tourists go to the Southern Appalachian region, but because of the poor roads of the highways in general they see but a small portion of it. The great system of roadways now proposed is planned to make that wonderful region one of the most attractive in all the world.

TELEPHONE ZONE STIRS HYDE PARK

HYDE PARK, Mass.—Hyde Park has begun organized opposition to that part of the recently announced schedule of telephone rates which places this town in a zone outside of Boston and leaves Quincy and Newton North, exchanges marked in the schedule as eight miles from the center of the zones, the distance at which Hyde Park is also situated, inside the Boston district.

The Business Men's Association was the first body to take up this opposition and a committee of 15 will be appointed by President F. W. Darling to appear before the state highway commission at the hearing on the rates and protest against this arrangement. The association has also voted to request the selectmen to have the town represented at the hearing by counsel.

Six candidates were elected to deacons' orders and six admitted on trial for ordination Sunday. The former pastor of the Mt. Vernon Baptist church of Lowell, the Rev. E. G. Wesleyan, now of Providence, after professing a change of faith, was received into the conference.

OPPOSE AMENDING CORPORATION TAX

WASHINGTON—The fight on the Senate amendment to the legislative appropriation bill that seeks to limit the publicity feature of the corporation tax was begun in the House Friday by Representative Bartlett (Dem., Ga.), when the conference report on the bill was brought in by Representative Tawney (Rep., Minn.).

Mr. Bartlett declared that the Senate had attempted to usurp the constitutional prerogatives of the House by legislation touching the revenues. He presented a resolution sending back the conference report to the Senate with the statement that the Senate had invaded the privileges in the House.

JAPANESE PRINTS NOT AUCTIONED

It was announced that a five days sale of a fine collection of Japanese prints was to take place at Messrs Sotheby, Wilkinson & Hodge. It is now reported, however, that the entire collection, the property of Ford G. Barclay, has been sold privately to an English client. The prints will, therefore, remain in this country. Specimens of the best periods of Japanese art are included in this collection, many of them being of the greatest interest both from a historical and artistic point of view, and some dating back to the latter part of the seventeenth century.

LOWELL WELCOMES ETCHER TO SUCCEED TO MASTER'S PLACE

Peculiarly Fitting That the Hornby Exhibition Should Be Held in House Where Whistler Was Born.

WORK GAINS PRAISE

LOWELL, Mass.—Art lovers of Lowell, the birthplace of James McNeil Whistler, have for the moment turned their attention from the master etcher, whom they have so delighted to honor as a native of this city, to that other young Lowell man who promises to succeed to the master's place in the world of art. Interest is centered in the exhibition now being held here of the work of Lester G. Hornby, the young etcher whose work has aroused such general notice, both here and on the continent.

It is particularly gratifying to Lowell people that an exhibition of Mr. Hornby's work should be held in the city of his birth, and that it should be housed in the early home of Whistler. Probably no person is more delighted at that than Mr. Hornby himself, however, for he is a great student and admirer of Mr. Whistler and is more pleased than otherwise to admit that his own work shows the effect of his study of the celebrated American.

Mr. Hornby is quick to declare that Whistler was greatly misunderstood. Such is not apt to befall Mr. Hornby, however, for the personality of this young man, who in years is little more than a boy, is such as to have brought him from the first the regard of all with whom he has come in contact. The fact that at the age of 27 he is one of the foremost etchers in the world, both in black and white and in color, has not apparently, affected his natural modesty or his love for the perhaps dull and unappreciative city which he calls his home.

The Whistler house, so called, is the home of the Lowell Art Association, and it was at the invitation of this body that Mr. Hornby brought his work to Lowell and placed it on view on the walls which also bear so many examples from the hand of the former master.

The exhibition is practically the same as that given by Mr. Hornby in Boston recently, and includes some 35 etchings, many of them in color, and some 30 pencil sketches of London. Added interest has been given it by the fact that Mr. Hornby, who has been in Lowell since the exhibition opened, has been constantly at the Whistler house to guide visitors about and explain much of interest concerning his work.

Among the etchings in color which have given rise to comment are "Cafe du Rond Point," Mr. Hornby's first work to be exhibited in the Paris salons, and "Marabout Tombs, Tunis." Mr. Hornby is to "do" Boston this year and left Lowell to take up his work there Friday. The Lowell exhibition will continue open until the middle of April.

NAVIGATION SURE FOR KANSAS CITY

Campaign for Million-Dollar River Fund Closes With the Amount Oversubscribed and More Pledged.

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—This city's campaign for practical navigation of the Missouri river was brought to a successful close at midnight, March 31. Bona fide subscribers to the number of 1,177,283 shares in the Kansas City Missouri River Navigation Company were in hand at the close of a 30-day campaign by all the trade and civic organizations of the city. Over 80,000 shares have been pledged in addition, but not yet signed. Subscribers to preferred stock now number over 4500.

Walter S. Dickey, president of the navigation company, said at the close of the campaign:

"This is not an enterprise of one man or one set of men. Commercial, financial and public utility interests, together with professional men, wage-earners and home owners are shareholders in varying amounts and supply the strongest possible backing. Few other cities in America could have accomplished this feat, so quickly and with such evidence of civic spirit. Kansas City has set the mark for community control of river transportation. Its citizens never allow private interests to triumph over public welfare. Under the plans of the directors of this company practical and continued navigation of the Missouri river is assured within one year."

COMMISSION REPORT OPPOSES BORROWING FOR SCHOOL NEEDS

The first result of the Boston finance commission report on the investigation of school expenditures in this city is contained in a long communication which has been sent to the legislative committee on cities at the State House, in which it is asked that the Legislature refuse to authorize the borrowing of the amounts requested by the school committee.

The finance board also recommends to the committee on constitutional amendments the passage of the constitutional amendment to allow municipalities to take more land than is necessary for the construction or alteration of highways.

With regard to the latter desired amendment the commission says:

"The resolve seems to protect adequately individual rights of property; and the adoption of the amendment would enable Boston and other cities to undertake public works which are now impossible on account of the expense that would be incurred under the existing law."

The commission says that House bill 441, authorizing a large increase of municipal indebtedness for new elementary schools, should not pass, because it would allow the school committee to borrow $1,000,000 a year for three years, whereas the commission believes that $500,000 a year would be enough to borrow, the remainder to be met by taxes.

The commission goes into the history of loans for school purposes during the last 15 years, with a view to demonstrating that the practice of borrowing for school accommodations has largely increased the municipal debt and interest charges, and that as a practice it cannot be too soon abandoned for economic reasons.

OREGON CONSERVATION PLAN WORKING OUT SUCCESSFULLY

What the stand of the people of Oregon is on conservation seems to have been a subject of some misapprehension, particularly in the East where the existence in that state of a state conservation commission is not widely known, or the fact that a conservation policy has been adopted by the citizens of the state through their representatives in the Legislature.

There is a state law in Oregon making beneficial use of the basis, measure and limit of all rights to the use of water for power development to a period of 40 years, subject to renewal under certain restrictions. Whether or not this has a deterrent effect on enterprise—as opponents of conservation have said would be the effect of such legislation—appears from the fact that in the last 10 months of 1909 about 500 applications for permits to appropriate water were filed with the state engineer, representing projects the aggregate cost of which would be $30,000,000. Water right applicants have paid to the state a sum which fully meets all the expenses of the state engineer's offices, including the cost of the surveys made in connection with the determination of old water rights.

For the purpose of preventing speculative filings and to secure some return to the people for the use of public property, a law providing for a power tax was passed by the last Oregon Legislature. That this does not discourage good faith development is shown by the fact that permits have been issued for the use of more than 25,000,000 horsepower.

Additional light on the sentiment of the people of that state regarding conservation is thrown by Paul S. Seelye of Portland, Ore., of the Northwest Company, who sets forth what he believes to be the view of conservation entertained by the fair minded and unprejudiced public of the Northwest. He says: "Ex-Secretary of the Interior Garfield has many times set forth the view of those leading the conservation movement, the more recent of his utterances being included in his testimony before the committee of inquiry into the Pinchot-Ballinger controversy. Mr. Pinchot has also set forth at length the true view on this question and under date of Oct. 4 last in a letter addressed to Colonel Higginson of Boston which was copied in the press showed that there is no intention upon the part of conservation leaders to have the government tie up all natural resources."

"The attitude of this state toward conservation is evidenced by its establishment of a conservation commission, which is planning the work of conserving the state's resources. Furthermore, the last Legislature passed a new water law containing many provisions similar to those advocated by Mr. Pinchot and his supporters for the control of federal waters. Since the passage of this law, applications have been filed with the state engineer for appropriations contemplating an investment of $30,000,000 in the course of their development. This would certainly seem to show that men with capital feel much more secure to proceed with legitimate development work when there is a proper regulation of the state's resources."

KEEN MILWAUKEE MAYORALTY CONTEST DECIDED NEXT WEEK

MILWAUKEE—The hottest city campaign in many years in Milwaukee will come to a close next Tuesday, when the voters will choose among three candidates for mayor, each of whom seems to have about the same chance of victory.

The men who are in the field are, for the Democrats, Vincenz I. Schoenecker, a member of one of the old Milwaukee German families and city treasurer; for the Republicans, Dr. John M. Beffel, hitherto unknown as a politician, but who has made a striking speaking campaign, and for the Social Democrats, Emil Seidel, ex-alderman-at-large, who was the choice of his party by a strict party referendum ballot.

Schoenecker has for nearly two years been in grooming for the race as the successor to Mayor D. S. Rose, who is now much on the lecture platform. This year, however, Republicans are not so badly split as in other years. The socialists, however, have been making great strides. Though their strict party membership is less than 8000, they have polled nearly 20,000 in past elections.

BOSTON THEATERS NEXT WEEK.

Shubert—Miss Blanche Bates.
Miss Blanche Bates comes to the Shubert theater Monday evening in "The Fighting Hope," a drama in three acts by William J. Hurlbut. Miss Bates passed the greater part of last season in New York in this drama, which, though by a dramatist who has newly entered the field, evidently possesses the qualities that go to make up a popular success.

Miss Bates assumes the character of a young wife whose husband has been sentenced for forgery which she does not believe he committed. She seeks employment as secretary in the office of the man whom she believes guilty. In an effort to discover the proof she finds that her husband really was guilty, and moreover that he was unworthy of her. Incidentally she also discovers that the man by whom she is employed is one whom she loved when she was a girl. The play is accounted an exceedingly strong one, and one that offers Miss Bates full play for her emotional talents. David Belasco produced the play with all the care for which he is reputed.

The exceptionally strong company surrounding Miss Bates includes Milton Sills, John W. Cope, Wedgewood Nowell and Miss Loretta Wells.

Castle Square—"Boys of Company B."

The John Craig players at the Castle Square theater appear next week in "The Boys of Company B," a play of youthful adventure in a military troupe, written by Rida Johnson Young. Its plot recounts the adventures of Tony Allen, a manly and brave young fellow whose struggle is made somewhat hard because of lack of money, but he succeeds in getting his wealthy uncle to take him into camp for summer duty, and then the fun flies fast and furious. There is much funmaking of the kind that may be expected when a lot of lively young men get together, and sentimental interest is not lacking. John Craig will play the hero, and Mary Young will appear as Madge Blake, while Donald Meek, George Hassell, Walter Walker, Bert and Wilfred Young, Al Roberts, Gertrude Binley and Mabel Colcord will all have important and congenial roles.

Globe—"The Man of the Hour."

George Broadhurst's interesting and long popular drama of politics and sentiment, "The Man of the Hour," is the attraction at the Globe theater beginning Monday evening. The play shows the successful combatting of a political ring by an honest young mayor, who is elected by a ring with the expectation that he would be a tool in their hands.

Boston—"The Yankee Prince."

George L. Cohan's popular song play, "The Yankee Prince," comes to the Boston theater Monday evening for an engagement of one week, with Tom Lewis featured in the cast. The piece has already been seen here and liked.

Vaudeville.

At the American Music Hall next week the leading feature will be the strong one-act play called "The Operator," in which a small western tank station is shown with the telegrapher standing bravely at his post. William Wolf and company will offer a miniature comic opera, Rinaldo will display his mastery of the violin, Cartmell and Harris will dance and sing and the Moshers and Hayes will show their skill on the bicycle.

Mrs. La Salle Corbell Pickett has proved so interesting in her reminiscences of war times that she will remain for a second week at Keith's, giving a talk on "The Friends of Yesterday." Lincoln, Grant, Lee and Jackson. Mlle. Dazie will give a dancing pantomime, Carson and Willard will appear in a sketch, W. C. Fields will give his juggling act, the six Musical Notes will appear, the Amoros sisters will give a sketch and Wilson and Heloise will exhibit their acrobatic skill.

Createore Concert.

To the Colonial theater tomorrow evening comes Createore and his Italian band of 60 picked musicians to give their first concert in a year. The versatile conductor will give his best selections in the program which he has chosen for this occasion, which will be tendered as a complimentary benefit to Louis Burkhardt, the well-known advertising manager of the Hollis Street, Park, Colonial, Tremont and Boston theaters. The selections for the evening by band and soloists will be as follows:

March, "Tannhauser".....Wagner
Overture, "Spring".....Goldmark
Valse, op. 64, No. 1.....Chopin
Irish Caprice.....Createore
"Dance of the Serpents".....Boccalini
"Ronde d'Amour".....Von Westerhant
Cornet Solo, "Serenade".....Schubert
Signor Demitris
Grand Selection from "La Traviata".....Verdi
Sigs. Demitris, Rossi, Curti and Volpe.

Plays That Hold Over.

Miss Billie Burke's popularity won with Boston audiences two years ago when she first came here as the leading woman with John Drew continues as marked as ever in "Mrs. Dot," the new comedy by W. Somerset Maugham, in which she is appearing at the Hollis Street theater. Miss Burke is in this play a fascinating young widow who straightens out a rather discouraging sentimental entanglement much after the method used in "Much Ado About Nothing."

A feature of "The Man from Home" that adds greatly to the enjoyment of the audience is the fact that the play is well cast in every role. From William Hodge, the star, as the shrewd Daniel Voorhees, Pike from Kokomo, Henry Jewett as the distinguished Russian grand duke in disguise, and Miss Madeline Louis as the ward of Pike down to the most unimportant characters the roles are invariably well cast. Augustus Thomas' latest play, "The Harvest Moon," is proving of general interest at the Colonial, for not only does it develop a theme of fine ethical significance, but it also offers all the features of humor and pathos that are to be expected in a drama that is to interest the general theatergoer. George Nash, Miss Adelaide Nowak, John Saville and Miss Jennie Eustice head the company.

"The Man Who Owns Broadway," in which Raymond Hitchcock is playing the leading rôle at the Tremont theater, is a rather original musical comedy in many ways in that it shows the author making fun of the conventions of melodrama. The company is a lively one, as it has to be to play in a Cohan play entertainment. Miss Flora Zabelle, Stanley Forde, Scott Welsh and George Lydecker appear in the support.

Lew Fields has in "Old Dutch" a character that shows his emotional ability as well as his more generally acknowledged comic powers. He is funniest when he is in the greatest difficulties as a kind-hearted inventor who is compelled to work out his board because his passport and money have been appropriated by an adventurer. Victor Herbert wrote the music for the piece and a clever company interprets it.

Announcements.

Miss Fritz Scheff returns to the Hollis Street theater on April 11 for a short engagement in "The Prima Donna," the fine opera made for her by Victor Herbert and Henry Blossom. The first performance will be tendered as a benefit to the young men in the box office.

Charles Klein's "The Third Degree," which Bostonians saw for the first time last season, returns to the Colonial on April 11 for a limited engagement. Miss Helen Ware still gives her striking impersonation of the young wife who stands by her young husband through family and police persecutions.

The New Theater Company of New York begins an engagement of two weeks at the Shubert theater on April 16 in "The School for Scandal," "Twelfth Night," "The Winter's Tale," "Sister Beatrice," "Don," "The Nigger," "Strife" and "The Cottage in the Air." Createore and his band are at the Colonial Sunday evening in concert.

ACTORS' FUND BENEFIT.

Less than three weeks remains before the benefit to aid the work of the Actors' Fund of America which will be given at the Boston theater on the afternoon of Friday, April 21. The playgoer will get perhaps the biggest bargain of the theatrical season, for that week will see the visit to Boston of some of the most popular stars of the year, and all have volunteered for the occasion. At the same time the man or woman who buys a ticket will feel that he is helping along a well-deserving philanthropy. The occasion is under the direction of the Theater Managers' Association of Boston, and all the houses are cooperating in making it a success, with A. L. Levering of the Boston theater in charge of the benefit performance.

Lock to Guard Pilgrim Monument

Move made to stay souvenir hunters at Cape Cod.

BRONZE LOCKS AND KEYS.

Custodian will have charge of both entrances and will be present with the visitors.

PROVINCETOWN, Mass.—Two heavy locks are to be placed on each entrance to the Cape Cod Pilgrim monument on Town Hill. This precaution is taken by the Cape Cod Pilgrim Monument Association to prevent souvenir hunters from getting into the monument and carrying away relics. The keys to the locks will be placed in the hands of the custodian who always is to be present when visitors go to the top of the monument.

There are two entrances. A lock will be placed on each set of folding doors. The locks were made by army engineers in Boston. They are heavy and are made of bronze.

The monument, which stands 252 feet 7 inches high and cost $90,000, is to be turned over to the Association by Lieut. Col. Edward Burr, Corps of Engineers, U. S. A., under whose direction it was built, next August. Everything is now complete except the installation of doors and shutters. The government will take several months in this work to give the wood a chance to swell. President Roosevelt laid the corner stone for the monument. President Taft has signified his intention of being present at the dedication.

HARLEM TO HAVE LOFTY THEATER

John H. Springer, Who Is Now Lessee From the Gould Estate, Plans New Eight-Story Structure.

NEW YORK—Harlem in the near future will have the tallest theater building in this city and perhaps in the country with the exception of the Colonial theater building in Boston, which is 10 stories high.

The enterprise is that of John H. Springer, who is planning the construction of an eight-story theater and office building at the northwest corner of Seventh avenue and One Hundred and Twenty-third street. According to the architect's estimate it will cost $650,000. The theater section will be arranged with a seating capacity of 2300 and will have three tiers of boxes and two balconies. Mr. Springer has conducted the Grand Opera house for a number of years under a lease from the Gould estate, which reverts this year to Cohan & Harris.

RECRUITS ARE DISAPPOINTED.

NEW ORLEANS—It is reported that about 100 men recruited for the Nicaraguan insurgents are keenly disappointed at the abandonment of the expedition.

PILGRIM MONUMENT.

Giant shaft at Provincetown, Mass., cost $90,000 and will be dedicated next August.

A MARKET HOUSE FOR DES MOINES

DES MOINES, Ia.—By a big majority the people of Des Moines in the recent city election decided in favor of a central market house, to be located on the present site of the city hall. Although the mayor's fight was the closest in the history of the city, the voters did not forget the market house proposition.

ST. PAUL ROAD IMPROVES.

ST. PAUL—Contracts amounting approximately to $2,000,000 have been awarded and work started on the last three stretches of construction that will give the St. Paul railroad a double track between Chicago and the twin cities. The old tunnel at Tunnel City is also to be improved and used again.

MARYLAND NEGRO DEPRIVED OF VOTE

Bill Passed by All Night Session of Senate, Where Balloting Is Done on Strict Party Lines.

ANNAPOLIS, Md.—Following an all-night session of the Maryland Senate, the Digges bill, which prohibits negroes voting in Maryland, was adopted by a strict party vote. The Republicans tried to filibuster in the hope of defeating the measure or at least retarding its passage, but without avail.

The bill was introduced late Friday night, just as a very routine session was being brought to an end. It was promptly referred to a committee with orders to report forthwith which, following a brief recess of the Senate, was done. The bill was then put through the routine of legislation and three hours and five minutes from the time that it was handed over the clerk's desk it had been passed.

The constitutional amendment which will permit the white voters to pass on whether or not a negro owning real property valued at $500, who has paid taxes on it for two years, may vote, has not yet been drafted.

PACKERS TO BUILD ALASKA CANNERY

ASTORIA, Ore.—The Columbia River Packers Association, which has operated canneries on the Columbia river and at Nushagak river, Bristol bay, Alaska, for several years, is to erect a new cannery at Anchorage bay, in Chignik bay, on the south side of the Alaskan peninsula.

The plant, which is to be a "one line" cannery with a capacity of about 50,000 cases a season, is to be located on property taken up by James Osmond, who has been a pilot in the revenue-cutter service of that district for a number of years and who is to be the superintendent of the new cannery.

ALASKAN TRADE TO BE RESUMED

PORTLAND, Ore.—After years of voluntary surrender of the trade of Alaskan seaports, Portland is to establish steamer communication with St. Michaels and Fairbanks this summer, the steamer St. Helens having been secured for the purpose.

This steamer is owned by Dodge & Co. of this city and will be put on the run the first of June. She has been plying between Portland and points on the coast of California, in the transportation of lumber, but the dull season in this line is now about to begin and the trade of the Alaska ports to revive.

NEW HAVEN SCHEDULE CHANGES.

AN AERIAL CABLE TO HAUL FREIGHT

Fulton County (Pa.), With No Railroad, Plans Substitute to Connect Ft. Loudon and McConnellsburg.

HARRISBURG, Pa.—Fulton county continues to be unique in Pennsylvania in having no railroad, but plans are afoot there for having a company chartered that will build and operate an aerial cable freight line from McConnellsburg, the county seat, to Ft. Loudon, Franklin county, where a railroad can be reached. An automobile passenger line may be substituted for the present stage line.

The tramway will be eight miles long and will carry all kinds of freight in big cages. It is said that it is one of the most difficult pieces of engineering in this line ever attempted.

VERMONTERS EAT SUGAR, AND DANCE

The annual sugaring-off party of the Vermont Association of Boston was held in the Mechanics building, Friday evening, with more than 7000 men and women present. There was real maple syrup on real snow, both especially brought from Vermont for the occasion; there were doughnuts, pickles, popcorn and apples. Paul Revere hall was set aside for the dancing which began shortly after 7 o'clock. About 9 o'clock came the dinner of good things to eat from "home."

MISS SEARS GIVES UP LONG JAUNT

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.—Miss Eleanor Sears, the Boston girl who started from Burlingame to walk to Delmonte, a distance of 108 miles, abandoned the attempt late Friday at Gilroy after having covered 65 miles in 24 hours, which is considered remarkably good going. The direct cause of Miss Sears giving up was the inability of her pacemaker, Stewart Lowry, to continue the journey on account of a business engagement, which required his presence in San Francisco.

COLLEGIATE LEAGUE TO DISCUSS CIVICS IN ANNUAL CONVENTION

NEW YORK—The annual convention of the Intercollegiate Civic League will be held in this city April 5 and in Washington on the following day. On the first day there is to be a luncheon followed by an afternoon meeting at Columbia University, where the delegates will be the guests of the Columbia Politics Club.

R. S. Hoar of the Harvard Political Club will describe the work of that organization in presenting bills before the Massachusetts Legislature, and especially a bill concerning party conventions. R. A. Taft, son of President Taft, and the president of Yale City Government Club, will read a paper describing his experiences as a watcher at the New York municipal elections.

In the evening a dinner will be given at the University Club. The speakers will be Lloyd C. Griscom, formerly ambassador to Italy and now chairman of the Republican county committee; Thomas M. Osborne, president of the Democratic League; George McAnny, president of the Borough of Manhattan; Seth Low, Dr. D. J. Burrell and William M. Chabourne. Charles M. Jessup will be toastmaster.

After the dinner the delegates will take a night train to Washington. The President will receive them in the White House at 10 o'clock, April 6. They will then be received by Senator Root, Speaker Cannon and Attorney-General Wickham.

NEW YORK'S FIRE PROTECTION PLAN

NEW YORK—The installation of the high-pressure fire service in seven districts of the city has been so successful that another district, bounded by Chambers street, East river, Maiden lane, Nassau street and Park row, is to be established. The district embraces what is known as the "Swamp," where leather, oils, paints and other inflammable articles and materials are extensively dealt in and stored. The cost of the extension will be about $275,000.

NEW YORK CALLS DENVER PASTOR.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y.—Grace Methodist church of New York city has extended a call to the Rev. Dr. Reiser of Denver, who has accepted.

NEW PENNSYLVANIA SENATE PANEL WILL BE SEEN IN LONDON

LONDON—Edwin A. Abbey's new decorative panel, "Valley Forge," which will be exhibited at the academy, is designed for the Senate chamber at Harrisburg, Pa. It represents Baron Steuben drilling a dozen Continentals in ragged uniforms of blue, brown, buff and red. The soldiers are in two files, those in front kneeling to fire their muskets and those behind loading.

It is a picturesque awkward squad, with a sentinel behind in a field of snow and the baron in a German uniform of blue and red, with two officers of the revolutionary army standing beside him. Washington himself is not in the picture, but the house which was used as his headquarters is seen in the distance.

There will be a picture of "Gettysburg" as a companion piece in the Senate chamber. "Penn's Treaty with the Indians," a much larger panel, for the House of Representatives, will be exhibited at the academy, but not the big picture of "The Signing of the Declaration of Independence," which will not be finished until autumn.

Another decorative work, symbolizing the rise and triumph of Pennsylvania as a commonwealth, is approaching completion; at least five or six of these works will be sent to Harrisburg before the end of the year.

GENERAL BOWMAN NEW MILITIA HEAD

PHILADELPHIA—The promotion of Brig.-Gen. Wendell F. Bowman, commander of the first brigade, to be the major-general in command of the entire militia of Pennsylvania, and that of Col. Charles M. Clement to be a brigadier general, establish new precedents in the appointment of general officers by Governor Stuart.

General Bowman was actually the junior brigadier, as commission dates go, but he was a corporal in the civil war at the age of 15. Colonel Clement's promotion causes even greater surprise.

ST. PAUL INVITES MR. ROOSEVELT. ST. PAUL—Col. Theodore Roosevelt has been invited by cable to speak here before the original Roosevelt Club when he makes his trip West in August to speak at Cheyenne, Wyo. He made a tentative engagement to speak here before he started on his hunting trip.

STEEL CORPORATION DECREE IN FAVOR OF SUNDAY OBSERVANCE

NEW YORK—E. H. Gary, chairman of the finance committee of the United States Steel Corporation, has sent a telegram to the presidents of the constituent companies which should radically curtail Sunday work at all works controlled by the corporation. As the corporation has 200,000 men on its payrolls, the change is national and sweeping in effect.

The subsidiary companies include the American Bridge Company, American Sheet & Tin Plate Company, American Steel & Wire Company, Carnegie Steel Company, Clairton Steel Company, Federal Steel Company, Lake Superior Consolidated Iron Mines, National Tube Company, Shelby Steel Company, Union Steel Company. Acting with Chairman Gary in the matter are President W. E. Corey and Vice-President W. B. Dickson. The telegram reads:

Mr. Corey, Mr. Dickson and I have lately given much serious thought to the subject-matter of resolution passed by the finance committee April 23, 1907, concerning Sunday or seventh day labor. Mr. Corey has written you on the subject within a day or two. The object of this telegram is to say that all of us expect and insist that hereafter the spirit of the resolution will be observed and carried into effect. There should and must be no unnecessary deviation without first taking up the question with our finance committee and asking for a change of the views of the committee, which probably will not under any circumstances be secured.

COMMISSION FARM WINS.

DELL RAPIDS, S. D.—As the result of a city election here Anthony, Kan., must surrender its distinction as the smallest town in the United States to be governed by commission. Dell Rapids has a population of 1300 against Anthony's 2500. The commission plan won here with a majority of 57.

NEW EXHIBITION OF ORCHIDS.

An exhibition of orchids and other plants is announced today to be held at Horticultural hall on May 26, 27, 28, 29 and 30 by the Massachusetts Horticultural Society. It will include displays of orchid plants in bloom, cut orchids of rare sorts, large bunches of orchids arranged with ferns and other foliage, shrubs and climbers in bloom, and many other plants.

Stocks Close Strong After Dull Session

TRADING IN STOCKS OF SMALL VOLUME IN BOTH MARKETS

Indications That Big Interests Are Waiting Until Court Decisions Are Rendered Before Venturing.

TELEPHONE REACTS

That this is a waiting market is plainly evident. New York stocks have been dragging along this week in a way to indicate that until some developments occur to stimulate either buying or selling even the professional trader, who has the "habit" and must be doing something every day, is not inclined to commit himself heavily on either side of the market. It has been contended that stocks are heavily oversold. If this is true it would not take much buying to send prices much higher. But if the big interests are unwilling for a bull campaign until after certain legislation at Washington has been determined upon or some important court decisions have been rendered the average trader knows enough to keep close to shore as it is useless to bull stocks without the support of the big men. There is strong expectation that the American Tobacco decision will be rendered Monday.

Some of the large commission houses are inclined to be bearish for the time being and have cautioned their customers to keep out of the market. This largely accounts for the small volume of business the New York exchange has had for some days past. In Boston the market has been active but weak, principally on account of the big slump in some of the copper shares. The local stocks showed some improvement today. American Telephone & Telegraph was the weak feature on both the New York and Boston exchanges today. In Boston it opened unchanged at 137 and then reacted to around 134. The fluctuations in New York stocks were confined principally to fractions. Hocking Valley preferred opened up 3/4 at 99 1/2 and before the close was selling around 101.

There was not much doing in United States Steel. The common opened unchanged at 82 1/2 and vibrated within a fractional range. Union Pacific opened 3/4 at 183 1/2 and advanced about 184. Reading at 164 1/2 was unchanged at the opening and improved fractionally. Western Union opened at 73 1/2 and sold off about a point.

The Boston market was very quiet. Arizona Commercial opened up 1/2 at 19 1/2, improved to 20 and then sagged off. Amalgamated Copper advanced nearly a point over last night's closing price and other coppers were inclined to be firmer, but advances were mainly fractional. A good deal of Mass Mining was traded in around 5 1/4 to 4 1/4.

MARCH OUTPUT OF NEW SECURITIES

Our records of new security issues in the United States for March are in some respects without parallel in our financial annals. The railroads alone have put out more than $200,000,000 of bonds, fully $40,000,000 of notes and upward of $20,000,000 of stocks, so that the total for the railroads will exceed a quarter of a billion dollars, contrasted with only a little over $30,000,000 in the same month a year ago.

Industrial financing has also been very active, although here stock offerings have predominated, the total being well over $50,000,000 against fully $40,000,000 in bonds and less than $10,000,000 in notes. The grand total for March promises to approximate $380,000,000, whereas in 1909 the output was only $75,000,000.

MARCH REPORT SHOWS BIG GAIN

Massachusetts Electric Companies Earnings Increased Over Eleven Per Cent as Compared With Year Ago.

The operating companies of the Massachusetts Electric Companies made an increase of $80,000, or 11.6 per cent, in gross earnings during March. This is the largest percentage increase and the second largest actual increase for any month thus far in the current fiscal year, October returning an actual gain in gross of $90,400.

For the six months beginning with October and ending with March the actual gain and percentage has been as follows:

	Gross Inc.	P. C.
October	$40,400	10.25
November	54,720	10.50
December	20,475	5.70
January	50,062	10.00
February	20,200	6.15
March	90,400	11.00
Total	$300,000*	9.00

*Including other earnings estimated.

The above increases were on top of increases ranging from 3.61 per cent to 4.40 per cent in the same months of the previous year, with the exception of October and November of 1908, which showed deficits. The total gain in the corresponding six months of the previous year was only about $53,500, whereas the six months closed last Thursday showed an actual passenger gain of approximately $285,000.

Including other earnings the total increase in gross for the first six months of the current year was approximately $300,000, or 9 per cent, bringing the total for the six months up to $3,685,879. With the exception of the 1906 half-year the gross increase for the six months just ended was the largest in the history of the companies.

Fig. yr.	Total gross.	Increase.	P. C.
1909	3,385,780	35,515	1.5
1908	3,332,340	91,104	2.7
1907	3,241,142	133,749	4.3
1906	3,087,393	329,985	11.9

*Partly estimated.

It is rather early yet to estimate net earnings, but it is safe to say that the showing in net will be as favorable as that in gross. Maintenance expenditures have been liberal but the saving in actual operating expenses has been very noticeable, which is a reflection of the large sums which have been spent on the properties for construction and reconstruction, amounting to the close of last year to about $20,000,000.

FORD—The Car of Satisfactory Service for Every Use for Business, for Pleasure, in City and Country

Complete As Shown,

Including Magneto, Top, Windshield, Speedometer, Gas Lamps, Generator, Three Oil Lamps, Horn and Tools.

Henry Ford, the manufacturer of this car, needs no introduction. He has been the greatest factor in the development of the automobile industry, greater than any other man in the world, and has always stood for all that is best in automobile building—for quality of materials, for advanced ideas in practical designing, and for common-sense, durable, efficient construction. This has been the position held by Mr. Ford for so many years that just the imprint Ford on a car has acquired a value equivalent to the name Sterling on silver. Each is a guaranty of genuine merit.

Look at this car. The Ford Model T Car is the latest successful product of this successful manufacturer. It is a five-passenger car. It is a comfortable car. From the viewpoint of artistic design, it is a handsome car. Best of all, it is a Ford. Fifteen thousand cars of this Model sold prior to January 1st, 1910, proved its genuine merit. The car has made good on all the hills between the Atlantic and the Pacific—it has won out in all the sand from Florida to Washington. It has thoroughly demonstrated its worth over all sorts of conditions of roads in all seasons of the year.

Get a demonstration. While you ride in it let the car prove its goodness.

AUTOISTS SHOULD NOT FORGET ROAD COURTESIES DUE

Drivers of Motor Cars Urged to Remember They Are Gentlemen and Act So
Under All Conditions.

Automobilists are more or less familiar with the rules of the road; the zealousness of police officials has forcibly impressed upon some of them the laws of the road; but few, comparatively, know and practise the courtesies of the road.

Yet an appreciation and exchange of courtesies on public highways is more essential to an amicable understanding among all classes of road users than mere observance of rules that are backed by law. Automobilists who comply with such rules simply because they are law and not in deference to the safety and comfort of others are far from possessing the true spirit of road courtesy.

Every driver is aware that when he exceeds speed limits he is liable to arrest; if he sees a policeman he slackens his speed to avoid arrest; but should the presence of an officer of the law be necessary to enforce ordinary courtesy in the use of thoroughfares that belong to all citizens in common?

An automobilist, first of all, ought to be a gentleman. But is the act of a gentleman to dash promiscuously through crowded streets, frightening women and children, and placing every one along his course in peril of greater or less degree?

Nor is it the act of a gentleman to drive a car madly past another in the road and then slow down in front so that the occupants of the latter either must swallow the dust stirred up by the former or slow down to escape the nuisance. Yet this is no uncommon practice.

If a member of the club persists in placing his feet upon the library table it is not necessary to call a policeman to make him behave like a gentleman. The example of his clubmates will effect the desired result, or at most, a hint will bring him to his senses. No more should the humiliating "holdup" of a country constable be necessary to teach automobilists how to act.

A gentlemanly deference to the comfort and convenience of other road users—to drivers of automobiles, to drivers of horses and to pedestrians—would bring about a mutual understanding that soon would eliminate the antipathy toward automobilists as a class that is still prevalent in many parts of the country.

Famous Auto Race Driver
Who Makes Headquarters
At Thomas Boston Branch

GEORGE SCHUSTER.

Winner of the New York-Paris trophy in Thomas car.

SCHUSTER COMES TO BOSTON BRANCH

BUFFALO, N. Y.—An automobile driver, known the world over, and probably the most talked about, is to locate permanently in Boston, making his residence there after April 1. He is George Schuster, the man who drove an American made car to victory in a 22,000-mile endurance contest from New York to Paris, a race which was looked upon as impossible of completion, starting as it did in mid-winter. Schuster had the courage to put his Thomas car over the course, always keeping ahead of his competitors, across Siberia, and finally finishing ahead and winning by a 26-day margin.

Mr. Schuster had signed a contract with the Boston Thomas branch; but it was a fight on their part to secure his signature as three other concerns were after him. Mr. Schuster knows the territory thoroughly, having been with C. S. Henshaw during 1905 and 1906, and that more than anything else probably caused him to take up his residence in Boston. He has gained experience of unlimited value to the automobile industry, and he will take up a position where he can be of the greatest service to automobilists at large.

FARMER DIGS UP MONEY FOR FORD

Western Agent Has Peculiar Experience in Selling an Automobile to Tiller of the Soil.

While the financial stringency is long since past, money is still being hoarded. Fred Chandler, the Ford agent at North Yakima, tells a story where the withheld was planted and where a highly detectable fruit grew upon it.

One day his telephone bell rang. "Say, do you sell the Ford car?" asked the voice, and he answered in the affirmative.

"It's the same car that finished first in that race from New York to Seattle?" Again the affirmative.

"Well, I want to see one. I'm thinking of buying one."

Chandler, the next day, took a spin out to the address and found the voice belonged to a farmer whose crops had been large and profitable. The farmer looked the car over, listened to Chandler's talk, and then said:

"Would you mind giving us a little spin?" meaning himself and his interested wife. Chandler surely was willing. He took them down a stretch and when they arrived at the farmhouse the Ford was sold.

"You talk to the woman a while," and the farmer was off. A short while later Chandler looked around and he saw the old farmer near the barn digging with a shovel. Presently he returned and handed $1025 to Chandler, the price of the car.

"That farmer thinks the seed he planted bore the best fruit ever," says Manager H. P. Rice, of the local Ford branch, who thinks the story a great one.

NOTES

The photograph of Sir E. H. Shackleton which appeared in this paper Friday was furnished by C. S. Henshaw, New England agent of the Thomas car which appears in the picture and which was placed at the disposal of the famous explorer by Mr. Henshaw.

Even though the entries for the Quaker City Motor Club's annual roadability run to Atlantic City on April 30 do not close until April 27, Secretary Harbach had received 34 entries for the event up to the night of March 26. The later entries include the following drivers and cars: Evans Church, White; D. K. Schultz, Oldsmobile; D. K. Worley, Buick; R. E. Ross, Oldsmobile; G. W. Hallahan, Stearns; T. B. Smith, Mitchell; W. C. Longstreth, Alco; F. Shaw, Locomobile; Dr. I. M. Koch, Peerless, and P. F. Siefert, Cadillac.

GLIDDEN SCOUT NEARS CHICAGO

CHICAGO—Frank X. Zirbie and the scouts who have been traversing the trail outlined for this year's Glidden tour, in the Mitchell Ranger, expect to reach here, their final destination, before April 5. This information was received from Kansas City, where the party was entertained a few days ago.

Since leaving Dallas, Tex., the turning point of the proposed tour, the scouts had some unexpectedly bad roads. Everything was lovely until they reached Oklahoma. They drove through a hard sandstorm from Anadarko to the Canadian river, and then were compelled to shovel sand from the wheels for a mile after crossing the bridge over that stream. The party reached Oklahoma City begrimed, but plucky and determined to finish the scouting expedition as per schedule.

LITTLE DEMOT ATTRACTS MANY

The Demotcar Sales Company of which A. N. Locke is manager announces that it is doing a very good business in the Demot and Parry cars, of which it is the New England agent. The Demot is a little runabout which sells for $550 and the Parry touring car sells for about $550.

The Demotcar was built to fill the need for a small, light car for everyday service; not a cheap imitation of a big car, but a real automobile that will give comfort, speed, and style at a low price.

The motor has two opposed horizontally placed cylinders, 3 1/4 in. bore by 3 1/2 in. stroke. It produces 10 horsepower, A. L. A. M. rating at 1500 revolutions. The cylinders are cast of selected gray iron, carefully heat treated to obviate wall defects. Ample water jackets are cast integral.

The carburetor is of the automatic type, ball float feed, and affords various speeds up to the maximum of the motor, which is figured at about 25 miles an hour. Remy magneto and dry cells are used.

BOSTON PLEASES SHACKLETON

Sir Ernest Shackleton, the noted English explorer, known the world over as "Farthest South Shackleton," is enthusiastic over the manner in which he was entertained in Boston, as in other cities which he is visiting. "Everything is done for me, by jove," he declared, as he entered the big Thomas "Flyer" touring car, which was engaged to meet him at the South station, Boston, ready to pilot him about the city. "The hospitality of your people is splendid, and another thing is your fine motor cars and your tall buildings. I can't get used to them really." C. S. Henshaw took charge of the noted party and there was no trouble in having the "Flyer" make schedules, bringing Sir Ernest to his various places of appointment on time.

NEW AUTOMOBILE MATERIAL MADE

Special Alloy Steels Manufactured in This Country
Now and Need Not Be Imported.

Charles Schwab at a dinner a few years ago remarked that the fundamental difference between the steel industry here and abroad resided in the fact that in Europe they manufactured for a quality result, while here they manufacture for a quantity result. It is well known in the automobile industry that the reason why it was impossible to obtain the special alloy steels used by the foreign makers, was not because the steel mills could not make them, but because they would not, without the orders being placed for more tonnage than it was practicable for any automobile manufacturer to give.

That these conditions are changing is the interesting news gleaned from the new catalogue of Alco cars, which are made by the American Locomotive Company. The news is revealed in the introductory part through a paragraph calling attention to the ways in which the resources of the big corporation, with its many locomotive plants in various parts of the country, and its immensely valuable output, are of practical advantage to its automobile department.

It is explained that when the company purchased experience through buying the right to reproduce here a foreign car, all the raw material was imported and at once analyzed chemically and tested physically in the company's biggest locomotive plant by its own corps of expert metallurgists. It is thus tacitly admitted that the plans for continuing to build here the car of foreign design and quality under the company's own name, were unfolding from the first. The formula of the foreign steel alloys were worked out practically in the course of the three years, before the name of the car was changed to the "Alco," and it is explicitly stated that now most of the alloys which formerly had to be imported are obtainable by the American Locomotive Company from American steel makers.

The membership committee of the Automobile Club of America has received applications for active membership from William M. Barrett, Frederick P. DeLafield, Richard M. Hurd, E. E. Jackson, Jr., Charles H. Savin and Arthur J. Heppenheimer of Jersey City. Applications for associate membership have been made by Almon C. Judd, Waterbury, Conn.; John W. PIERCE-ARROWS GET NOVEL RECORD

With the season for motor car shows almost at an end the Pierce-Arrow Motor Car Company of Buffalo has established a record for 1910 that is decidedly unique. In 30 shows in which Pierce-Arrow cars have been placed on exhibition by dealers there has not been a single one of what are commonly termed "slow cars." Every car shown has been one borrowed from buyers in cities in which they were shown and turned over to the owners as soon as the exhibition had ended.

This course was found necessary as early as the Atlanta show last year, the one that ushered in the season. It became apparent when arrangements were being made for that event that it would be an impossibility to have several cars for shipment from one show to another, since orders on file and on which deliveries had been promised would tax the capacity of the big plant at Buffalo to a point far beyond the date of the last show. Dealers were notified of this fact and it was then that arrangements were made by them to place on display the cars that had been promised to them at about that time.

PALMER-SINGER HAS A SPECIALLY MADE CARBURETOR

Two Chassis Models Being Offered This Year—Show
Refinement in the Styles of Body.

F. H. Dike, the Massachusetts agent of the Palmer & Singer automobiles is offering two chassis models for 1910, in which the principal changes over 1909 have been along the lines of general refinement of body styles. Both chassis have the same mechanical features, the only difference being that the six-cylinder model has a different sized motor, wheelbase and wheel.

The motor is 4 1/2 in. bore by 5 1/2 in. stroke and develops its rated 60 horsepower at or below 1200 revolutions per minute, reaching its maximum power at about 1600 revolutions per minute. The cylinders, pistons and rings are made of titanium iron. These parts are given the final finish by grinding, insuring perfect accuracy. The long light pistons have four rings each, besides suitable grooves for distribution of oil upon the cylinder surface, and their tops are finished smooth to prevent the accumulation of carbon.

The crank shaft is a steel hammered forging made from a solid billet. The crank throws are sawed out, after which the shaft is heat treated and machined. The final finish of the bearings is by grinding, giving a smooth and perfectly round journal. Provision is made at each end where the shaft leaves the crank case, to prevent the escape of oil, and, in fact, throughout the entire car this problem of oil leakage has been given special attention.

The Palmer & Singer Manufacturing Company have devoted much time and expense to careful study of carburetor of six-cylinder engines, and they believe that in their multiple jet type of carburetor they have reached the acme of simplicity, reliability and economy.

All this company's cars are shaft driven and have four forward speeds and one reverse, driving direct on the third speed—that is, the drive is direct from the engine to the rear axle without passing through any of the gears.

PLANS FIRST AUTO SHOW.

Harrisburg is to have its first automobile show during the week of April 11 to 16. It will be conducted by the Harrisburg Automobile Dealers Association, which was organized on Tuesday night.

News of the World Told by Cable and Correspondence

NEGOTIATIONS OFF BETWEEN COAL MINE OWNERS AND MEN

(Special to The Monitor.)

LONDON—A conference was held a few days ago between the masters and the workmen representatives of the South Wales coal conciliatory board, but it was not found possible to come to an agreement on the points in question, with the result that negotiations have been broken off. Although no agreement has as yet been arrived at, it does not mean that a cessation of work will immediately take place. The points on which questions have been raised between owners and the men have already been referred to the most important of which are the question of the minimum wage in relation to the equivalent selling price of coal per ton, a demand by the workmen for an assured wage to miners employed in abnormal places, and the question of payment for the production of small coal. The masters also demand permission for the inauguration of the double shift system, which has not as yet been in vogue in South Wales.

It may be that the Board of Trade will at the last moment intervene, but it is understood that both sides of the conciliatory board disapprove of such a course.

COST OF GERMAN
SPEECHES GIVEN

Two Cents a Word Is Expended for Every Line Spoken in the Reichstag, Says Statistician.

BERLIN—The statement of a French savant that more than half of the German technical books are written in statistics may not be literally true, but at any rate Germans are superlatively fond of statistics, particularly as the result of abstract calculations.

Somewhere once asked the question in the Berliner Tageblatt: What is the cost of preserving for future generations the words of wisdom that are spoken in the German Reichstag? and the answer has now been given. The answer is $150,000 a year from 150 to 175 sittings.

According to this reckoning, each sitting, with its army of stenographers and typists, costs $875, and lasts about five or six hours, so that one hour costs $150, and one minute $2.50. On an average, 100 words per minute are spoken; it therefore costs to preserve each word exactly 2 cents.

There is a considerable advance in cost in the Prussian House of Lords, for the sittings are fewer and shorter, although it is not apparent that the words come slower. Here the reporting service costs $20,000 a year, consisting of 20 sittings, each of which costs $1,000, as against $875 in the Imperial Reichstag. Hence, reporting a word costs here 3 1/2 cents.

SCHOOL MEASURE
PASSES CHAMBER

(Special to The Monitor.)

CONSTANTINOPLE—A bill has been passed by the Chamber providing that the existing churches and schools in Macedonia shall belong to a two-thirds majority of the population, whether Bulgarian or Greek, while the government undertakes to assist the minority pecuniarily in the building of its own churches and schools. Since, however, the bill applies only to the two great orthodox communities, Bulgarian and Greek, a protest was made by a Vlach deputy.

The hope is expressed that this bill will put an end to the discord and strife that has been so prevalent in the past.

SHOWS DECREASE

LONDON—The British revenue accounts for the year ended March 31 show an unprecedented deficit of £31,143,544. Of this amount £20,635,000 is due to the non-collection of the income tax owing to the budget bill not passing Parliament.

The politicians and newspapers of the opposite parties lay the blame respectively on the House of Lords for rejecting the budget and the government for not attempting to pass it since the election. The opposition also submit detailed figures to show that Mr. Lloyd-George has proved a failure as chancellor of the exchequer.

TELEGRAPH MEN WANT RAISE.
TORONTO—The telegraph operators of the Canadian Pacific railway system are making a demand for a higher scale of wages, a schedule of which has been presented to the company. A conference of representatives of the union and the railway has been arranged.

Travelers in Scotland Attracted to Homes of Robert Burns and John Paul Jones

ROBERT BURNS' OLD HOME.
Where the poet first lived in the town of Dumfries.

(Special to The Monitor.)

GLASGOW—To the traveler in Scotland few places so well repay a short visit as the town of Dumfries and the neighboring land of Galloway. Apart from the beauty of the country, so typical of Scotland, the town and neighborhood are of more than ordinary historic interest. The town of Dumfries lies in the beautiful valley of the Nith, some six or seven miles from Solway. In the quaint old town itself, though most of the ancient landmarks have disappeared, are many objects of interest.

No doubt if the visitor has only a few hours to spend, his first visit will be to the house of Robert Burns, the Scottish poet. Burns' connection with Dumfries began in 1788, when he rented the farm of Ellisland, five or six miles above the town. In 1791, however, having accepted the situation of excise officer for the district of Dumfries at a salary of £70 a year, he left Ellisland to reside in Dumfries. At the foot of Bank street there stands the house, marked with a tablet, where Burns first lived on coming to Dumfries, and the house in Burns street where he also resided is kept as a museum and is open to visitors. In an inn in the High street, known as the "Hole in the Wall," is a very fine collection of Burns relics belonging to the proprietor of the hotel, supposed to be the largest private collection of Burns relics, and well worth seeing. In the Commercial hotel in Dumfries is still to be seen the room which was occupied by Prince Charlie on his return from England in the rebellion of 1745.

One, however, of the most interesting objects of historic interest is the old bridge, originally built toward the middle of the thirteenth century by the Lady Devorgilla, the founder of Balliol College, Oxford. A landmark which has completely disappeared, although the site of the high altar is still pointed out, was the Greyfriars monastery, also founded by Lady Devorgilla about 1269.

In the near neighborhood are many places of interest, chief among which are the ruins of Lincluden Abbey, about one mile above the town at the confluence of the Cluden with the Nith; Sweetheart Abbey, about seven miles from the town lying at the foot of Criffel, five miles beyond which is Arbigland, the birthplace of Paul Jones, the founder of the American navy, and Carverock castle on the further side of the estuary almost opposite. Sweetheart Abbey, also founded by Lady Devorgilla, is without doubt the most beautiful of the three ruins.

Carverock castle is said to have been originally founded in the sixth century, but the present ruin, which is in an excellent state of preservation, was not built on the site of the original castle. A stronghold of the earls of Nithsdale, this castle was famous in Border history, and was the scene of many a fierce siege. After having been surrendered by the Earl of Nithsdale to the covenanting army in 1640, it was sacked by Lieutenant-Colonel Hume on account of the violation by the Earl of Nithsdale of the terms of capitulation; and the ancient building never recovered from the injury sustained at that time, yet, though an unroofed ruin, it still stands, after the lapse of over two centuries, the choicest specimen of castellated architecture to be found in Scotland.

The country surrounding Dumfries was also intimately connected with the struggle for religious freedom, which the Covenanters or Presbyterians maintained from 1662-1685. Skeoch hill, some eight miles from Dumfries is worthy of a visit, for it was here, on a large natural platform, that the Covenanters gathered for worship, a watch being kept from the surrounding heights during the service, in order that warning of the approach of the soldiery might be given. This desolate spot is all the more interesting in that it still retains the memorials of these events, the "Communion Stones," consisting of what may be called two tables with a passage between, each table being faced by two rows of seats in a comparatively good state of preservation. A few yards to the south a stone of oval form is to be seen, with two separate circular cavities that admit the arm to the elbow, which held, according to tradition, the water for baptism. In front of the stones the ground rises gradually, forming a kind of natural gallery, whence the congregation could hear the sermons and addresses that were delivered, and witness the whole ceremony.

WOMEN'S ART CLUB DISPLAYS FINE WORK AT ANNUAL EXHIBIT

LONDON—The Women's International Art Club is holding its eleventh annual exhibition at the Grafton galleries. The great collection brought together under the name of the national loan exhibition which excited so much interest during the closing months of last year has been dispersed. The masterpieces which adorned the walls of the Grafton galleries so magnificently have each returned to their owners or departed to new ones, and now a very modern display reigns in its stead.

Distinctly modern, indeed, is the exhibit, except for a few pictures, the work of women who achieved some greatness, or at least recognition of their work in the past. Of these are some small pictures by Angelica Kaufmann, Mary Beale, who lived and painted in a very mediocre way in the seventeenth century and of Sofonisba Anguisciola, a native of Cremona, who was an eminent portrait painter of her time, 1533 to 1620.

A "portrait of a silk merchant and his wife" here, attributed to her, is a fine piece of work. Some years ago, when this picture went under the hammer at Christie's, it was called "School of Bronzino," but that is no reason for not believing its present attribution to be correct.

On the whole the pictures of the women artists of the present day hold their own against those here exhibited of the past. There is a great deal of fine work and some which deserves even higher commendation.

Mrs. A. L. Swynerton's "Dream of Italy" is superb, and it occupies the place of honor in the gallery. It is a large picture in every sense of the word. Broad in treatment and large in vision it arrests interest and compels attention. The modeling of the figure is magnificent, while the brush work and the color are altogether masterly.

Half clad in a gorgeous red garment a youthful figure descends a mountain path; behind rise the rugged Apennines, one hand is raised above her head, and the other clasps the wide floating drapery. The enchantment of the olive groves, the vineyards, the cypresses and the sunshine of Italy are sensibly expressed, although at the first glance the symbolism does not seem to be apparent, nor has any attempt been made to make it so. In fact, one of the merits of the picture is that the beholder must enter into the spirit of the artist to understand the meaning of her work.

In quite a different mood Miss Flora Lion has produced a clever portrait study of a self-absorbed young man, called "Reverie." "Carassonne, City of Towers," by Isabelle A. Dods-Witthers, is a quiet pleasing painting in half tones, the grey towers and walls of the town rise stately and massive in the twilight.

Here are four pictures of the late

Miss Bessie MacNicol. Her painting of "Sunshine" is especially good, and a large picture called "Vanity" is strong in its modeling, while "Motherhood" is charming in color and in the pose of the figure of the young mother, whose back and half turned face, which alone are visible, express sufficiently the pride of possession, and perhaps something more of "vanity" than the picture so named.

Miss Lily Defries shows some very masculine work. Rapid notes of effects of cloud and sea which are very successful, notably so "Wind," a green sea with a gleam of light shooting through the torn wind clouds and lighting up the water. However, her largest and most ambitious canvas is called "Harvest," an interesting picture fearlessly handled, full of the spirit of the ateliers of Paris.

Miss Defries paints the peasants and the harvest fields just as she sees them, and she succeeds in conveying a fine impression of sunshine and sky and moving figures at work. Close to this vigorous canvas hangs a very delicate painting entitled "Spring Morning," by Florence Small, with indoor effect of the play of light and shadow falling through a window on the figure of a girl with head slumped against the light.

Perhaps the most remarkable picture in the central gallery after "The Dream of Italy" is that of Fraulein Dora Hitz, "La Cueillette de Cerises." This lady paints in no uncertain mood; she observes and expresses all that she sees.

FINE ADJUSTMENTS IN NEW GATUN LOCKS

(Special to The Monitor.)

GATUN, Canal Zone.—The placing in the concrete of the center wall of Gatun locks of the seat castings for the cylindrical valves which are to regulate the flow of water from the center culvert into the lateral culverts is the most accurate piece of iron work yet done in connection with the locks. Each casting is anchored into the concrete with steel rods, while four set screws at the principal diameters of the seats and bearing on steel plates embedded in the concrete permit the greatest nicety of adjustment.

The last of the castings that form the 24 sockets, in which the wicket girders of the emergency dam will rest on the sill of the dam, has been placed. Work has been begun on the first of the anchorages for the castings on which the horizontal truss of each dam will rest, and the bottom plate and first length of eye bars have been embedded in the concrete of the west side of the center wall. When the emergency dam is closed the total water pressure will be taken up by the gates, which rest on the wicket girders, and the reaction due to this pressure will in turn be taken up by the sill of the dam at the lower bottom end, and at the upper end by the horizontal truss, which in turn is supported by castings anchored into the masonry.

Chinese Provinces Would Be Independent of Peking

(Special to The Monitor.)

PEKING—China's position regarding foreign loans is complicated in a curious way by the relations of the provinces to the Peking government over financial matters. Although nominally a despotism, China is the home of a peculiarly distinctive democracy which produces something strangely akin to provincial autonomy. The requisite force to repress this democratic tendency has not always been at the disposal of the imperial authority, nor is it by any means certain that it would always have been available if it were available. The self-assertiveness of the provincials has afforded many a timely excuse for the Peking authorities which the foreign powers have found to be almost unanswerable.

With due regard for local variations, there is one common issue between the provinces on one hand and the imperial government on the other, and that is, the national financial policy. It is well enough for the Chinese government to profess desire to abolish the "likin" tax—the customs dues imposed on goods at the provincial frontiers—which is objectionable to the treaty powers whose subjects desire to extend their markets unrestricted into the heart of China; but provincial opinion is irrevocably opposed to any concrete policy which will deprive the provinces of much needed revenue for provincial uses. The demand for "likin" abolition on the part of the powers is used by the Chinese government for leverage to secure consent to an increase in the import tariff and to various other measures for increasing the central government's visible revenues by expedients that the foreign powers are wont to consider dubious. Moreover, the abolition of "likin" the standby of the provincial authorities for the raising of revenue wherewith to pacify the clamorous horde of local provincial stipendiaries, is not so simple as the treaty-makers seem to assume.

So long as the European moneylenders insist upon the imperial guarantee as a sine qua non of loans, and so long as the Chinese central government maintains non-responsibility (proclaimed by edict in 1898) for any debts contracted by the provinces without imperial sanction, it is plain that Peking possesses a powerful argument for increased centralization. CHINESE ENDEAVOR FOR YEARS
TO REGAIN POWER IN THIBET

(Special to The Monitor.)

PEKING—The movement of China to recover the substance of her sovereignty over Thibet is one that has been going on, gaining headway year by year, for a period of six or seven years. During this time the country comprised in the western marches of Sze-chuen and the eastern Thibetan country has been in a state of unrest. In spite of the fact that most of the country in question lies within the boundaries of Sze-chuen province, the Thibetans have dominated it a good share of the time and have handled Chinese officials and subjects in the territory with considerable severity, and the leisurely manner in which the real suzerains of the country asserted themselves was characteristic.

The country is a plateau, from 12,000 to 14,000 feet in height, devoid of trees, surrounded by mountain ranges from 3000 to 8000 feet above it, and extending some 500 miles east and west and perhaps somewhat more north and south. The chief towns are Ta-tien-lu, Li-tang, Ba-tang and Siang-cheng, the latter being, in 1903, completely in the power of the Thibetans. The powerful Lamaseri of Li-tang defied the Chinese, but was reduced by the prowess of Sub-Prefect Liu of Ta-tien-lu. In an uprising in 1904 provoked by the appointment of a Manchou as deputy imperial commissioner of Thibetan affairs, the Thibetans seized Ba-tang, which they held for several months, during which time foreign subjects suffered at the hands of the insurgents. General Ma, however, one of the principal Chinese army commanders during the Boxer war, was sent out from Cheng-tu-fu and recaptured the city and restored Chinese authority, but it was not until 1906 that Chinese sway was fully restored at Siang-cheng, Yen-ching and other frontier towns.

Then the power of the Lamas was broken, antiquated native forms of government discarded and Chinese rule and methods substituted. The important towns were garrisoned, travel conditions were improved, brigandage was discouraged and the telegraph line continued to Ba-tang, while Chinese settlers were induced to cultivate the waste lands and mine the minerals of the region. More highly organized forms of city government, schools and systematic plans for colonization showed the earnestness with which China was applying herself to the task of reorganizing this remote and formerly disturbed portion of her empire.

A prominent part in this process was played by Chao Erh Fong, formerly Viceroy of Sze-chuen. This official's services were recognized by his being appointed Chinese amban to Lhasa in 1908, but the difficulties of travel through that mountainous country, the unsettled condition of the marches and the leisurely methods of Chinese rulers account for the elapse of nearly two years before Chao Erh Fong appeared with his army before Lhasa.

ENVER WILL WED
ROYAL PRINCESS

BERLIN—Maj. Enver Bey, one of the most notable leaders of the Young Turk revolution, which overthrew Sultan Abdul Hamid of Turkey, and now the military attaché of the Turkish embassy here, is betrothed to an imperial princess, a niece of the present Sultan, Mohammed V., and of his deposed brother, Enver Bey, in accordance with the ancient Turkish royal custom, as a reward for the gallant part he played in the overthrow of the old regime in Constantinople. Enver Bey has never seen the princess, who is only 16 years.

GERMAN INTEREST IN SOUTH AMERICA

BERLIN—A further expression of the interest taken by Germany in South America has been manifested by a donation of $50,000 by Herr von Waldhausen, the late German minister at Buenos Aires, to the Kaiser for the extension of "German culture and philanthropy" in Argentina, Uruguay and Paraguay. At the centenary of Argentina, which is to be celebrated at Buenos Aires this summer, the German Emperor will be represented by General von der Goltz.

BRITISH TO LEAVE SOMALILAND TO FRIENDLY TRIBES

(Special to The Monitor.)

LONDON—The announcement has been made in a blue-book just issued that Somaliland, or rather the interior of Somaliland, is to be evacuated, and garrisons to be maintained only on the coast.

The British sphere of interest in Somaliland originated in 1884, and extends to some 400 miles of coast and about 300 miles inland at its deepest point. For some time past the Mullah Mohammed Abdullah has caused some trouble at intervals, and although it was at one time considered advisable for energetic action to be taken, and for an advance against the Mullah to be made, it was ultimately decided that a forward movement was not advisable.

Lately, matters have been fairly quiet, and it is believed that the friendly tribes in the interior, who are combining against the Mullah, will be able to hold their own. For these reasons the complete evacuation of the interior has been decided upon.

CHINESE COINAGE

Silver Tael Is Standard Unit of Exchange and Copper Ten-Cash Pieces are Replacing "Holed-Money."

Business transactions between Chinese merchants and foreign firms are usually in taels, says the Daily Consular and Trade Reports. The tael is not a coin, but a Chinese ounce of silver. It varies in different places both as to weight and "touch" (or fineness), and the exchange between the tael and the dollar, or between the former and the copper coinage, is constantly fluctuating.

The only coin in use until recently was the copper cash (of which there are about 1200 to the Mexican dollar, or 2850 to the American dollar), but these are fast disappearing except in the more or less remote interior. A new coin or ten-cash piece has been made at the provincial mints, and is rapidly displacing the old copper cash.

The relative value between these and silver dollars or taels is constantly fluctuating. At first they were supposed to represent one one-hundredth of a Mexican dollar, or about one two-hundred-and-fortieth of a gold dollar, but the exchange is now from 130 to 135 for the Mexican dollar, or from 307 to 319 for the gold dollar.

For many years the Mexican dollar was current at and in the vicinity of the coast and river ports, but now Chinese dollars are coined at the provincial mints at Tientsin, Nanking, Wuchang, Hankow, Canton and elsewhere, but the mintage of one province is only accepted at a discount in another province.

Subsidiary silver coins, 10 cent and 20 cent pieces, are also made at the provincial mints, but they are never worth their face value. They are discounted about 15 per cent when exchanged for dollars.

BRITISH FARMERS SUFFER FROM PEST

LONDON—England without fox hunting would be something unimaginable. Shooting a fox is, as every one knows, almost a national crime. A large part of English literature and English art has been devoted to the cult of the fox hunter, and yet legally speaking the fox is vermin. This is a disagreeable fact which has lately been impressed on the various hunts by an indignant lady who represents the various poultry farms in the country. Unless, this lady declares, proper compensation is forthcoming to the owners of these farms for the depredations of Reynard, a war of extermination will be opened against them. At present the supporters of Brer Fox have taken a leaf out of the book of Brer Rabbit—they "say nuffin' and lie low."

SHARE FARMING IS PROFITABLE

(Special to The Monitor.)

SYDNEY, N. S. W.—A young man is reported to have arrived in a district in New South Wales a year ago in possession of neither plant nor capital. He made what is known as a "share farming" arrangement with a farmer, who found everything, including horses, machinery, seed, etc., and took two-thirds of the crop. The young man's share of the wheat grown on 400 acres was, after six months' work, $2000.

KAISER TO VISIT AUSTRIA.
VIENNA—It is reported that the Emperor William of Germany is to pay a visit to the Emperor Francis Joseph during the latter part of the month of May.

THE MASTERSINGERS OF NUREMBERG

The one comedy among Wagner's great music dramas. Story of the opera and some discussion of the composer's purposes. His influence in France. Mastersingers, sometimes called a comic opera, more nearly approaches the great Greek satires.

THAT Wagner prevailed in Paris, anti-pathetic to things German as it has so often been, was a more than nine days' wonder. At the Paris Grand Opera Wagnerian dramas have been alternated with Gluck tragedies, with Massenet thrown in for relief. Now Debussy has the sort of following Wagner so long had—and those who love the French composer will have none of the older master.

Wagner himself grew tired of his tremendous theories of musical drama according to Louis Laloy, who sees in the comparative simplicity of "Parsifal" and its reaching for a more spiritual ideal, a confession that the giantic pagans of the Ring had pulled upon their protagonists even as they have upon the Parisian public. Laloy quotes Nietzsche to the effect that the renaissance of music—came to France with Debussy, he thinks—was to be bought only at the price of breaking the spell which Wagner had cast over the world, and says, "Wagner invented nothing; he merely abused things; after him everything had to be made over."

And this is why the delicacy and reserve and refinement of Debussy mean so much to Paris. The French have found themselves again. The huge orgy of sound, the long drawn ponderosity of Wagner never was true to the Parisian bent. But, let it be said, that the years of Wagnerism certainly broadened French taste in music and made it possible for something besides Gounod and Massenet to reach home. If Debussy is an advance on Wagner in simplicity and naturalness, surely Wagner came with the earthquake and the whirlwind that drew the startled imagination of Paris away from its absorption in the defined melody of Gounod and Massenet, broke the bonds of the Gluck family tragedy and prepared it to heed the quiet voice of the new music. Perhaps only a cataclysm Wagner could have broken the bonds and washed out the toys and trifles and allowed Debussy to lift a cleansed and sobered public to his idealism, of so much less earthly a sort.

Hans Sachs, the mastersinger, says to Walther, "You do not end within the key, a thing which gives the masters pain." Perhaps only the hugeness of Wagner could have forced open this door of formalism, as well as so many others. Debussy now enters there and ends an act, not only in any key he likes, but in one instance with a tonic chord, against which the second of the scale lies in the upper voice like Meland's plaintive question.

Wagner himself said during his labor on the "Mastersingers" that this was to be indeed his own master work. He adds naively enough that after he had finished "Tannhauser" and gone away for a period of rest he "found a certain mirthfulness" developing in himself never before felt. He is careful to characterize this as an artistic mirth, by the way, and in the face of what Mozart or Rossini called humor in operatic music to call the "Mastersingers" a "comic opera" is in itself a merry quip enough. It is, indeed, in a class by itself, for the music is great enough for grand opera, while the animus of the whole is far more healthy and bright than the usual "opera comique" of Paris, where a single character of a light heart entitles a whole melancholy group to classification as comedians.

In the "Mastersingers," we have none of Wagner's silly and valorous heroes, as Laloy names them, nor yet of his solemn kings and Gothic princesses, nor his labored enchantments, obscure mythology, monsters and machines, nor the cries of frenzied passion nor the shock of conflict. In the "Mastersingers" all is clear, bright, beautiful music, showing what the great master could do when he let himself down from a hyperbolic worshipping of art for its own sake, and let it become rather one of the many phenomena of a normal and happy human experience. The fracas and the clumsy artifice (we still quote Laloy here), the endeavor to enlure the hearer in floods of sound, are all wanting. There is, to be sure, some tumult and shouting in the close of the first act, where the neighbors all rush out to investigate the uproar; but even here Wagner does not drop the curtain at the height of the noise, as convention would do; he sends the people back to bed, gradually quieting the scene, and then over the quiet old city the moon rises, and the silence falls, and we hear only the watchman with his melancholy horn who sings, "Hear ye people and take heed, Let no evil spirit your souls deceive. Praise God, the Lord."

Yet for all its splendid beautifulness and naturalness, the "Mastersingers" is really an excursion into musical politics. And perhaps one reason why it is so much more natural and human than any other work of the composer is because he is truly expressing himself in it. It has usually been held that in Hans Sachs, Wagner presented Liszt and in Walther, himself, to the world, with Beckmesser and his followers representing the musical conventionalism and pedantry which would deny these masters the right to self-expression after their own genius. Krebhiel, however, sees in Hans Sachs the truer type of Wagner.

Sachs is seen everywhere drawing together the two opposing schools, standing by Walther when the conservatives would none of him, and equally pacifying the youth's indignation and showing him how to govern the wild freedom of his own muse and bring her to something more nearly approaching conventional good manners. That Wagner saw the truth to be between the extreme formalism and the entire disregard of musical law, and that Hans Sachs—to whom Eva would have confided herself at the last moment as stronger and sounder even than her beloved Walther—is the type of what Wagner really wished to stand for in music, is Mr. Krebhiel's judgment.

One illustration of Sachs' endeavor at mediation is the stanza:

"But with the melody you are a trifle too free,
Only that the thread is difficult to hold
And that is sure to make the old ones scold."

Yet that this was regarded as pure sarcasm in Leipzig is intimated by the fact that the lines nearly caused a riot in the Leipzig opera house, so strenuously do they take their art over in these parts. And yet in this very music itself Wagner did not disdain some of the old-time ideas. The march of the Mastersingers, that splendid finale of the work, is a fifteenth century melody and the dance of the apprentices is a true bit of ancient work.

Thus we see that a serious purpose underlay the broad humor of this creation, and it has been said that in this work Wagner really drew again the classic distinction between tragedy and comedy, since the work is not mere fun but truly a satire after the fashion of Aristophanes. In this it represents the true German humor, which is never without its direct, strong and corrective thrust at some weakness of humanity. When this opera was presented at Bayreuth the stage setting was true to fact, showing the quaint, narrow street of Nuremberg, with the deep gables on the houses almost touching each other. In New York the stage showed a street as broad as Broadway. The motive of spring heard early in the work is really the generating motive for all the others. Thus the thought of renewal of life—the newness which has always its root in past beauty—is the prevailing thought of the opera.

"It sounded so old yet so new,
Like song of birds in sweetest May."

One little device of Wagner may be named here. When Eva tells Sachs that she is not sure but that she loves him best of all—this because he has done so much to bring the lovers together—Sachs replies that he has no "Tristan and Isolde" notion in his head, he does not wish to play King Marke. Here two motives from "Tristan and Isolde" enter in the orchestra. A like device comes in "Don Giovanni," where Mozart brings in at the end of act II, a strain from the "Marriage of Figaro." Throughout the work Wagner's fine contrapuntal writing is especially to be remarked. It is perhaps significant that the libretto of this one comedy among his tragic dramas was finally worked out to completion while Wagner was in Paris, finished in 1862. The work came to its first production in 1868.

The story turns on the contest between the young musician Walther and the old "Mastersingers of Nuremberg," the famous guild of musicians who flourished most in the sixteenth century, and of whom Hans Sachs was the acknowledged best, though his daily meter was that of a cobbler. Sachs was an historical reality, and a fine old wood cut portrait exists dated 1545. The democracy of art was well established by that time in Germany, where the traditions of the courtly Minneingers were now replaced by the sincere and honest work of the unromantic burghers to conserve and advance lyric art. They admitted to their guild only those who passed the examination, at which a marker presided, who noted on a blackboard all the faults of the new applicant as he sang his song.

In the play, Eva, daughter of a prosperous burgher, Pogner, is to be given in marriage only to some one successful among the guild of the master singers. Young Walther resolves to put aside his prejudices against the cut and dried notions of the guild and apply for admission for the sake of his lady love. The first scene shows the interior of the old church where Walther finds and loses Eva. Hans Sachs takes an interest in Walther because as a neighbor to Pogner, Sachs in his cobbler shop across the way has become very much attached to the lovely young girl. He therefore instructs Walther in the details of the ordeal which he is to undergo. The other folks are preparing the church meantime for the meeting of the master singers. Here it is all bright music enough.

Beckmesser is also a candidate for Eva's hand, and it falls out that he is made marker in the examination of the new candidate. While Walther sings the former chalks his rival's errors on a board behind a curtain, and at the end of the second stanza bursts forth with such an array of marks against the singer that the young man is at once discredited. Sachs pleads for him and his influence would avail but for the burghers' respect for Beckmesser, one of their own class. An amusing effect here is where the "leges tabulatae" are read by various members, each sentence ending in a florid cadence after the old style, which is solemnly echoed by the orchestra. Here is a debt bit of musical satire. Walther's ode, by the way, is on spring and love, setting the key to the whole work.

The next act shows the street with Pogner's house at the right and the cobbler's shop opposite. There is a funny love making scene between David Sachs, apprentice, and Magdalene, the somewhat elderly nurse of Eva. Eva comes to ask Sachs how things fared at the contest. Walther enters and the two lovers discouraged over the failure plan to fly together. Sachs overhears and plans to thwart them, as this would surely not be for the best in the end and he has faith in Walther's ultimate triumph.

Beckmesser now appears and begins to serenade Eva—who has set Magdalene in disguise in the window. He has great trouble tuning his instrument and finally sings most absurdly, while the cobbler over the way uses his hammer as a marker and taps out on his last all the mistakes of the distracted serenader. Sachs also sings the while his famous song about Eve in the garden of Eden and the invention of boots and shoes. He repeats to Beckmesser his own remarks in criticism of Walther's song. David comes in and attacks Beckmesser for wooing his sweetheart Magdalene and a general hubbaloob follows. All the neighbors rushing in half dressed to find out what is the matter.

The third act shows the interior of Sachs' house. David comes in and his tripping gay music is recognizable. A public singing contest is to be held that afternoon in the meadow and the fate of Eva to be finally decided. Sachs has meantime foiled the attempted elopement and has given Walther hospitality for the night. Walther now appears and tells of a dream he has had and Sachs advises him to make a poem of it to sing that day. Here is a touch of Wagner's interest in Schopenhauer and his theory of dreams. (Wagner's "Essay on Beethoven" is full of Schopenhauer.) Sachs proceeds to criticize Walther's poem showing how he can make it more acceptable to the Mastersingers who are to be his judges. They leave the room and Beckmesser enters finds the song on the table. He thinks it is Sachs' and steals it. Sachs enters, tells Beckmesser that he has taken it and is welcome to it, agreeing not to claim the authorship. Beckmesser goes out triumphant and Eva enters, dressed in her bridal robes. She pretends that her new shoe hurts her, but she has really come to find Walther. Sachs takes off her shoe and hammers away and Walther enters. Here follows some wonderful music, expressing the different emotions of the various persons and the scene ends with a very beautiful quintet.

Then are shown the meadows of the Peggnitz, with crowds assembled for the singing competition. The choruses of the various trade guilds are heard as the processions go by and the dances of the young folks and at last the stately march of the Mastersingers, all make a stirring pageant. During this pompous scene Sachs is honored above them all. Then comes the contest. Beckmesser tries to fit his own tune to Walther's words and fails entirely. The opera fills 4½ hours. It was first sung in Boston in 1869, with Mme. Karschova, Alvary and Emil Fischer. In 1892 we had Jean de Reszke and Albani. In 1903 Gadski, Schumann Helnek, Burgstaller, Van Rooy and Bismah sang. In the title "Mastersingers" by the way, the old form of the German word for singer appears.

THE RENOVATED ART CLUB.

Last Wednesday evening a brilliant assemblage gathered at the clubhouse on Newbury and Dartmouth streets to inspect the new environment in which the Boston Art Club is now so happily situated.

A thousand persons were present in all the habitations of fashion and good taste. This club is now on a footing with the best up-to-date organizations of its kind, and new membership already is pouring in. The gallery, which has been moved up under the new roof, is well lighted, spacious and of good height. A loan exhibition of 65 pictures, painted by artist members, occupied the line around the walls and added materially to the entertainment of the guests. These will remain on view until April 14.

Some pictures of note are Scott C. Carbee's "Portrait of Mrs. C." and another of W. W. Whitcomb; M. H. Hardwick's two wood pictures, Charles Copleland's "Quiet Morning," Gallagher's "Venice," Abbott Graves' "Peonies" and gardens, three landscapes each by Kaula and Enneking, Dean's two marines, Closson's "Twilight," Richardson's portrait of Rear Admiral Wilde, Kronberg's "Loie Fuller," Walter Gilman Page's full length portrait of a slender woman, Charles A. Aiken's decorative panel, "Music" and other canvases by Will Stecher, C. A. Walker, C. L. Butler, Harold Dunbar, N. L. Berry, W. L. Brackett, A. W. Buhler, H. R. Burdick, Darius Cobb, Hendricks A. Hallett, vice president of the club, William F. Halls, Elmer F. Hudson, Marshall Johnson, J. A. S. Monks, Bert Poole, C. F. Pierce, Peter Roos, Daniel J. Strain and Frank H. Tompkins who sends a fine portrait of Mr. Hardwick. As the exhibition is not a public one a more extended review of it is not deemed necessary at this time.

PAINTINGS BY CHARLES H. DAVIS.

This artist opened his annual spring show of oil paintings in the gallery of Doll & Richards, 71 Newbury street, Friday. There is not a single April joke in the collection of 14 choice canvases on view. They are somewhat more subdued in key than the examples shown a year ago. Still there is plenty of rich color, deep and warm shadows, moving clouds and always a sense of close study and observation of nature's phases that are brought together in a given canvas and made to vibrate the very breath of truth, beauty and joy.

There is, too, a control over materials, a breadth and mastery of craft, that shows liberty of thought and of action. "After Rain" (3) is a cool sky and wet, green land and foliage with the subtle effect of cloud movement so often seen after a New England shower. "The Time of the Red Winged Blackbird" (1) is a tender spring picture that is warm and mellow in its depiction of the present season. "Searing Sunset" (13) is a strong, noble landscape with blue sky and cloud movement well indicated.

Other subjects are: "Clouding Over Up-lands," "Summer," "Night," "The Trysting Place," "The Farmyard Pool," "Hill-top and Cloud," "The Smile of Winter," "In Autumn," "March Sunshine," "Out of Brown Depths" and "A Welsh Mountain Side." The public is invited to see these works of art every week day until April 13.

CHARLES HOPKINTON'S PAINTINGS

At Kimball's gallery Charles Hopkinson is showing a variety of very able and interesting paintings in oil. His subjects range from portraiture and figure pictures to the highest keyed sun studies under the glare of the mid-winter sun.

Under the head of "Winter at Manchester" are shown 10 of the most brilliantly executed studies we have seen recently from any brush. They are so spontaneous, direct and virile that one is compelled to admire their skill and the ability of the achievements. In "Calm and Cool" (19) there is a shimmering sun on the sea that is intense in its truth and handling.

"Noonday Glitter," "Jewels," "Shadow Against Light," "After the Christmas Morning," "The Enormous Surf," etc., give little idea by titles of the spontaneity and success of these pictures. In the portraits and figure studies the same sense of keen observation is noted with more carefully worked out details in some instances, as in the portraits of "Two Brothers" who are of college age and who are here presented in a canvas that is well balanced and truthful. "The Claude Lorraine Class" (12) is an original theme worked out skillfully in color and composition. The principal figure shows a girl reading, seated out of doors. Reflections in glass doors, of people in the vicinity, are rendered finely as to movement, and double lensed as one sees objects through glass. This picture deserves a high place. The collection will remain on view until April 9.

At the Normal Art Gallery, Clarendon street, William J. Kaula is exhibiting 40 sketches and paintings. They are all out-of-doors subjects, excellent in atmosphere and bright in color. The effects of clouds and landscapes under different conditions are well portrayed in these examples. Some of them were shown in the artist's recent exhibition at the Twentieth Century Club. Both oil and water colors are handled with the greatest ease by Mr. Kaula, whose hand is guided by a close observing and sympathetic mind that catches with a fine touch the play of light upon land and sea. The pictures will remain until April 9.

Abbott Graves, who paints flowers, gardens, figures and a great variety of subjects touching man and his interests, is to have a sale of 157 pictures at the auction rooms of Leonard & Co., 48 Bromfield street, next week, April 7, 8 and 9. A most entertaining collection these varied subjects prove to be in the gallery of the auction rooms, where they are to be seen next week.

Mr. Graves paints subjects that appeal to one's sense of beauty; his color is sparkling and placed with precision, and in subjects he is ever new and constantly surprising his artist friends with a new viewpoint. The sense of youthfulness and freshness introduced into his works, whatever the subject matter, makes his pictures sought for by lovers of art.

Louis Kronberg will hold an exhibition of his recent works at the Knoedler's gallery, 355 Fifth avenue, New York, beginning April 18 and continuing through that week only.

The New York Times says the International Society of Painters and Sculptors, which exhibits every winter in the Galleries Petits, is about to lose its most influential American members. Richard Miller, H. O. Tanner and Frederick Frieseke will refuse to send any of their pictures to future exhibitions, for the reason that the last one, held about two months ago, was much below the standard which they think is desirable. It is understood that Robert Maccameron will take the same course as soon as he can. A by-law of the society forbids a member to resign within the first year after his election.

PARIS ART NOTES.

Some of the most prominent artists in Paris have had a very busy time lately, for not only have they been finishing their pictures for the Salon, but they have been getting their paintings off for the exhibition of American artists held at the Royal Academy at Berlin and organized by Hugo Reisinger of New York.

It is to Walter MacEwen, an old resident here, that Mr. Reisinger entrusted the charge of gathering together 15 paintings by American artists in Paris. Besides his own work Mr. MacEwen has collected paintings from Robert Maccameron, H. O. Tanner, Walter Gay, Julius Stewart, Richard Miller, Frederick Frieseke, Henry Salem Hubbell, and Augustus Koopman.

Robert Maccameron has sent a group of two men and a woman outside a cafe, in addition to his portrait of President Taft, which was in last year's Salon. The group was exhibited during the winter at the Georges Petit gallery.

Richard Miller of St. Louis is also represented by a cafe scene. Unlike Mr. Maccameron's it is an interior view in which light colors predominate. The habitue of the Latin Quarter will recognize it as the Cafe du Dome, a well-known meeting place for American artists.

Those familiar with H. O. Tanner's work will easily recognize his pictures as much on account of the rich blue tones as of the subjects chosen. He has, as usual, chosen a religious theme. One of his paintings has been loaned by an American gallery and the other is sent from Paris.

Henry Salem Hubbell exhibits his "By the Fireside," which was hung in the central hall, the place of honor, in last year's Salon. Augustus Koopman has also sent a large canvas exhibited in a previous Salon. His other painting is a stretch of beach near Boulogne, his wife and daughter forming the figures in the foreground.

PARIS ART NOTES

PARIS—From the standpoint of size the exposition of Independent artists recently opened is the most important held this season. There are nearly 6000 paintings, statues and drawings. The first thing to impress the impartial observer is the enormous latitude in the choice and treatment of the many subjects, a latitude which is in thorough harmony with the ideas of the organization, for the "Independents" admit all manner of art and artists without the formality of a jury.

All the modern schools are represented, from the strictly academic to the most ultra impressionists, who are legion. In fact there are so many factions among the ultra-impressionists that there is, properly, no school at all. There are the imitators of Henri Matisse, the followers of the Spaniard Picasso, who interprets nature and the human figure from the standpoint of line, the result being that their portraits frequently resemble an architect's design. Then there are symbolists who invariably depict fantasies and emotions as vague, half-hu-manized figures, such as Lena Chamier, who exhibits a dark canvas covered with indistinct swaying forms and calls it "The Sighing of the Trees."

Not only is there a bewildering variety of conception and treatment but of material, and Madame Castro, not content with the conventional canvas, has painted a head on a mirror, and Leon Lehmann obtains effects of lights and shadows by putting paint on nearly an inch thick.

The majority of the exhibitors are French, Polish and Russian. There are less than a dozen Americans. David Edstrom, the sculptor, has sent a collection of 14 busts and statuettes; St. Clair Breckons, a poster and three drawings; Ida Clark Hunter, several still lifes, and John Noble, two moonlight pictures. Several artists exhibit studies of provincial towns in France: George Char-teaufer is represented by Normandy and Brittany scenes, and Julian Ilderby by a street at Montreuil-by-the-Sea. Of the great quantity of flood pictures shown, only one is by an American, Miss Grace Ravlin.

London Musical Notes

LONDON—Thomas Beecham's opera season at Covent Garden closed last Saturday night with a final performance of "Elektra," and he announces that the season of opera comique will open at His Majesty's theater, with a performance of Offenbach's "Tales of Hoffmann," on May 9, and will continue until July 30. Performances are promised for the season of Massenet's "Werther," "Die Fledermaus" by Johann Strauss, "Joseph in Egypt" by Mehul, "Fra Diavolo" by Auber, "Sham-us O'Brien" by Stanford, and Humper-dine's "Hansel and Gretel."

During the Mozart festival week, commencing on June 6, "Le Seraglio," "Cosi fan Tutti" and "Le Nozze di Figaro" will be given. Edmond Missa's opera "Muguette" will be produced for the first time in England, and it is rumored that during his autumn season at Covent Garden, Mr. Beecham will produce D'Alberty's opera "Tiefand," which has had such a success in Germany. Mr. Beecham and Hamish MacCunn will be the conductors, the orchestra numbers some 70 performers, and the chorus is 50 strong.

No very interesting concerts were given last week. The program of the New Symphony Orchestra's concert given in the Queen's Hall consisted of the Beethoven C minor symphony, Janfeldt's Prælude, the prelude to Ciferidge-Taylor's opera "Thelma," Tchaikowsky's piano concerto in B flat minor played by Miss A. Cottlow, and the closing scene of the "Walkure" sung by Mr. Edmund Burke. London Ronald conducted.

Recitals have been given by Miss Grace Thynne, Miss Helena Lewyn, Plunket Greene and others. Donald F. Tovey completed the series of concerts he has been giving in the Chelsea Town Hall with an interesting Bach program. A prelude and fugue in E flat were followed by the sonata in C minor for violin and piano in which he was joined by Mme. Marie Soldat, the sonata in G for two flutes with figured bass accompaniment for the piano delightfully played by Messrs. A. and H. Fransella, the concerto in A minor for flute, violin and piano, and the two arias "Doch weicheit," and "Gleich wie die wilden Meereswellen" were well sung by Campbell Wellens.

Leonard Borwick opened his concert given in the Queen's hall a few days ago, with several of his arrangements of organ works by Bach, an arietta by Leonardo Leo and an allegro by Scarlatti, and later in the afternoon gave a beautiful performance of Schumann's etudes symphoniques, Chopin's ballade in A flat, the Rachmaninoff prelude and Liszt's etude in F minor. The beautiful seventeenth century melody "Wait Thou Still," as well as several Italian songs, were sung by Mr. Henschel, who also delighted the audience by his interpretations of Dvorak's "By the Waters of Babylon," Brahms' "So willst du des Armen" and "Unüberwindlich" and songs by Schubert and Wolf.

Goldmark's opera, "The Queen of Sheba," will be produced shortly in Manchester by the Carl Rosa Opera Company. This will be the first performance of this work in England.

Musical Events in Boston

"PELLEAS AND MELISANDE"

DEBUSSY'S lyric drama, "Pelleas and Melisande," was performed under the musical direction of Henriquez de la Fuente at the Boston theater Friday evening. The cast:

Melisande.....Miss Mary Garden
Genevieve.....Mme. Gerville-Reache
Little Yniold.....Miss Trentini
Pelleas.....M. Devries
Golaud.....M. Dufranne
Arkel.....M. Huberdeau
The doctor.....M. Crabbe

The performance was both a reminder of Mr. Hammerstein's two presentations of "Pelleas and Melisande" last year and a promise of something new to come in Debussy interpretation. Miss Garden was for interpreting the opera in the way that brought it applause a year ago; she was for enshrining the character of Melisande in mist, for giving Maeterlinck's drama atmosphere. Mr. de la Fuente, on the other hand, was for treating "Pelleas and Melisande" like any other opera; he was for making its music understood and for ridding it of all atmospheric nonsense. Everybody assisting Miss Garden last year fell in with her idea of Melisande—Mr. Campanini, the conductor, no less than Mr. Dufranne, the Golaud, and Mr. Dalmoires, the Pelleas. Thus Debussy's opera was given an interpretation so well rounded and consistent that to many persons it seemed the ideal one; indeed, the only one possible. But it was different this year with Mr. Hammerstein's new conductor, who is less a poet, as think some, and a more deeply thinking musician, as think others, than Mr. Campanini. Whatever else Mr. de la Fuente is, he is certainly independent of any traditions that have grown up around the Manhattan stage. And who doubts that Mr. Hammerstein would have him so? For the Manhattan director is not a man to let tradition get the upper hand of progress in his opera house.

Mr. Dufranne and Mr. Huberdeau were the only singers in the cast of "Pelleas and Melisande" Friday evening who sided with the conductor. Mr. Dufranne's Golaud was quite a different impersonation from that of last year; not so different in its outward aspects as in its musical significance. He treated the role of Golaud more as a singing role than formerly. He wished with Mr. de la Fuente to give vitality to Debussy's music and to give Maeterlinck's drama a show of reality. Mr. Devries, on the contrary, fell in with Miss Garden's ideas of making everything as ethereal as possible; in the role of Pelleas, as in that of the shepherd Alain in Massenet's "Griseledis" Wednesday evening, he affected the dreamy and the poetic.

The large audience at the performance of "Pelleas and Melisande" proved that the opera is holding its own in the affections of the musical public of Boston. There was need of the presence of Mr. Hammerstein to manage affairs on the stage, for two or three times things went amiss with the scene shifting much to the hurt of the dramatic illusion. The interesting thing to note about M. de la Fuente's reading of "Pelleas and Melisande" is that Debussy's music stands the test of analytical and realistic interpretation. Massenet's "Griseledis" score suffered when its details were made explicit in the De la Fuente manner, but Debussy's score when so treated proved to have exhaustive emotional meaning.

The performance at the Boston theater this afternoon begins at 2 o'clock; the opera is "Traviata," with Mme. Tetrazzini, Miss Genta, Miss Severina, M. McCormack, M. Polese, M. Venturini, conductor, M. Anselmi.

The performance tonight begins at 8 o'clock; the opera is "Thais," with Miss Mary Garden, Miss Trentini, Mme. Duchene, M. Renaud, M. Devries, M. Scott, M. Nicolay, conductor, M. Henriquez de la Fuente.

METROPOLITAN OPERA.

The performance at the Boston opera house this afternoon is "Tosca," with Miss Farrar, Messrs. Martin and Scotti; conductor, Mr. Tango. The performance this evening begins at the early hour of 7:30 o'clock, owing to the great length of the opera. Wagner's "Meister-singer" will be sung with Johanna Gadski, Florence Wickham, Leo Slezak, Walter Soomer, Otto Goritz, Robert Blass; conductor, Arturo Toscanini.

MISS FULLER'S DANCES.

Miss Loie Fuller, the dancer, will give a special performance at the Boston opera house Saturday afternoon, April 9. She will appear in the "Garden of the Dance," something different from the "Ballet of Light," but equally remarkable for its light effects. Among Miss Fuller's assisting artists are Mme. Thamar de Swirsky, who will dance the Peer Gynt Suite by Greig and the dance of Orpheus and Eurydice; Miss Chester, a new American dancer, and Miss Bernice Tupper of Boston. A dance which proved successful at one of Miss Fuller's presentations at the Metropolitan opera house in New York, is a Greek idyl, which will be performed by Miss G. Swirsky and Paul Chute. Miss Fuller's solo numbers will include the Fire dance, the Firmament, the Butterfly, Dance blanche and the Great White Lily. The performance will begin at 3 o'clock.

NOTES.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, Max Fiedler, conductor, presents in Symphony hall tonight its twentieth program, as follows: Beethoven, Pastoral symphony, No. 6; Tchaikovsky, "Francesca da Rimini"; (Sibelius, "Elegie and Valse triste" (first time in Boston); Dvorak, Carnival overture.

The program of the public rehearsal of Friday afternoon, April 8, and the concert of Saturday, April 9, will consist of the following numbers: Converse, Symphonies poem, "Endymion's Narrative"; Tchaikovsky, Violin Concerto; Elgar, Variations on an original theme. The soloist will be Fritz Kreisler, violinist.

The program of the pension fund concert of Sunday evening, April 17, will be in its orchestral division made up of Wagner numbers. The solo selections of Mme. Sembrich will consist of the aria "Involami" from Verdi's "Ernani" and a group of songs with piano accompaniment.

The Apollo Club will give its fourth concert in Jordan hall Wednesday evening, April 6, at 8 o'clock. The club will be assisted by Miss Lilla Ormond, contralto, and Carl Lamson, pianist.

Wednesday evening, April 6, the last formal pianola recital of the season will be given in Steinert hall. Mrs. Laura Comstock Littlefield, soprano, and Claude Fisher, violinist, will be soloists.

Ferruccio Busoni, the pianist, will give his second Boston recital at Jordan hall Monday afternoon, April 11.

Mr. and Mrs. Gaines will perform a program of songs at Steinert hall Thursday afternoon, April 12.

HOW TO CUT FOOD COST TOLD IN GOVERNMENT'S COOK BOOK

WASHINGTON—Requests for the new cook book issued by the United States government are coming in from all parts of the country.

The secretary of agriculture is sponsor for the cook book. The news that the government was collecting recipes and testing them in the government experiment stations got to the public and brought many applications for the official cook book of the United States.

The book was issued as a result of the investigations of the high cost of living, and the oft-published statement that the indifferent cooking of the American housewife is not wholly unconnected with the present prices of food.

The title of the new cook book is "Economic Use of Meat in the Home," Bulletin No. 391. It was prepared by C. E. Langworthy, Ph.D., expert in charge of nutrition investigations in the office of experiment stations, and Miss Caroline L. Hipt, A.B., also an expert in nutrition in the same office.

Since meat is undeniably one of the most expensive articles of diet, the government hints that the cost of meat eating can be lessened by purchasing meat in wholesale quantities for home use; by economy in selection and purchase, so as to take advantage of varying market conditions; serving smaller portions of meat than usual or using meat less frequently; careful attention to the use of meat, bone and fat, and small portions commonly trimmed off and thrown away, and the utilization of left-over portions of cooked meats and the use of less expensive kinds.

Pickling, smoking and curing meats are also advocated. The use of the fats of the meat in place of butter in meat pies is advocated and the practise of saving "drippings" is recommended. Here is the formula:

"When rendering the drippings of fat meat add a small onion (do not cut it), a few leaves of summer savory and thyme, a teaspoonful of salt and a little pepper. This is enough for a pint of fat. Keep the drippings covered and in a cool place."

"Many of the dishes popular in good hotels," says the book, "are made from the portions of meat that are frequently thrown away in private houses."

Maybe you never knew about braising ribs of beef, broiling the beef ribs or sirloin bones, and sprinkling them with salt and cayenne pepper. Well, try it. Also try boiling marrow bones with a bit of dough at the end, and then serving them on toast.

Here's one which the book says is all right:

RAGOUT OF MUTTON.

One and a half pounds neck of mutton cut into small pieces.
One tablespoonful butter.
One tablespoonful flour.
One onion.
One carrot.
Half can peas.
Two cups of hot water.
One teaspoonful salt.
Quarter teaspoonful pepper.
One bay leaf.
Sprig parsley.
One clove.

CASSEROLE ROAST.

Three or four pounds of roast or rump of beef.
A slice of salt pork.
A few peppercorns.
One fourth each of a carrot, a turnip, an onion and a head of celery cut into small pieces.

FARINA BALLS.

Quarter cup farina.
One cup milk.
Quarter teaspoonful salt.
Eighth teaspoonful pepper.
Onion juice.
Yolk one egg.

Put butter in a frying pan. When melted add flour and brown. Add carrot and onion, cut in dice. Remove vegetables and add meat, searing well. To meat add vegetables and hot water and seasonings. Put in suitable kettle, cover and simmer two hours. Add peas 10 minutes before serving with farina balls made as follows:

Cook farina and milk in double boiler one hour. Add seasoning and well-beaten yolk. Stir well and cool. When cool roll into balls. Dip in egg and crumbs and fry in deep fat. Rice may be used in a similar way.

TURKISH PILAF.
One half cup of rice, three quarters cup of tomatoes, stewed and strained, one cup stock or broth, three tablespoonfuls of butter.

Cook the rice and tomatoes with the stock in a double boiler until the rice is tender, removing the cover after the rice is cooked if there is too much liquid. Add the butter and stir it in with a fork to prevent the rice from being broken. A little catsup of chili sauce, with water enough to make three quarters of a cup, may be substituted for the tomatoes.

This may be served as a border with meat, or served separately in the place of a vegetable, or may make the main dish at a meal, as it is savory and reasonably nutritious.

In utilizing the cheaper cuts of meat the following is recommended:

FILIPINO BEEF.

One pound round beef.
One half pound lean fresh pork.
One small onion.
One green pepper.
One teaspoonful of salt.
One cup of soft stale bread crumbs.
One egg.

Two cups of stewed tomatoes.
Two slices of bacon.
Two tablespoonfuls of butter.
Four tablespoonfuls of flour.

MOCK VENISON.

Cut cold mutton into thin slices and heat in a brown sauce made according to the following proportions: Two tablespoonfuls butter, two tablespoonfuls flour, one tablespoonful of bottled meat sauce (whichever is preferred), one tablespoonful red currant jelly, one cupful water or stock.

Brown the flour in the butter, add the water or stock slowly and keep stirring. Then add the jelly and meat sauce and let the mixture boil up well.

SPANISH BEEFSTEAK.

Take a piece of round steak weighing two pounds and about an inch thick, pound until thin, season with salt and cayenne pepper, cover with a layer of bacon or salt pork cut into thin slices, roll and tie with a cord. Pour around it half a cupful of milk and half a cupful of water. Place in a covered baking dish and cook two hours, basting occasionally.

BROOKLYN CHANGE OF STREET NAMES

NEW YORK—The aldermen in charge of the work of renaming a number of Brooklyn's streets are having a hard time of it. Each has different ideas on how best to get rid of the present complexities and duplications and each is being swamped with petitions and propositions from outside.

To give an idea of the chaotic street conditions in the "city of churches" and the problem which confronts many a stranger seeking to find his way, Wyckoff street may be taken as an example. This street, in its natural extension, twice changes its name—once to St. Marks place and then to St. Marks avenue. Other streets also take on strange disguises, until the stranger in Brooklyn wonders where he really is "at."

RICH CHICAGOAN ENDS LONG WALK

WASHINGTON—Harlow N. Higginbotham, Chicago capitalist, who has been doing a 700-mile walk for the fun of it, reached Washington Friday. As a fitting finish he made the circuit of the Capitol corridors before starting home.

Mr. Higginbotham visited his friend, Senator Cullom. It was the fifth time he had made the trip over the devious route from the Virginia Hot Springs to the Capitol, he said, the first time as a soldier in the civil war.

Serving Forty-Eighth Year In Capacity of Town Clerk At Brattleboro, Vermont

WILLIAM S. NEWTON.

Veteran official who is regarded as the dean of clerks in New England towns.

BRATTLEBORO, Vt.—William S. Newton, who has just been reelected town clerk for the forty-eighth year, probably is the veteran of clerks in point of service in New England. He was first chosen March 3, 1863, and has served continuously since, being elected each year without opposition.

Mr. Newton was born in Marlboro (Vt.) on June 26, 1822. He was the second of three sons of Captain William and Betsey (Harris) Newton.

After attending the district school in Marlboro and Brattleboro Academy, he became a clerk in Jesse Cone's store in Marlboro. Later he became clerk in Gardner C. Hall's store in Brattleboro. Two years later he went back to Marlboro, but returned to Brattleboro in 1862 as clerk in the Vermont & Massachusetts railroad ticket office. In a short time he became clerk in the post-office. About 1839 he and Nathaniel Cheney engaged in the grocery business. After a few months Mr. Newton bought Mr. Cheney's interest and conducted the store until 1887.

At this time Mr. Newton retired from business to devote his time to his official duties. At the freeman's meeting in the year he first was elected town clerk Mr. Newton was elected a justice of the peace. Gradually he came to be considered the trial justice of the town.

In 1882 Mr. Newton was elected a trustee of the Vermont savings bank and in 1891, he was elected vice-president of the institution, both of which offices he now holds. He is a member of Columbian lodge of Masons and of the Centre Congregational church.

Mr. Newton married Lucinda Wells Harris of Brattleboro.

Power Plant for Taunton, Mass.

Modern electric shop to replace old landmark.

HOPEWELL MILL.

Factory structure to be torn down to make way for new building for Reed & Barton Silver Company.

TAUNTON, Mass.—The Hopewell mill buildings, the oldest mill structures now standing in this city, will be torn down to make way for the erection of an electric plant which will supply the Reed & Barton Silver Company factory with power. The buildings were recently purchased by the silver company to be used as an electric plant, but proved to be useless. In its destruction will pass one of the best known landmarks in Bristol county.

The center building was built in 1735 by Samuel Leonard, the first man to use the Mill river to operate a shop. The building was used as a nail factory, where with a few ancient machines Joseph Burbank cut nails until in 1771 the heirs of Samuel Leonard turned the nail factory into an iron works. In 1793 Charles Richmond conceived the plan of building a cotton mill. In company with Samuel Crocker and Silas Shepard he erected a cotton factory of stone and brick, 100 feet in length, on the west side of the ancient nail factory.

Another mill completing the third of a group was built in 1821, containing 150 looms. In 1827 a rolling mill was erected on the opposite bank of the river. The Hopewell mill property was merged in the capital stock of the Taunton Manufacturing Company in 1843, but later was controlled by William A. F. Sprout. Charles Albion purchased the property in 1854, remaining the owner until 1875, when the L. Beebe Company of Boston purchased it. Operations stopped and the machinery was removed to other mills. It was purchased five years ago by the Reed & Barton company.

The water of the Mill river will be used to turn the machinery of the plant which will soon be erected.

COLGATE PROFESSOR FAVORED TO SUCCEED ALLDS IN SENATE

NORWICH, N. Y.—It is predicted that when the Republican convention for the thirty-seventh Senate district convenes in Norwich April 12, Prof. Ralph W. Thomas of Colgate will be its choice as a successor to ex-Senator Allds.

Professor Thomas is said to be assured of the Madison county delegation, that being his home county. Judge Arnold and Assemblyman Clark of Otsego, Republican leaders in that county, have declared for him. Chenango will, it is believed, fall in line, and the nomination may be unanimous.

Professor Thomas is a graduate of Colgate. He was there at about the same time as Governor Hughes, and is a member of Delta Upsilon, the Governor's fraternity. His ability and integrity are recognized in this county, where he is by no means unknown. It is thought that he would come nearer to polling a full party vote than any other man in sight.

Appointment

As Envoy to Germany Popular
friends. His diplomatic work began auspiciously, and in less than a year, which brought his remarkable career to a close, he had fully shown his fitness for the important post.

Weds Sweetheart

lovely Mary Agnew, who had been his only sweetheart since they had sat together in the village school. She was a rarely beautiful character, her pure affection had been his inspiration and safeguard, she was singularly fitted to enter into his aims and hopes and give him a wife's unique help. But a shadow arose in their happy skies, which deepened until the fair girl was hidden from his sight. They sojourned their hearts by marrying, but in a few weeks the young wife passed on. He wrote to a close friend:

"We have loved so long, so intimately and so wholly, that the footsteps of her life have forever left their traces in mine. If my name should be remembered among men, hers will not be forgotten."

The story of his life cannot be understood without some knowledge of this experience, which affected his whole career, and out of which sprang deep questionings. Underneath all the intellectual activity of ensuing years the train of inquiry ran on, and no one can read the early lyrics which reflect his love and sorrow and rebellion, and then read "The Masque of the Gods" and "Prince Demokleion," without seeing how steadily he had progressed in a "straight line toward truth," and how very nearly he had reached the solution of his inquiry.

It is not possible even to name here his various journeys and literary productions and other activities. His pen was invaluable to the Tribune, he wrote several novels, and his journeys into every part of the globe were all transmuted into books.

As a lecturer upon the subject of his travels, he was enthusiastically received all over the continent, and besides these he lectured for several seasons on German literature.

In 1849 he carried out a desire cherished from boyhood, and built a manor home at Kennett, partly upon redeemed ancestral acres. "Cedarcroft" was for many years his delight and the center of a bounteous hospitality. He was aided in all his labors by the wife whom he found in Germany some years earlier, Miss Marie Hansen, the daughter of the distinguished astronomer, and their only child, a little daughter, gladdened the hearthstone. To this home, also, he brought the father and mother and two sisters, taking upon himself the care of all.

He found eventually, however, that he could not live in the country, consistently with his varied work and its claims, and the latter years were spent in New York, when at home.

In 1857 he planted the American flag at a point in Central Africa, farther than it had ever been borne. In 1853, he was within. In all his wanderings, he had carried his home in his heart.

While abroad, his letters to several newspapers had attracted much favorable comment, and he now turned his attention to literary work. After a few experiments and changes he was taken into the work of the New York Tribune as assistant editor, and was always afterward connected, in some capacity, with this newspaper.

In New York he immediately "walked into the literati," as a lampoon of the day recited, with reference to his reputation as a pedestrian, and he made life-long friendships with the best in the world of letters. The swift currents of metropolitan life inspired him. New York seemed to him "almost the only place in this country where the mind can grow without restriction." This view of New York he always retained. He made this distinction: "The intellectual life is higher in the former (Boston) but freer in the latter (New York)."

And now with the brightest financial prospects he had ever known, he planned to carry out the strongest and tenderest wish of his heart, that of making a home with

CHICAGO EXPANDS

POSTAL BUSINESS
Big Sub-Station in Northwestern Depot to Replace Two Other Branches Will Be Opened in Fall.

TERMS OF GREEK

LOAN ANNOUNCED
WASHINGTON—The Greek minister of finance has presented a bill in the Greek Parliament authorizing a loan not to exceed $48,000,000. It is to bear interest at 4 per cent per annum and not more than 52-16 per cent on its effective proceeds. The loan is to extend over a period of 50 years and provision is made for a sinking fund.

The revenues from the proposed sugar monopoly, the revenues of certain custom houses and the proceeds from the railroad lines to be built from the loan are to be pledged as security. The proceeds are to be used in extinguishing the deficits of recent budgets, for the construction of railroads and other public works and to provide for the retirement of the present foreign circulation of one and two drachma paper currency in accordance with a convention of the Latin Union ratified in March, 1900.

CHICAGO — A branch of the Chicago postoffice—destined to be the most important one until the west side postoffice shall be built—is to be established in the new Northwestern railroad station. It will be known as station U, and will replace the present station of that name in the Union station, as well as the Kinzie station in the present Northwestern depot. The date for the opening of the new branch has been set for Oct. 1.

The tonnage of mail which is handled every day through the two branches which are to be consolidated represents a very important part of the bulk of the city's postal business. The outgoing mail at station U frequently runs as high as 100 tons a day, while the total for the city averages about 350 tons.

On this account the establishment of the new station at Canal and Washington streets, directly under the trainshed of the Northwestern terminal, will serve to relieve postal congestion and take from the streets a large portion of transit mail that now is hauled by wagon. Tube service is being installed and three large air-compressing plants are to be put in a basement under the main chamber of the new branch. Tube service with the main postoffice will be put in operation at the outset, and ultimately similar connections will be effected with station C, station D, Carpenter street station, Pilson station and Douglass Park.

PORTLAND, Ore.—The new directory for 1910, just out, estimates the population of Portland at 279,000. This is an increase of 15,000 over the estimate of 1909, when the number was fixed at 255,000.

With 279,000 inhabitants in Portland now, the increase has been exactly 300 per cent since the official federal census was taken 10 years ago, when the figures were a trifle over 90,000.

Counsel and Play for the Boys and Girls TRIP AROUND THE WORLD Westward from Boston—II

STATUE OF LIBERTY, NEW YORK HARBOR.

THE first stop in our trip around the world with the boy and girl readers of The Christian Science Monitor is at New York. Here we are in the metropolis of over four million people. There are numerous places of interest which we might visit, chief among them Central park, with its fine zoo, but instead of going up the island let us take a ride down the harbor to the statue of Liberty. This is the work of the great French sculptor, Auguste Bartholdi, who was born at Colmar in 1833. He started as a painter, but soon turned his attention to sculpture. At the age of 19 he produced a notable bas-relief of France da Rimini, which won him his first laurels. During the Franco-German war he fought as a volunteer. In 1878 he produced the "Lion of Belfort," a colossal monument to the heroism of a beleaguered garrison, carved in solid rock. For this the government bestowed upon him the cross of the Legion of Honor.

The statue of "Liberty Enlightening the World" was a gift from the people of France to those of the United States and glorifies the friendship of the two nations. It stands on Bedloe's island at the entrance to New York harbor. The island got its name from Isaac Bedloe, a Dutch settler. On this island the national government erected a star-shaped fort in 1841, and it was decided that a lofty pedestal for the statue should be built in the square within the fort.

Made of sheets of copper from one to three feet square beaten into shape to correspond to Bartholdi's model, the statue was first set up in Paris in 1884, where it remained in view till 1885, when it was carefully taken down and brought to America. The inauguration here took place Oct. 28, 1886. The dimensions are as follows: Height from base to torch, 151 feet 1 inch; height of pedestal, 89 feet; height of statue to top of head, 111 feet 6 inches; length of hand, 16 feet 5 inches; length of right arm, 42 feet; head, from chin to cranium, 17 feet 3 inches. The statue weighs 450,000 pounds. Forty persons can stand comfortably in the head, and the torch will hold 12 people. Hundreds of ships are guided nightly by its light. A flight of steps leads up through the interior of the statue to the veranda of the torch, or the balcony of the pedestal, whence a splendid view is had.

(Monitor boys and girls might make quite an interesting volume if they would cut out these Round the World illustrated sketches, printed on Saturdays, and put them in a scrap-book.)

SMALL ENTERPRISES THAT PAID.

A Pennsylvania girl gathered and washed feathers and down for a whole year. The next summer she made it into pillows, using attractive ticking and chintz, and sold them to guests at a mountain resort eight miles away. She offered the pillows at a trifle less than the price asked in city shops, but the appeal to city folk lay in the fact that they were real feather pillows from the country.

A girl who lived in New Jersey, within commuting distance of New York, started a hotbed, raising fresh lettuce and radishes. These she carried to New York in a suitcase and sold to other people working in the office where she was employed. Today that girl has a good sized truck farm, employs several hands and does not have to work in a city office—Exchange.

NATIONAL GREETINGS.

The other day two little girls met in the street car. They hadn't seen each other for quite a long time, so they shook hands heartily and said, "Why, how do you do?" at the same moment. Had these two met in England the greeting would have been much the same, but in France they would have said, "How do you carry yourself?" In Italy, "How do you stand?" In Germany, "How do you find yourself?" In Holland, "How do you fare?" In Sweden, "How can you?" In Poland, "How do you have yourself?" In Russia, "How do you live on?" In Persia, "May thy shadow never be less." Which do you like the best?—Selected.

What game?

ANSWER TO YESTERDAY'S PICTURE PUZZLE.
Empty pocketbook.

VINEGAR TAFFY.

Two and one half cups of granulated sugar, 1-3 cup of vinegar, 2-3 cup of water; let ingredients boil until a trial portion cracks in cold water. Pour on buttered tin to cool until stiff enough to handle, then pull until white and cut in small pieces.

A LITTLE GIRL'S WISH.

I wish I were a butterfly
How many things I'd see.
I'd dance along the sunlit sky,
How happy I would be.
I'd flit among the golden flowers,
And ever on the wing
I'd find delight through all the hours,
But then I could not sing.
I wish I were a little bird
To warble in the trees
The sweetest music ever heard
On every passing breeze.
Into the morning sky I'd soar.
Then dive to earth and walk.
What little girl could wish for more?
Alas! I could not talk.
I would not be a parrot, no,
Or cross and scolding jay.
I would not be a silly crow
To sit and caw all day.
And O an owl I would not be
To hoot and hoot at night.
I am glad so glad I'm only me
With mamma just in sight.

COLD WATER MUSIC.

This is an old amusement, but only those who have tried it know how much melody may lurk in a glass of water. If you have eight thin tumblers of the same size and shape, you may make a musical scale easily. Each tumbler contains a certain amount of cold water, more or less, according to the volume of sound required; this you may find out practically by dipping your finger in the water and drawing it briskly round and round the sharp outer rim of your glass. This produces a musical note.

The fuller the glass the deeper the note. The swift motion of the finger round the edge produces a vibration on the surface of the water, particularly if the edge is thin and clean cut.

The glasses, with graduated amounts of water, might be placed in regular scale order on a table covered with both cloth and table felt. At each glass put a performer with a good ear for music and a steady middle finger, which is the best and strongest to use. In this way all familiar airs may be produced with some really sweet vibrations.—Children's Star Magazine.

PRONUNCIATION OF "IRON."

The London Ironmonger of recent date says: "A discussion has been going on in a daily paper as to the correct pronunciation of the word 'iron,' whether it should be 'i-urn' or 'i-ron.' The only answer that one can make is that by long usage 'i-urn' has come to be accepted by educated people generally as the right way to pronounce the name of the metal. In the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries, according to Dr. Murray, the word was frequently written 'i-urn' and doubtless so pronounced. What seems to have happened in this, as in many other cases, is that the spelling has undergone certain changes while the pronunciation has remained fairly constant. At any rate, it is too late in the day now to expect Englishmen to revert to so pedantic an utterance as 'i-ron,' and in all probability, therefore, 'i-urn' will continue to be as long as the language and the metal endure."

The editor of the Bulletin has frequently heard southern gentlemen, particularly Virginians, say "i-ron," a pronunciation which undoubtedly is inherited from their English forefathers.—Bulletin of American Iron and Steel Association.

The Indian Trail

THE photograph offered with this story in the camera contest was not very clear, and could not be used; but The Monitor is pleased to print the sketch. It comes from Elizabeth Furbur, aged 14, who lives in Roxbury. She writes:

"Ever since I was a very small girl I have gone every summer to our farm at Southport, on the coast of Maine. Southport is a densely wooded island. The houses are all along the shore. The island is five miles long and a mile and a half wide.

"The Indian trail is a little path running through the island from east to west.

"One summer morning I went with some friends for a walk along the trail. The sky was a bright blue, with an occasional white cloud; the trees were very green and the white birches shone out brightly amid the black trunks of the pines and spruces.

"As we walked along we picked a few blueberries, bush berries and checkerberries. Once a little brown rabbit scurried across the path and disappeared in the dense underbrush. A little farther on we saw some children picking berries in big tin pails.

"The walk was very enjoyable. I am sorry to say that last summer a great deal of the wood was cut down. Barren stretches now remain, but in a few years they will be covered with blueberries. This will no doubt be a great help to the berry pickers of the region.

PONY JEWEL AND HIS PLAYMATES.

Scene in Newton Highlands, Mass. Award won by Priscilla Spaulding of Springfield, Mass.

THE illustration shows a happy party of children at Newton Highlands and the pony Jewel. There is also a Teddy bear, which bright eyes may discover. Priscilla Spaulding of Springfield, who sent in the photograph and wins the $1 award this week in the Monitor camera contest, calls the group "Jewel and His Playmates." The boy and girls are her cousins. They make quite a load for Jewel, but he looks fat and well cared for, and doubtless enjoys taking the youngsters about.

Honorable mention: D. E. Bridgman, Lebanon, N. H.; Francis Hawks, Minneapolis, Minn.; Elizabeth Kalb, Crockett, Tex.; Mary L. Rich, Bedford, Mass.; Ruth Hayward, San Jose, Cal.; Elizabeth H. Shelley, San Jose, Cal.

In the Monitor's camera contest, as now conducted, $1 will be paid for the best photograph received each week; there will be no second prize. The subjects may be historic places, quaint houses, parks, picturesque landscapes, marine views, river views, old bridges, school gardens or playgrounds, or children at play. With the photograph should be sent a title and the location of the view.

If a suitable descriptive story of not over 200 words comes with the picture and is used it will be paid for. Write name and address plainly and enclose stamps if return of the picture is desired. Send to "Children's Page," The Christian Science Monitor, Falmouth and St. Paul streets, Boston, Mass.

Winners of prizes are debared from further competition.

THE CANDLE AND THE FUNNEL.

Ask a person to extinguish a lighted candle, two feet distant from his mouth, by blowing through a common tin funnel with his lips applied to the stem. Almost invariably, he will fail to accomplish the feat, although he could easily have blown out the candle without using the funnel. Now put your own mouth to the stem of the funnel and blow out the candle. If you have any skill in performing tricks you can repeat this one many times without betraying its secret to the average spectator.

The secret is this: When you blow into the small end of a funnel, your breath follows the inner surface of the cone, and not only shuns the axis, but produces eddies of such a character that there is actually a slight back draft or inward current at the center of the wide mouth of the funnel. You, therefore, hold the funnel so that some part of its conical surface would, if extended, strike the candle flame.

An inexperienced person naturally directs the axis of the funnel toward the candle and consequently fails to extinguish the flame. If he stands quite near the candle and blows gently the flame will even be drawn toward the funnel by the inward current. The whirling motion of the air may be made visible by using a glass funnel and filling it with smoke.—Scientific American.

HONEST PEASANT.

A Russian merchant traveling in Siberia stopped one night at the hut of a peasant. In the morning, in continuing his journey, he discovered that he had lost his purse, containing a large sum of money. The peasant's son, a boy of about 14 years of age, found the purse while out hunting; but instead of taking it up, he went and told his father, who was equally unwilling to touch it, and ordered the boy to cover it with some bushes. A few months after, the merchant returned and stopped at the same hut, but the peasant did not recognize him. He related the loss he had met with on his former journey. The peasant listened very attentively; and when he had finished, said: "My son here will show you the spot where it lies; no hand has touched it, but the one which covered it, that you might recover what you had lost."—Exchange.

STRENGTH IN ROOTS.

Strength is not a thing usually connected with the maidenhair fern, yet if its roots have not sufficient room they will break the pot in which the plant grows. Blades of grass will force the curbstones between which they spring up out of their place, and in a single night a crop of small mushrooms have lifted a large stone. Indeed, plants have been known to break the hardest rocks. The island of Aldabra, to the northwest of Madagascar, is becoming smaller and smaller through the action of the mangroves that grow along the foot of the cliffs. They eat their way into the rock in all directions and into the gaps thus formed the waves force their way. In time they will probably reduce the island to pieces.—The Boys' World.

MONITOR BOOK OF GAMES

DRAWING CONTEST.

SUPPLY each person with a pencil and paper, and at a signal each must draw a line on his paper, either straight, curved or jagged. The papers are then signed in the lower right hand corner and are collected and redistributed so that no person receives his own again. Then each player is told to draw some kind of an animal, using the line already on the paper as part of the beast.

A certain time should be allowed and then the papers should be signed in the lower left hand corner. They are then collected and exhibited on a table or by pinning them to a sheet on the wall. Some very curious drawings will be produced, as many of the lines may be rather hard to utilize.

A prize might be offered for the best drawing, and the "booby" prize could be the right to select any of the drawings that the winner should want, the rest of them to be distributed among the players as souvenirs of the game.

POTATOES.

To play the game of "Potatoes" requires a basket of potatoes, some large and some small. They are laid in a line about a foot apart. One person at a time kneels and walks along on his or her knees and tries with a teaspoon to gather up the potatoes and put them into a basket. A timekeeper notes the length of time each spends in picking up the potatoes. The one who gathers them in the shortest time wins the prize.

The Monitor prints one or two games each Saturday. Cut out and paste in blank book and soon you will have a good collection.

RIDDLE.

There's a queer little house—
And it sits in the sun;
When the good mother calls
The children all run;
While under her roof
It is cosy and warm,
Though the cold winds may whistle
And bluster and storm.

In the daytime that queer
And the children run after
So happy and gay.
But it comes back at night,
And the children are fed
And tucked up to sleep
In their warm cosy bed.

This queer little house
Has no windows or doors;
The roof has no chimneys,
The rooms have no floors;
No fireplaces, chimneys,
Nor stoves can you see,
Yet the children are cosy
And warm as can be.

Gentlemen—The 13x18 reproduction of the "Triumph of Truth Over Error" has reached me and I cannot praise it too highly as a faithful reproduction of the original picture.

Both detail and general effect have been kept to a degree which surpasses the smaller color print which you recently published. In fact, I did not think it possible to reproduce the work so well as you have done it.

With sincere congratulations for your success and thanking you for the beautiful proofs, I remain,
Truly yours,

Woman Compels Reform

To Mrs. Albion Fellows Bacon of Evansville belongs the credit of having reformed Indiana by having the new tenement law passed. She is a little slip of a woman, whose big earnest brown eyes are her dominant feature. With a daughter already several inches taller than her mother, twins of 8 years and another child, she has what many women would consider "her hands full."

And she is a woman whose chief interests are of the home. She was instrumental in having a bill passed to relieve the tenement conditions of Indianapolis and Evansville, which were almost as bad as those of New York. The bill declares that no tenement hereafter erected shall occupy more than 65 per cent of a lot or more than 85 per cent of a corner lot; that it must not be higher than once and a half the width of the street on which it stands; that it must have a rear yard at least 15 feet deep, and that no rear tenements shall be erected.

The new law guarantees to each grown person at least 400 cubic feet of air and to every child at least 200, for thus must air be bargained for, and the "sweet common light." Indianapolis as the center of such humanitarianism due to this woman bids fair to acquire as wide a reputation for new philanthropy as it already has for modern literature.

Landscape Scenes

LANDSCAPE and scenes of real life have influenced those who have plied the needle and worked in wool, silk, cotton and other delicate materials. The wonderful tapestries with which baronial halls were hung and made more homelike were generally pictorial. Among the earliest specimens are those in Spanish needlework, worked by Katharine of Aragon and the ladies of her court, an art which the Queen learned from her mother, Isabella of Spain. Queen Mary of England was fond of needlework and in her days embroidery became fashionable. Then came the stump work of the Stuarts, a kind of embroidery in relief, the design, first drawn on linen, being raised by padding with wool and other materials, which were afterward crossed by long stitches, giving most realistic effects. Thus old English flowers and rustic scenes were formed, although drawing and perspective were not always correct.

With education and the knowledge of how to read and write there came the idea of fixing that knowledge on the minds of girls in their sewing lessons. Then a new kind of needlework picture gradually evolved, starting with the crude

A Southern Woman

THERE is no more exceptional educational institution in America than the Berry school for mountain whites, near Rome, Ga., and yet the whole work grew out of a little Sunday school that Miss Martha Berry established in the mountains near Possum Trot, Ga., less than 10 years ago. At that time Miss Berry was residing on an estate which was at that time left of the fortune of the southern family to which she belonged, says a writer in Human Life. In taking her walks she was impressed by the desolate condition of the mountain children. Their parents were too poor to supply them with anything more than the bare necessities of life, and they were growing up in utter indifference to everything that pertained to education. To remedy this to a small degree she invited a number of them to meet her every Sunday at a little cabin she owned, and then undertook to teach them a few of the things the most needed to know.

At the time Miss Berry had no thought of establishing a permanent school. Instead of being a temporary affair, however, the school

Women and the Cost of Living

It is lazy women who make the cost of living high, so says an eminent multimillionaire, ought to know better. He says that wives do not go to market, but depend on butcher boys and the telephone to do marketing, with the result that they get the poorest sort of foodstuffs at the highest prices. It is a terrible indictment if true, something ought to be done to the ladies. But is it true? We think not. The multimillionaire, from the vantage point of his private car or limousine, may get a wrong perspective of society. He is generally seeing pictures of things instead of the things themselves.

It is quite true that there are some women who do not go to market, but these are they who care not what the prices be. They can afford anything. But 99 per cent of the women who supervise the domestic table know pretty well what is in the market and where to get the cheapest. The allowance for the table in most households has not increased in the last few years.

There are mighty few wives who do not know to a fraction where the best and cheapest are to be found, and only available foodstuffs are to be found. Ask any butcher or grocer whether women do not know about prices!

The proof lies in the fact that women are the economists of the home. If it were only a matter of food, the situation would be simple, but in these days women have to dress better than ever before, and the only way they can do so is by exercising the closest scrutiny over every expenditure. It is a libel on the sex to say that they spend lavishly and extravagantly on the table, when there are so many things to be bought for personal adornment. The truth is that women are very keen economists. They may not know so much about the chemistry of cooking as they should, may be deficient in a knowledge of the way in which a great variety of foodstuffs might be used to advantage, but they are not spending a cent which is unnecessary. The causes are farther to seek and are pretty well known to every intelligent person.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Sembrich in Texas

Mme. Sembrich writes to the New York Woman's Magazine:

The banner incident of my concert career occurred only a year ago, in Texas. I was booked for a recital in Dallas during the week of the Texas State Fair. As I drove from the depot to the hotel, our carriage passed under a great advertising banner swung across the principal street.

On the banner were large pictures of the women.

One of the pictures was mine and I was heralded as the world's greatest prima donna. The lady of the other picture was proclaimed the world's greatest fair woman, and she looked from her picture. We shared honors as the two big attractions of fair week.

Women Want Senator

Miss Vida Goldstein of Melbourne has been nominated for the senate of federated Australia by the Women's Political Association of Victoria, of which she is the president, on a nonpartisan platform. The main planks in this platform are uniform divorce and marriage laws and opposition to the cultivation of the military spirit by the boys of Australia. The new defense bill said to have aroused the opposition of the women of Australia, providing, as it does, for the military training of all boys from 12 years old up. The cause of this bill the women have determined to have a woman to represent them in the senate.—Chicago Journal.

PARIS WEEKLY FASHION LETTER

By Mme. Murielle Loeb

(Copyright by Mme. Murielle Loeb, 1910.)

PARIS—Another point to remark upon is that the one-piece white lawn princess dresses are invariably trimmed with embroidery instead of lace, either wide bands or narrow bendings, as may be the case, but always embroidery, never or very seldom lace.

White muslin princess dresses trimmed with colored embroideries are much shown in Paris now at the big maidens; these are strikingly pretty, and are usually accompanied by a sunhat and colored embroideries. The effect of this combination is quite charming.

All the department shops in Paris are showing a very quaint style of blouse, and it is "taking" admirably. It is composed of figured foulard that is sun-plaited, fastens at the back, and has a wide Dutch collar of Irish crochet. These new blouse-waists sell for seven dollars, a price at which they go very quickly.

MILLINERY DEPARTMENT.

A new and most original hat has made its appearance in Paris and everybody thinks so well of it that my assistant deems it advisable to write especially about it.

It is a summer hat and it sells for $10, being essentially a "popular priced" model, and one that is designed to suit the taste of those who are not over exclusive, and who do not object if other people have the same style hat as they.

It is composed of gingham in a large plaid design, and it is a big shady shape; the gingham is sun-plaited (accordion) and the wide brim is edged with a pretty val lace; the crown is full and "puffed" and the trimming consists of a big, many looped bow of wide silk ribbon that exactly matches the gingham in color and design! These hats were shown in several shades and designs of plaid.

The new model is highly original, indeed very stylish, and it is of a type that instinctively attracts; my assistant says, "Nothing could be more original or more truly Parisian than these simple and low priced hats, and there is not a doubt but that they will be universally popular when the weather permits their being worn."

NEW SASHES FOR SUMMER WEAR.

Fashion has decreed that colored sashes are to be worn with the white wash dresses of the coming summer.

In consequence some of the most novel sashes were recently shown destined to be worn with some very dainty gowns that were going to the Riviera.

These sashes did not go around the waist, but instead they merely were long loops and ends, and they were held in place by a big buckle that was made entirely of flowers; this buckle is placed at the side, just at the waist line, and the sash falls thence to the bottom of the gown.

The flower buckles may be either round or square, and sometimes the silk sash loops are supplemented by loops of flower garlands, made of flowers the same as those forming the buckle.

A particularly successful one was formed of white and yellow daisies, the sash being of yellow satin and the extra loops of trails of yellow daisies; the buckle was of the daisies too, only much smaller.

The effect of these new sashes on a white gown is simply ravishing, and in Paris it is believed that they will have just as much success as did the corsage bouquets that have been so phenomenally popular.

Favors Home Products

Mrs. Clarence H. Mackay is one of the women who is joining in the movement to support "home industries" in the agricultural line which Secretary Wilson has been at such pains to foster. As a general rule, only American-grown products are found in the Mackay household. Wilson set the ball rolling by sending around to women who are large entertainers and whom he thought might be interested, sample packages of pepper, paprika and other spices which were grown in this country, with the proposition they be given a trial, in comparison with the stock importations from the east. The secretary of agriculture sees wide opportunities open to American farmers in the growing of spices, for experiment has shown that practically any plant can be grown on this continent by the employment of the newest methods of agriculture, properly applied to special cases. The American spices are found to be fully equal to those of Java and the West Indies in flavor, and the women whom Wilson has succeeded in interesting in his scheme are now at work spreading the news to create a market sufficiently wide to encourage the efforts of the American farmer in this new direction.—Chicago Journal.

Love

That love would temper every change
And soften all surprise,
And misty with the dreams of earth,
The hills of Heaven arise.
—Whittier.

Dining Car Kitchens

The kitchen of a dining car is a most exaggerated example of the economy of space. Every inch is used. Watertanks are suspended from the ceiling. One wall is lined with the range and heating ovens, while on the other are storage boxes, receptacles for pans, pots and other utensils, and a row of cupboards under the ceiling. At one end, between the kitchen and the dining car proper, is a sort of vestibule. There is where the waiters place their orders and receive dishes.

Every separate article of food and equipment has its place. Every corner and nook in the car has a particular function. The silver is in one place, the milk and cheese in another, the meat in another, and so on through the list. Everything perishable is kept in a refrigerator.

While the car is "in action" the conductor, from his position between dining room and kitchen, keeps his eyes upon the 10 tables and endeavors to see that none of the diners is neglected. For all the supplies on the car he is held to strict account. On his "trip sheet," as it is called, is put a list of everything taken on the car when it starts out. A record of all articles sold is entered upon the sheet, and when the car comes "home" again all that has not been sold must be on hand.

The equipment of a dining car conforms to standards just as do locomotives, trucks, rails and ties. Dishes are made according to established patterns, each piece of china having the company's monogram upon it.

THE HOUSEHOLD

sampler, in which the child was taught to form the letters of the alphabet and numerals, often surrounded these curious lessons with stiff and formal trees and quaint little men and women. Stages, houses and other crude structures of the Noah's ark type. As school life became more advanced, the sampler was discarded, and girls and women, too, occupied their time in plying the needle and forming quaint little pictures. In the eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries scriptural and other allegorical scenes were worked in wool.

Then came "print work," imitating line and needlework, delicate works of art wrought in silk or on satin, oftentimes the rovings of shape and human hair filling in the finely shaded parts. For a long spell during the later years of the Victorian era needlework fell into disuse. But of late years there has been an attempt to revive this beautiful work, and the schools of art needlework and guilds of women workers have entered the growing interest in needlework. But how different, and how infinitely more beautiful, are the exquisite patterns worked by the ladies of today compared with those crude attempts of their ancestors!—Victoria Colonist.

Men's Noble Work

son made itself an institution, practically without any effort on her part. So far as the children of the "poor whites" were concerned, they not only crowded her cabin to more than its full capacity every Sunday, but they finally came to her with the request that a day school be added. For a time it looked as if the movement had come to a point beyond which it could not go, but finally Miss Berry screwed up sufficient courage to make a trip to the north, that she might tell some of the rich philanthropists about her "poor white" boys and her mountain school. It was an interesting story that she had to tell, and she told it so well that she went back to her pupils with funds sufficient not only to maintain the school but to enlarge it.

Today the school has 1000 acres of land, much of it under cultivation, and several fine buildings, in which 15 teachers are kept busy instructing the 150 pupils, not only in the studies of the ordinary school but in the useful trades as well. Miss Berry is now engaged in raising an endowment fund sufficient to support it, and has already secured $25,000 each from Andrew Carnegie and Mrs. Russell Sage.—Chicago Journal.

Women in the Law

Few people realize that fully 20,000 American women of today have qualified for the law, says the New Idea Magazine. Nearer the average conception is the number who have become advocates before the United States supreme court—40. Yet it is undeniable that there are splendid opportunities for women lawyers, and the 20,000 of today promises to be largely increased in the coming years, one of the most authoritative legal publications declaring that women are needed to analyze, digest and classify the 250,000 decisions of federal and state courts handed down in the 10 years ending with 1910. The fact that out of 10,000 admitted lawyers only 40 appear before the gowned justices at Washington does not imply that the remainder are engaged in housekeeping or other pursuits. These women lawyers are representing their clients and appearing before the courts of their own states doing valuable and remunerative legal work.

Growing Nasturtiums

Of nasturtiums there are dwarf and climbing varieties, to suit all situations, with flowers practically alike. Any ordinary well-drained soil will support them perfectly, even though it is decidedly thin. In fact, they blossom better in such earth than in very rich.

Sow as early as the ground is ready. The dwarf or Tom Thumb division will be in bloom in two months, insects will leave them alone—aphids colonize unpleasantly on the climbers sometimes—and they will still be blossoming when the frost comes if picked freely. This is one of the most annuals, in fact; liberally picking induces generous flowering, for they go on, industriously bent on producing seed, until allowed to go to seed.—Womans Home Companion.

How to Wash Pillows

Place on the stove a large clothes-boiler and measure the water as you fill it. For each gallon of water allow one bar of good laundry soap. Dissolve the soap, and when the water is tepid immerse a single pillow-tick, feather and all. If the ticking is much soiled, or if the water is hard, add household ammonia in the proportion of a tablespoonful to a gallon of water. Allow the pillow to boil for 20 minutes; then, having ready a second boiler, or galvanized tub, of clean tepid water, remove the pillow (a pair of tongs will be found convenient for this purpose) and plunge it into the second tub, place this on the stove, and let the water come up to the boiling point; then remove from the stove, but let the pillow remain in the water till it is safe to put your hands in and press the pillow, to see if all the soap has been washed out. If it has not, a second rinsing will be necessary. Remove from the tub and press out as much water as you can; then hang on the clothes-line in the sun. While the pillows are drying, shake and punch them as often as may be convenient. —Ladies Home Journal.

An Effective Wall Cleaning Plan

One of the best ways of cleaning walls—that is, removing dust from them—is to take a large pad of cotton batting and place it in a loosely woven piece of soft cheesecloth, and go over every part of the walls with it, changing to a clean piece of cheesecloth when necessary, says the Pittsburgh Sun.

This is an improvement over the old plan of wiping the walls with the batting alone, because it is impossible to leave the tiniest atom of lint when the batting is enclosed in the cheesecloth.

DAINTY SUMMER DRESSES

A dress well adapted for graduation exercises.

THE dresses for the younger folk are exceedingly dainty this season. Here are two, one designed for the older girl, one for her little sister. The latter is shown of linen with the trimming of embroidery. It is made in semi-princess style with a full length panel at the front. This panel can be made of all-over in this case or it can be trimmed or it can be embroidered by hand. The skirt is straight and gathered. The sleeves can be made long or short, but are in one piece each, the short ones gathered into bands, the long ones left loose at the wrists.

The older girl's dress is an exceedingly charming one made from dotted batiste and trimmed with embroidered banding. It is finished with a little gathered frill at the neck, or "modestie," and it is made with double sleeves. Altogether it is chic and lovely in the extreme. As illustrated, it is especially well adapted to graduation and occasions of the sort, but the same model can be made with a yoke, leaving it high at the neck if liked, and the long under sleeves can be omitted.

The above patterns may be had for 10 cents from the May Manton Pattern Company, 132 East 23d street, New York, or Masonic Temple, Chicago.

Rugs and Carpets With Many New Weaves

The oriental has long been considered the acme of elegance and luxury and durability in a rug for the well-appointed home, with the result that one sees them of every quality in homes where they are not in harmony with the other furnishings, says the Portland Oregonian.

Decorators, when consulted, always advise against an oriental rug that is not of the first quality, and often find that the domestic weaves are better adapted to the general tone of the house than the oriental, at any price.

They maintain that a $50 or $60 domestic rug is better from any point of view than a $100 oriental. This fact should be well considered before investing in floor coverings that are expected to be used for several years at least.

Among the staple lines the Wilton, the Axminster and Brussels have seemed to lead in popular favor for some time. There is an infinite variety of designs in these rugs, which include the oriental patterns, floral and conventional designs and two-tone stripe or border effects. The Smyrna rug for a modest floor covering is unexcelled in durability and attractive colorings and designs. This may be found in floral or oriental patterns, size 9x12, for $28.50.

It is a heavy, seamless, tufted rug, and the fact that it is reversible commends it to the thrifty. Ingrain art squares are especially desirable for bedrooms and come in many soft colorings at $9 for 9x12 size.

There are many styles of handwoven rugs on the market which are known variously as colonial, rag or fluff rugs. These had their birth in the rag carpets of our grandmothers, whose striped gayness was woven on primitive looms from scraps of ribbon, calico, old dress goods, etc.

The fact that it is very difficult, in weaving these rugs, to obtain proper tension in regard to the thickness of the fabric, which varies greatly, accounts for their continuing to be handwoven.

This permits of a variety of patterns and of rugs being woven to order in colors that may be desired. At first considered appropriate for the bath room only, their popularity has increased until they are much used for bedroom rugs.

For the summer home there are many inexpensive grass rugs which add comfort and beauty to the veranda, and are often very effective in the living-rooms of a bungalow when the rest of the furnishings are of the same character.

ONE-PIECE OVER BLOUSE.

The over blouse that is made in what is known as peasant style, or cut with sleeves and body portion in one, is a pretty one much worn just now. This model can be finished with a round or a square neck as liked and worn over any guimpe. Found with bands of messaline is the material illustrated but such over blouses are used for the simpler cotton and linen materials as well as for silk and wool. They are pretty made from chiffon or marquisette over silk or other materials and often are liked with yoke to match, the guimpe and the underskirt being made of contrasting material.

The quantity of material required for the medium size is 2 1/4 yards 21 or 24, 1 1/2 yards 32 or 1 3/4 yards 44 inches wide with 3/4 yard of silk.

The pattern (No. 0023) may be had in sizes from 32 to 40 inches bust measure and can be obtained at any May Manton agency or will be mailed to any address on receipt of price (10c), by May Manton Pattern Company, 132 East Twenty-third street, New York; or Masonic Temple, Chicago, Ill.

SOME TRIED RECIPES.

POT ROAST.
Buy a square piece of meat from the round. Insist on a chunk rather than a long thin piece. Press this down on a hot frying pan and sear, first on one side, then on the other; this keeps the juices from escaping. Cover it with water and let it simmer for a long time. When half done put in plenty of minced vegetables, chopped onions and pepper and salt. Cook until it is tender and the liquid pretty well absorbed.

RICE OMELET.
Beat the yolks of four eggs until light and stir into them one teaspoonful of cold boiled rice, one teaspoonful of salt, one half of a teaspoonful of pepper and one teaspoonful of milk. Froth the whites of the eggs and add them to the mixture. Turn into a buttered pudding dish and bake in a moderate oven.

SUBSTITUTE FOR MEAT.
For each person allow one tablespoonful of each of the following ingredients: Grated cheese, finely rolled crackers, milk and one egg. Have ready individual plates with a toasted cracker on each. Put a teaspoonful of butter in a hot frying pan, then the cheese, milk and crackers, lastly well beaten eggs. Salt to taste and a dash of red pepper. Cook two minutes, stirring briskly. This is a cheese dish suitable for a midday lunch or a chafing dish supper. Stale cheese is better than fresh for this. One may keep a supply on hand by grating all the left over scraps and putting them in a tightly corked bottle in a dry place.

BEEF STEW WITH MACARONI AND TOMATOES.
Two pounds neck beef (two-inch pieces), one onion, one can tomatoes one half pound macaroni and one bay leaf. Brown beef and onion. Add tomatoes and one pint water. Salt and pepper to taste. Add broken macaroni the last half hour of cooking. Time, two hours.

BOILED CUSTARD.
Put a quart of new milk on in the double boiler. Beat the yolks of six eggs with two thirds of a teaspoonful of sugar, add to the milk and cook until it begins to thicken and the egg tastes done, then remove from the stove. Flavor with a teaspoonful of salt and serve the custard ice cold with a tablespoonful of frothed egg on each glass of custard.

REAL ESTATE NEWS

The volume of business transacted at the registry of deeds during the month of March was very gratifying to realty men. Increases over the corresponding month of 1909 and 1908 were shown in all items, with the exception of that of transfers, which showed a slight decrease as compared with 1909, but was ahead of March, 1908. A good gain was made in the number and the value of mortgages filed in March this year over March 1909 and 1908.

Considerable building is going on, necessitating the placing of large mortgages upon properties under improvement, and also upon estates to change ownership. The rates of interest are somewhat lower, and the feeling is becoming better among those who have large trust funds to loan, as well as savings banks, resulting in several low rate mortgages being placed on Back Bay property and city proper estates.

The files of the real estate exchange show the following entries of record at the Suffolk registry of deeds for the month of March, 1909:

	1910.	1909.	1908.
No. transfers...	2,043	2,122	1,676
No. mortgages...	1,028	928	668
Ant. mortgages...	$4,555,889	$4,111,454	$3,338,126

The property numbered 93 Mt. Vernon street, near Louisburg square, Beacon hill, has been sold through the office of Codman & Street to John G. Palfrey, a lawyer in the India building. Elizabeth G. Ford is the grantor. The total assessment is $15,000, of which $6,500 is on the 1857 square feet of land in the lot and $8,500 on the four-story brick house on the site.

It is expected that the final papers will soon be passed through the office of the above brokers in the sale of two more properties in this section of the city, involving more than $20,000 in assessed valuation. The titles are now being examined and as soon as they are found to be clear the deeds will be recorded.

A transfer of Back Bay realty just reported is the sale of the four-story swell-front brick house and 2688 feet of land numbered 467 Beacon street, near Massachusetts avenue, title to which has passed from Horace H. Stevens and others to Helen L. Kennard. The assessors value the land at $14,800 and the building at $20,700.

LEASE TO NEW TRUST COMPANY.

The Paul Revere Trust Company, recently organized, has leased for a term of years the entire five-story building at 70-80 Washington street, Boston, assessed for $73,000, from the pair of Solomon Wildes. The street front after extensive alterations will be used by the trust company for its banking room.

Arrangements have been made with the Whitcomb Metallic Bedstead Company, who have occupied the same building for the last 13 years, to retain their present quarters with the exception of the street floor.

WEST ROXBURY TRANSACTION.

Warren F. Freeman of the Kimball building reports the sale on private terms of the estate at 171 Maple street, Highland station, West Roxbury, consisting of a new 12-room frame dwelling with all modern improvements, together with about 5000 square feet of land, to Frederick E. Atwood of Brookline who will occupy for a home. The house being new is not assessed.

SOMERVILLE-EVERETT.

The sale is reported through the Massachusetts Realty Company of the residence and stable at No. 21 Francisco avenue, West Somerville, owned by Alice H. Taylor. There is a lot of land, containing 6000 feet, the whole estate being assessed on $8890, of which $1500 is on the lot. The purchaser, James A. Luce, buys for occupancy.

The same firm reports the transfer of the two-family house, numbered 12 and 14 Elm street, Everett, for Samuel J.

First National Exhibition in China

The national exhibition at Nanking, to be held during May-October of this year, will be the first of its kind in China. To pay for it $413,000 has been raised. "The two brick" buildings which are being erected for foreign exhibits will give 30,000 square feet of floor space. The American, British, German and Japanese merchants have secured 5000 square feet each. Our consulate at Nanking wants American catalogues of manufactures in 25, 50 or a hundred lots for proper marking and distribution.—Milwaukee Free Press.

Richmond Castle

Richmond castle, which may shortly become the property of the nation, was originally one of the strongest of Norman keeps. It was probably founded by Alan Rufus, one of the sons of the Duke of Brittany, who took a prominent part in the suppression of the Saxons. At a later age the castle passed into the possession of Edmund Tudor, who married Margaret Beaufort and became the father of Henry VII. Henry was born Earl of Richmond and he bestowed the title upon the magnificent palace which when King of England he built upon the banks of the Thames. Thus the Richmond beloved of cockneys has a comparatively modern origin. The curfew, by the way, is still rung from the tower of Richmond castle at 6 a. m. and 8 p. m., a custom "that has continued ever since the time of William the Conqueror."—Exchange.

THE OLD HISTORIC DAL TREE OF EGYPT

WITH the arrival of ex-President Roosevelt at Khartum the town has attracted more than usual attention. Among the many facts reported in connection with the arrival of the ex-President and his party at what is practically the close of his trip, one is of special interest. It is that Mr. Roosevelt, instead of proceeding immediately on landing to Khartum, preferred to sit awhile under a great tree which stands alone on the banks of the White Nile, and there to write the closing sentences of the book which contains the account of his recent travels.

Mr. Roosevelt is not the first great man who has used the shelter of this solitary dal tree. It was here that the famous General Gordon used to sit some 25 years ago and look for the signs of the approach of troops which should come to his assistance from England. It will be remembered that the Moslem population had risen in revolt, and, defeating the armies of Egypt, had isolated her garrisons. It was early in 1884 that Gordon Pasha proceeded for the second time to the Sudan, and it was shortly after his arrival at Khartum that the place was invested by the troops of the Mahdi, the leader of the Sudan revolt. It was during this period that the famous general resorted to the tree referred to, to deliberate on the great questions of the day and to look for the assistance of which he stood so much in need. All this doubtless recurred to Mr. Roosevelt as he sat there not many days ago before completing the seven miles that separated him from Khartum itself.

The size of the tree may be easily realized when it is pointed out that the white speck noticed at the roots is a native man and donkey carriage. The dotted line to the left of the tree is not, as it might appear, a newly constructed railroad; it is a series of cabbage rows such as are planted by the natives the moment the Nile goes down.

Thy Way, Not Mine

Thy way, not mine, O Lord,
However dark it be;
Lead me by Thine own hand,
Choose out the path for me;

Smooth let it be or rough,
It will be still the best.
Winding or straight, it leads
Right onward to thy rest.

I dare not choose my lot,
I would not if I might;
Choose Thou for me, my God,
So shall I walk aright.

The kingdom that I seek
Is Thine; so let the way
That leads to it be Thine,
Else I must surely stray.

Not mine, not mine the choice,
In things or great or small,
Be Thou my guide, my strength,
My wisdom and my all.
—Bonar.

The Height of Waves

There is a great deal of romance about the stories that are told of the height of sea waves. They are not as high as the imagination, coached by these stories, would make them out to be. The height of the wave generally depends on the size of the body of water in which they appear. For instance, the highest wave on the Lake of Geneva is 9 feet; on Lake Superior, 23 feet; in the Mediterranean, 30 feet; in the Atlantic, from 40 to 50 feet. In measuring the height of a wave the reckoning should be on top of the wave to the level of the sea, and not, as is often done, from the trough of the sea to the top of the wave.—Exchange.

No prayer in faith for the coming of the kingdom of God in the world is lost. The prayer itself is a factor in the working out of the fulfillment of the promise.—Richmond (Va.) Virginian.

English Mail Routes

The first record contained in our Colonial history of any kind of mail service dates from 1676, when the court in Boston appointed John Hayward to "take in and convey letters according to their direction." In December, 1716, arrangements were made to receive letters in Boston from Williamsburg, Va., during four weeks of the summer time and eight weeks in winter. In 1738 Henry Pratt was appointed "riding postmaster" for all the routes between Philadelphia and Newport, Va., to set out in the beginning of each month and return in 24 days. Postage stamps were first introduced into the United States in 1847.—Exchange.

Shakespeare First Folios

Apropos of the Howe copy of the Shakespeare first folio, which has just been acquired by James Glen of Glasgow, it may be interesting to recall, says the Glasgow Herald, that from an opening bid of £50 the book went up £2025 at the sale of Lord Howe's fine series of Shakespeare and other works on Dec. 21, 1907.

The folio contains an old price mark of 25 shillings. This was just about the original value of the work, while a copy, the first recorded at auction, was publicly sold in 1686 for 14 shillings. The record sum for a first folio under the hammer in this country is £3600, realized for the fine Van Antwerp example in 1907.

CELERY FIELDS OF FLORIDA

A VISITOR at Sanford, Fla., writes of the celery growing industry, and says: When we went into the dining room of the hotel we were reminded of the fact that Sanford stands for celery growing, for in the center of each table was a large glass dish filled with fresh white stalks and green leaves. At first glance it seemed as if these must be meant for decoration, the bunches were so large and the general effect so attractive; but we soon discovered that everybody was eating celery—not single stalks but a whole bunch of stalks at a time, one person consuming what would serve a whole family at a northern table. We joined the majority and soon found that it is easy to eat celery wholesale when it is drawn from a dish of iced water as fresh and crisp as though just cut. On every hand we heard people talking farming; some who were harvesting a bountiful crop, others who had bought land and were in the throes of "improving" it, others still who were in the hands of the prospectors and were still trembling between the pros and cons of an investment in real estate.

Monday afternoon we drove out into this wonderful country. I have seldom been so impressed with a sense of the vigor, abundance and promise of growing things as when looking over those acres upon acres of celery—row after row of plants crowded so close together that it would scarcely seem as though they had room to grow, and crowned with leaves of a most vivid green. Instead of banking the stalks with earth to bleach them after they have pushed above the soil, boards are placed lengthwise on each side of the rows of plants leaning against the stalks. These are held in place by pegs which are removed when the crop is harvested, letting the boards fall between the rows and leaving the crop ready to be cut without any digging. The cutting is done by a machine something like a lawn-mower, and the bunches of celery are immediately packed in crates holding from four to eight dozen bunches. They sell for something like $1.25 or $1.50 per crate, and the profit per acre is about $1, and one acre will yield from 800 to 1000 crates! A large tract of improved land at Sanford recently sold for $1500 per acre. Just plain land sells for $100 to $150, where a few years ago a few dollars would buy an acre. We met one of the local planters who has been made wealthy by farming and he said he was going to take his family North this summer in an automobile. Not many years ago they were very poor. We were especially interested in the irrigating system which has made all this land so fertile.

Is the Spelling-Bee Obsolete?

To bring the spelling-bee back into general use is the occasional proposal of more than one school superintendent. The rising generation is by many thought to be learning none too well how to spell. Ask the nearest instructor of college freshmen. Many a boy reaches the college age without having mastered the mechanical necessities of composition—spelling and punctuation. The spelling-bee attempts to superimpose on the routine task of study the friendly rivalry of a contest. The appointment of "captains," the choice of sides, the lines of spellers, the schoolmaster with his book, the gradual elimination, the prolonged duels, the final slip (often on a simple word), and the ultimate victory—all this had its dramatic as well as its educative value. The old singing-school of our forefathers has apparently forever vanished. The spelling-bee cannot go without regret.—Colliers Weekly.

Featherweight Metal

A new material, called by its inventor "cork metal," has been introduced for the manufacture of aeroplanes. According to the University Correspondent it is about 40 per cent lighter than aluminum and is nothing more than an alloy of magnesium with small quantities of aluminum and iron. The drawback to the "cork metal" is that it reacts chemically with hot water, giving off hydrogen, but doubtless this difficulty will be met in some way.—San Francisco Call.

American Bible Society

The American Bible Society is thoroughly organized, and from its headquarters in New York reaches out to the remotest corners of the earth. Its 700 colporteurs sell and give away millions of copies of the Bible annually. Nearly a half million copies were sold in China alone during the last half of 1909. Translated into 450 languages, the Old Book is ready for distribution the wide world over. In the thirteenth century a copy of the Bible, with a few explanatory notes, was worth $150, while today the American Bible Society can sell a copy for 10 cents. Over 100,000,000 copies of the Bible have been distributed by the American Bible Society since its organization.—New York American.

Woman and Wings

The development of wings has been considered woman's peculiar employ ever since the first man called his wife an angel. The following note from the Brooklyn Eagle reminds one that the women will take naturally enough to the new industry:

The development of the aeroplane and the increasing interest in aerial navigation has opened the way to a new industry for women. This latest occupation is the manufacturing of the wing parts of flying machines, which already has enlisted the services of a considerable number of women.

Flower Culture

AT one time it was a popular idea even among florists that each variety of plant required its own special variety of soil. Now we know that this is all a mistake. Ninety-nine out of every hundred plants will do well in a soil composed of good garden loam, well rotted stable manure and sand. Some florists advise a sprinkling of bone meal, which can be added to advantage, but which is not absolutely necessary. After soil, next in importance comes drainage. Every pot more than three inches across ought to have something in the way of drainage before filling it with soil through which the surplus water can run away. See that the hole in the bottom of the pot is kept open. The minute it becomes clogged just that soon the soil becomes sour, and sour soil means delicate plants.

One-inch of drainage is sufficient for a five-inch pot; for a ten-inch pot three is not too much. Old flower pots may be broken up and used for drainage purposes; also pieces of broken china or bits of charcoal. Almost anything will answer that will not decay under the soil.

There is no set rule for watering that applies to all plants. The best one can say is in a general way. When the surface of the soil looks dry, then water and do it thoroughly, and then wait and watch, and when once more the soil is dry repeat the watering.

Some amateurs make the mistake of too frequently replanting their plants. It is better to feed the plants with proper

Americans and the Kaiser

The Berlin court, so we learn from a Paris contemporary, exercises each year a greater attraction for the Americans. About February the United States ambassador is solicited by a number of his compatriots, all highly recommended, to be presented to the Kaiser, says the London Globe. At the last presentation the ambassador was accompanied by 13 American society ladies, or more than the aggregate number presented by the other ambassadors. The court marshal has given Mr. Hill a polite hint that he should exercise a little more restraint upon the importunity of his millionaire countrywomen, who commence their European tour by a visit to the court of Berlin.—Exchange.

Charged to Profit and Loss

AN amusing sketch of a young wife's experience with her cash account is given in the Ladies Home Journal for April. The husband thinks it is necessary to have the accounts kept. To be sure the wife has always kept within the amount of her allowance, but for all that the systematic gentleman feels that she ought to know what she has done with her money. When she asks him why he has no answer ready; a woman's "Oh, because" is all that occurs to him. However, she finally yields with good grace, though she assures him that she does not have a bit more money for keeping accounts of it. She seems presently to be finding the arithmetic so much easier that his suspicions are roused and he hints that he would like to see her books. Though they have agreed that he has no right to ask what she does with the money he gives her, she graciously permits him as a favor to examine the accounts.

He reads in silent amazement and she finally bubbles over with the fun of it and explains. When she found she had a dollar too much or too little at the hour of balancing her weekly page, she adopted the plan of writing the dollar down with the word "whence" or "whither" after it. This permitted her to balance the page of income and outgo, and yet was not exactly dodging the issue. It was an honest admission that she did not know where the dollar had come from or had gone to. When she happened to have a "whither" on hand there might be chicken and mushrooms for supper. Her husband laughingly admitted that the system really answered all practical purposes, and that her housekeeping was perfect, whatever could be said of her bookkeeping. Besides, as she reminded him, he had not married her for the sake of her mathematical bent.

Thought-Lilies

Sweet in the purple pales of evening
low
The stars, the hyacinths of hope,
And sweet beneath the red-gold tulips grow
On many a still and greening slope;
Yet sweeter are the fair narcissus buds,
Of light and reverie wrought,
Whose fragrance floods
Their garden beds—the April trails of thought.

Gently we cull the message of their grace,
Soul-deep in silver dawn and dew;
And oh! our hearts enfold a flowering place—

Circled by oak and stalwart yew—
Where mockingbirds amid magnolias call,
Where blue skies ever beam,
And, white and tall,
The radiant Resurrection lilies gleam.

TESTIMONIES IN CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

CRITICISM of the testimonial meetings of Christian Science churches is sometimes to the effect that one hears nothing but statements of physical healing. Yet those who attend these services regularly wonder how such an impression can be received by any really attentive listener. Many, if not most, of those who testify say that the physical relief even from bondage to such despotism as intemperate habits, sinks for them into insignificance in comparison with the new found joy in knowing God. Perhaps these statements are overlooked because they are so simply made. The testimony of healing is in many instances so striking that strangers, perhaps pondering how such things can be, do not notice the speaker's joy in being at last awake to spiritual things.

There are other reasons why the testimony meetings seem to lay the emphasis on the healing. The healing is the definite evidence that Christian Science gives a deeper understanding of Christian teaching than the world has known. The demand of Christian Science is for those definite evidences of our growth in grace which satisfy the test Jesus gave. Our conquest of sin is only relative at best in our present stage of development.

The more we realize what it means to be in the image of divine and perfect Mind the more we realize how far from this likeness our present consciousness is. But in the definite conquest over disease we see a sure waymark to progress. Physical healing by the power of God is the first and simplest step to the final realization of the kingdom of heaven. When witnesses stand up to tell of disease conquered by Christian Science they are telling far more than one does who says a drug healed him. The Scientist knows that something of the cleansing work we have touched on here preceded the physical healing. He knows that to be well in Science where he was sick means that he is that much nearer spiritual conquest. The whole mass of mortal concepts is so complex and the interrelations so tangled of what Science terms "beliefs" about disease and about personal traits and inherited dispositions, mental and physical, that no law can be laid down as to the order in which these beliefs shall be replaced by higher concepts. But at least we know that when the sense of disease has been conquered by spiritual understanding we have an actual proof of the shining of the divine light upon us.

Another reason why the physical proofs of Science are discussed more at length on Wednesday than the spiritual uplifting as such is the very simple one that these meetings are chiefly to bear witness to the world in order that others may be helped. It is impossible to make plain to one who has not experienced it what the spiritual side of Christian Science demonstration is like. We may say, like the man in the Bible, whereas I was blind now I see, and in the literalness of this statement any one can follow its meaning. Any hearer can at least take in the sense of the words when some one says, "I had according to the doctors such a disease, and after Science came to me I was well." But only those who have tasted for themselves the joys of Spirit can in the least grasp what a speaker means who says that he would not exchange everything the world could offer for the knowledge of God that Christian Science has given him.

Again, Christian Scientists do not give much of the Wednesday meeting to expounding their sense of truth, as is done in other similar services, for the reason that the Sunday services are for this purpose. Indeed the Wednesday meeting is like a corollary to the Sunday service. On Sundays the truths of Christian Science are set forth in a clear and simple manner, not argumentatively and with no display of rhetoric or oratory. The simple statements of Love and Truth, wherein the divine Mind is unfolded to the willing hearer, are spread like a generous table before every comer. He may take what he will—what he can, in his present state of thought. Then the Wednesday meetings are the evidence of what this teaching does in a practical way to set humanity free. Jesus said: "Ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free," but not until Mrs. Eddy began teaching Christian Science had we remembered that the promises of Jesus were for all time, not for an unseen future only.

No one who gets a glimpse of what Christian Science really is teaching can cavil at the Wednesday service, with the people rejoicing to tell what has come to them from the knowledge of God as ever present good, in whom is no evil at all. There is no such wonderful phenomenon on earth today as the circle of these meetings girdling the globe.

Does not the single achievement of bodily harmony demand attention? Ask any man or woman condemned to a life of inaction or to years of weariness and suffering, ask the physicians who labor with hearts yearning over the anguish of the earth, and they will say that to render humanity physically well and free were something worth all the wealth of the world could it be bought by surrendering that wealth, leaving men to begin all over again at building up their fortune. Then if those who have found this physical freedom in Christian Science say that it is the least of the blessings this truth has brought them, is not Christian Science worth honest investigation?

The Business Situation

MORE than usual interest has been manifested this week in the money market. It has presented some unusual features. The April dividend and interest disbursements are many millions larger than they were a year ago. Consequent upon the large bond flotations and increased dividend payments on the part of many large corporations, greater preparations than ever were necessary to provide funds for meeting these requirements. Business interests looked forward to higher money rates as a result, particularly in view of the recent increase to four per cent of the Bank of England discount rate. Money rates have shown some tendency to firmness but there has been no stringency. There seems to be an abundance of money in the country for all legitimate purposes. Bankers are even inclined to complain on account of an apparent dulness in the money market. In view of this and the recent heavy tone manifested in the securities market some pessimistic talk regarding general business conditions has been indulged in. However, if there are any adverse conditions they are mostly sentimental. The constantly increasing railroad earnings and the record-breaking bank clearances tell the story of increased prosperity throughout the country.

There has been a marked change in the bond market of late. It is not long since gilt-edged securities of this class could not be purchased at a price to yield as much as four per cent. Now it seems to be an easy matter to buy first-class bonds on a basis of four per cent or even better. Of the various reasons given for this change the most popular one seems to be the higher cost of living. Many investors parted with their gilt-edged bonds to replace them with securities yielding a better return, being willing to take some risk in order to obtain a better yield on the investment.

The reduction in the total exports from the United States during the month of February to $125,517,000, as compared with $167,757,000 in February, 1908, seems to be the only unfavorable feature of importance in the entire business situation at the present time. High prices for cattle, beef and grain are the principal causes. Foreign consumers are finding it more profitable to make their purchases in other countries. The iron and steel business continues good and predictions are that this industry will enjoy the greatest expansion this year that it ever has known.

THE life of a popular President is a busy one. Thursday's round by Mr. Taft, aside from his ordinary official duties, included the reception of parties of American and Canadian girls, address before the Ohio State Society, visit to the National theater to see Marie Tempest in "Penelope," and attendance at Postmaster-General Hitchcock's cotillon.

SENATOR ROOT of New York has been engaged for a good part of the present week in making an argument in support of the administration's commerce, or railroad, bill, which some say is one of the best of his life. The fact that he has been able to attract and to hold an unusually large attendance in the Senate chamber gives force to the statement that his speech has made converts for the measure and increased the confidence of those who have all along been favorable to it. Perhaps one of his very best points was his frank declaration that any amendment calculated to increase the efficiency of the measure would be not only unopposed but welcomed on his side of the house. The effect of this was to disarm and to silence antagonism of a purely factious character. But he was no less successful in his replies to those senators who were seeking knowledge of the bill such as a man of his legal training could give them.

Touching upon the question of rate making, Senator Root's view is interesting. The railroads, he held, should make the rates, subject to the approval of the interstate commerce commission. To give the commission plenary power to suspend rates indefinitely, he contended, would change the whole theory of railroad regulation. It meant, he said, a change in the system which this country has grown great and strong, and the substitution of the continental system by which government ownership of railroads would inevitably follow.

Senator Root's speech, regardless of his attitude, has infused the Senate proceedings with a new interest. Its argumentative tone recalls the best days of that body and may have the effect of raising the general character of debate during the remainder of the session.

SPEAKING of autos, it would not seem necessary for the chauffeur of a fire department official's machine to put on the extra speed in returning from a fire that he does in going to it, as is now apparently the practise.

Revival of Mississippi Steamboating

THE belief prevails in the river towns and cities of the middle West that next Wednesday will mark the beginning of a revival of steamboating on the great streams of that section. On that day a new steamer, the first, it is hoped, of many, will start upon its initial trip between St. Louis and New Orleans. The building of this boat is in the nature of a reply to the charge that the Mississippi as it is is not made full use of by shippers, and in answer to the allegation that what is needed for the Mississippi is not a deeper channel but greater enterprise on the part of the people, along its banks, and more business.

The position is adhered to in St. Louis, notwithstanding this effort to make the best use possible of present advantages, that improvement of the river is absolutely essential to its successful navigation in a commercial sense. It is pointed out that the traffic of the Rhine has been immensely increased by the improvement of its channel. On the Great lakes, too, it is held that so long as the channels were shallow the traffic was light, and that with waterway improvements it has grown to upward of 100,000,000 tons annually, the government canals at the Soo carrying a traffic twice as great as that which passes through the Suez canal.

Kansas City has raised over $1,000,000 toward promoting her "Use-the-River" movement. Six boats are to be built to form a regular packet line between that city and St. Louis, and, perhaps, other points farther South. Once the success of the undertaking is assured, its expansion will be a comparatively easy matter. And on the part of its promoters, there appears to be no thought of failure. St. Louis and Kansas City are taking not only a courageous course in this matter, but a wise one. The investment will not be out of proportion to the ability of either city. If the undertaking fails, attention which has been given for many years to the idea of rebuilding the river traffic can be turned to something more profitable, and the experience will balance the loss. If it succeeds—and success seems certain—the national government will no longer have excuse for withholding adequate appropriations from Mississippi, Missouri and Ohio river improvement schemes, and the traffic which will be developed will mean a still further advance in middle western prosperity.

A POSSIBLE reason for the postponement of the line storm this year is that the line is down. Another reason for it is that the line storm is a theory rather than a fact.

The Kaiser

WHATEVER other criticisms may be spent on them, no one will ever pretend that the Hohenzollerns have not been men—men in the sense of the greatest of all the line, when he declared, in speaking of the "Great Commoner," that "England had been long in labor, but had at length brought forth a man." There have been twenty-seven of them, in direct descent, since Conrad came riding out of the old castle perched up in the mountain, over Lake Constance, by the springs of the Danube, in search of Barbarossa and fortune. He found both, and in due time became Burgraf of Nurnberg. That was in 1170, and two and a half centuries later Burgraf Friedrich VI., with his Frankish men-at-arms, and his peasant dragging "Heavy Peg," a sort of cousin-german of "Mons Meg," through the mire, came to Friesack, and the Burggrafs of Nurnberg became Kurfursts of Brandenburg. Three hundred years later the Kurfurst's 30,000 veterans, marching with stolid imperturbability behind "Corporal John" and Eugene, became such a factor in the European chess-game that the Kurfurst Friedrich III. changed into King Friedrich I. of Prussia. A century and a half later—a century and seventy years, to be more exact—William I. of Prussia was proclaimed William I. of Germany, amid the shouts of his officers, in the Galerie des Glaces, at Versailles.

The present Kaiser is the third of the Hohenzollern emperors, and though his predecessors were able men there is no question that he is by far the ablest of the three. The modern Germany, the Germany of Hamburg and Essen, of Crefeld and Elberfeld, as opposed to the old Germany of Weimar and Munich, came into existence, of course, after the war of 1870, but the hand which has guided its destinies in the making has been that of the third Kaiser. Not that the Emperor has been careless of Weimar and Munich; he has shown the same energy in his support of art and science as he has shown in armaments, in commerce, and above all in Weltpolitik. Never, probably, since Frederick gathered round him, at Potsdam, the leaders of Prussian thought and action of his time has such a gathering been seen as that recently brought together by the Emperor on board the Kaiser Wilhelm II., though this maritime Witenagemot is only the last phase of the policy by which the leaders of the German nation have been during the present reign pressed into the service of the state.

Twenty years ago when the Kaiser parted company with his great minister, John Tanniel, in perhaps the greatest cartoon he ever contributed to Punch, recorded the fact in his famous "Dropping the Pilot." Some people thought that the new commander would get the ship into difficulty before he had long paced the quarterdeck alone, but the ship has never been more splendidly handled than during those twenty years, and it is doubtful if the crew has ever had a captain in whom they had greater confidence.

Two announcements made on one day, one stating that a woman may, if she gets the votes, be legally made the Governor of Nebraska, and the other that Miss Maude Adams is to play the part of the rooster in Rostrand's drama of "The Chanticleer," indicate that woman's sphere shows signs of being still further enlarged.

THE fare from Boston to New York has been raised ten cents. But there are no attractions in the latter city other than those that existed before the advance.

IT follows, as a matter of course, that if the products of the farm are high and give fair promise of continuing to be high, the value of the farm must also increase. And even in the remote and sparsely settled districts, good farm land is no longer "given away" or to be had "for a song." The prices that Illinois lands are bringing—and Illinois land, though among the most fertile, is not now the best land in the country—is surprising even the middle western farmers themselves.

In the first three days of the month just closed the transfers of farm lands in McLean county, Illinois, represented in money approximately $2,000,000, and the Topeka (Kan.) Capital, commenting upon this matter, very properly points out as the most interesting feature of these transfers the fact that the average price per acre of the land which changed hands was $240, or $86 per acre above the average in the same county a year ago. This is equal to an advance of 55 per cent in the value of McLean county farm land. The gain in a single year, indeed—$86 per acre—is more than good farm land is selling for in the vicinity of Abilene, Kan., and the value of lands in the neighborhood of Abilene which could be had for little or nothing a few years ago has recently been going up at a marvelous rate.

It is not so very long ago since $240 would buy not only four but forty acres in Illinois; it will not be so very long until one acre of first-class farm land in Kansas will be as valuable as an acre of farm land anywhere. McLean county, Illinois, it is true, contains the populous and prosperous city of Bloomington and other market towns and enjoys the privilege of being within a short distance of Chicago; but at the present rate of progress, the West beyond the Missouri will soon be able to confer similar advantages upon its farms.

THE earth has a fertile area of 28,269,200 square miles, not counting the back lots that will be put under cultivation this spring.

High Prices for Farm Lands

THERE will not be much popular sympathy in Canada with the complaint that the Dominion yielded more than was necessary to the United States in order that a tariff agreement might be arranged. There will be less popular sympathy in this country with the complaint that President Taft, in his anxiety to avoid a tariff war with Canada, granted more than was necessary to the Dominion. Right-minded people on both sides of the border see more than a mere temporary arrangement in the American-Canadian tariff adjustment now happily concluded. Of far more importance than any advantage or disadvantage resulting to either country from the agreement that enabled the President to proclaim Canada entitled to our minimum scale of duties is the expression of a sentiment, unquestionably deeply felt in both countries, in favor of a more equitable and a closer commercial relationship hereafter.

President Taft's invitation to the Canadian government, that it confer with us with the view to the establishment of better trade relations between the two countries, is in line with this sentiment. Such a conference can result only in making clear to the people of the Dominion and the United States alike the fact that a liberal reciprocity will not only be conducive but is essential to the welfare of both nations.

President Taft deserves full credit for pursuing a policy that has not only averted what might have proved a serious break in the relations between the two countries, but that promises to lead in the very near future to a better understanding than has ever existed before.

The Poets and the Simple Life

AN INTERESTING controversy is in progress in London over a statement made in an editorial in the Times that, despite the beautiful things spoken of the country by the poets, most of them preferred to live in towns. The Times writer declared that probably Wordsworth was the only English poet who really preferred, and lived, of free choice, the simple country life. Poet Laureate Austin read this with "amazement," and made quick reply, citing the cases of Chaucer, among lanes, meadows and flowers; Spenser, whose "Faerie Queene" takes place "down in a dale hard by the forest side"; Shakespeare and his "wood-notes wild"; Pope, who lived not in London, but at Twickenham; Byron, Shelley, Tennyson, with their chosen homes in Switzerland, in Italy, at Aldworth, at Freshwater, "rural enough for a simple country life indeed."

Clement K. Shorter, editor of the Sphere, finds Mr. Austin "wide of the mark." Chaucer, he says, was born in London, lived there most of his life and admired daisies and other simple flowers from afar; Spenser indicates by his affectionate terms for London that it was dearer by far to him than fairy dales and forests; Shakespeare went to London in early manhood and lived there through all his working years; Milton spent his early and later life in London; and the editor thinks it would be easy to prove that the best poems of Byron and Shelley, and even of Tennyson, were written in towns.

Of the poets of other lands, Mr. Shorter says it is obvious that every one of them has preferred to live in the town. Yet it is certain that Lowell, Longfellow, Holmes, Emerson and Whitier and earlier and later American writers kept in very close touch with the fields and woods and flowers.

THE fact that the price of coal has been reduced should enable those who can put in their winter supply in the spring to view with comparative calmness the prospects of a rise before winter.

DURING the recent agitation resulting from the sudden awakening of the country to the fact that the cost of living had greatly increased and was greatly increasing, the wage question was apparently lost sight of. This must have struck thoughtful persons as something closely akin to an economic phenomenon. The uprising was really the first instance in our history of popular discontent with high prices, or of a popular strike against them. Low prices had always been associated in the public mind with dull times; all previous agitations had been against low, or at least for, higher wages. In this case, the thoughts of people seemed to have become completely diverted from established causes of grievance into an entirely new channel.

But the pendulum was bound to swing back. It would not be quite true to say that the populace is now content with the prevailing high prices; it would be fair to assume, however, from the calming of the agitation and from other symptoms of reaction, that people in general are regarding the high cost of living as an inevitable consequence of the higher plane of living. And it is perfectly reasonable that, taking this view of it, the popular desire should now be not so much to break down prices as to be able to meet them.

The advance in the wage scale, which is becoming more general daily, involves an increase in expenditures running up into the hundreds of millions, but it is a recognition of the fact that the higher plane of living, as well as the higher prices, is going to stay. A greater ability to purchase will be far more beneficial to the people at large than could have been a cheapening of their products. The American workman is entitled to the enjoyment of the highest plane of living possible, but he can be assured of it only by a process of building up, never by tearing down.
